City May Purchase Water From Clear Spring Ranch

By DONNA LOGAN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

A plan for the city to buy 2,000 acre feet of well water from Clear Spring Ranch, Inc., south of Fountain, will be considered Tuesday by the Colorado Springs City Council.

The proposed plan provides for the city to buy the water for a period of five years at a rate of $50 per acre foot — $100,000 per year. The city would buy the water on a "delivered" basis, meaning the city would have no legal or financial responsibility in the delivery process.

Water would be brought into the city's municipal system from south of Ft. Carson. If the Council approves the contract, it is assumed that delivery would begin this summer.

Terms of the agreement are similar to those approved by the Council on May 14 with the Cherokee Water District — an agreement which also provides for the city's purchase of water on a delivered basis.

The city was named a defendant in a suit filed Thursday in District Court by the Squirrel Creek-Ellicott Water Association and ranchers seeking to block the sale of water by voiding the contract. They have also asked the court to determine water rights in the area.

The contract with the Cherokee Water District would provide considerably more water than the proposed Clear Spring Ranch agreement. The city agreed to pay $60 per acre foot for the first 3,000 acre feet with an option to purchase 3,000 more at $50 an acre foot from the Cherokee district. The contract is for 10 years.

Also on the Council agenda Tuesday is a contract between the city and the Myron Stratton Home concerning water development in North Cheyenne Canon.

The South Suburban Water Company has undertaken a water drilling and exploration program in the canon between Helen Hunt Falls and the company's present intake.

The company has requested permission to remove the water in limited amounts during drought and emergency periods. The terms and conditions, and payment of royalties to the city by the company will be considered Tuesday.

South Suburban Water Company is facing court action by dissatisfied water customers who have protested water restrictions allowing no irrigation of lawns, trees or shrubs for more than a month. Attorneys for the customers are seeking a Public Utilities Commission investigation of the company.

Karl Ross, president, will speak on the situation to residents at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Ivywild-Cheyenne Canon Fire Station, Cheyenne Boulevard and Mesita Road.

Land Use Plan Proposal Goes to Council Tuesday

A land use plan in the Peterson Field vicinity which has been proposed by the City Planning Commission will go to the Colorado Springs City Council on Tuesday.

Minimum specifications for the approach zones at the north of the north-south and northeast-southwest runway will also be presented.

The planning commission recently held a hearing on the plan which would limit land to industrial and light industrial use two miles from the end of the runways to the north. Low density residential use would be restricted to the next eight-tenths of a mile.

The commission's recommendation follows an outline prepared by the City Planning Department.

Other matters to come before the Council when it meets at 9:30 a.m. at the City Auditorium's Little Theatre include:

Presentation of a 25 year service pin to Verle C. Hattan of the fire department. Mayor Harry W. Hoth will make the presentation.

Unfinished business will consist of:

Amending the city code in regard to small animal hospitals (second reading).

Annexation of Garden Ranch Addition No. 3, which is a 113.86 acre tract lying north of Templeton Gap Road and west of Academy Boulevard (second reading).

Annexation of Pikes Peak Vista Addition No. 1, which is a 100 acre tract lying northeast of Pikes Peak and Academy Boulevards (second reading).

Changing the zone of the southeast corner of Cherry Hills Boulevard and Airport Road to the R-5 zone (second reading).

Changing the zone of the west side of the 1000 block of North Swope Avenue to the R-3 zone (second reading).

Changing the zone of a two acre

Los Angeles Given Race Plan Deadline

LOS ANELES (AP)—Los Angeles civic and industrial leaders have nine days left on a deadline for "affirmative progress" against alleged discrimination in housing, education, employment and law enforcement.

Integrationist leaders Friday set a 10-day deadline. Otherwise, said Dr. Christopher Taylor, the local president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, demonstrations will come on the 11th day.

Another integrationist, the Rev. H. H. Brookins, declared there was considerable feeling among Negroes that if there is one city that can be best brought around to total integration, it is Los Angeles.

500 Young Anglers Take Part in Sixth Pikes Peak Fishing Rodeo at Prospect

Teenage and pre-teen anglers came away with 20 prizes Saturday at the sixth annual Pikes Peak Fishing Rodeo at Prospect Lake.

The trout were biting well for most of the 500 boys and girls who took part in the rodeo held at the southeast beach area of the city lake.

Ester Miller and Garry Pierson caught the first trout of the morning, and each was awarded a rod and reel.

Next winners were:

Second trout—Stephen Gibbs, lantern and hair cut; Pam Kincaid, flashlight and candy bars.

Third trout—Rick Savio, rod carrier and silver dollar; Olga Tavarez, flashlight and candy bars.

Fourth trout—Ken Mockman, sports helmet and hat cleaning; JoAnn Cowgill, flashlight and candy bars.

Fifth trout—Ken Shanks, flashlight and hat cleaning, Claudia Duke, bobby sox and vanity purse.

For catching the first limit of trout, Sammy Chacon won rod, reel and bike lite; and Pam Kincaid won a rod, reel and a fish stringer.

Two casting accuracy contests were held for boys and girls under ages 14, and 11.

Tom McCannon won a rod and reel for the boys under age 14 contest, and Rod Litchfield won a tackle box and bike lite for the boys under age 11 test.

In the girls' contest, Ellen Schubert won the age 14 and under class and Nancy Miller won the under age 11 class. Both received rods and reels.

Casting distance contest winners were: boys under 14, Gordoner Anderson, rod and reel; boys under 11, Jim DeMark, tackle box and casting weights; girls under 14, Kay Kimberly, rod and reel; unedr 11, Debbie DeMark, reel and vanity purse.

The average-sized trout caught by the youngsters ran from nine to 12 inches, tho some were as long as 16 inches. The fish not caught were released into the lake from the fenced off fishing area.

Sponsors for the 1963 fishing rodeo were the Jimmy Camp Sportsman Club, Colorado Game and Fish department, and the City Park and Recreation Department.

Siamese Twin Girls Born in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A set of Siamese twin girls joined at the chest and abdomen remained in satisfactory condition here at Pittsburgh's Children's Hospital.

The girls, weighing eleven pounds, two ounces, were born Friday in Allegheny Valley Hospital in suburban Natrona Heights. They were transferred to the Pittsburgh hospital for special tests, hospital authorities said.

The parents have been identified as John and Theresa Temenoshenko of R.D. 3, Tarentum.

They are the parents of three other children, including two-year-old twin boys and a four-year-old girl, authorities said.

Officials at Children's Hospital declined to comment on the possibility of separating the infants. Various tests are necessary to determine what if any organs or functions the babies share.

The babies were delivered by Dr. A. M. Fetchko. He once delivered a set of still born Siamese twins.

Old Type Soldier 'Dead, Gone to Hell,' Gerhart Says

CHICAGO (UPI)—The commander in chief of the North American Air Defense Command said Saturday the stereotype of the old soldier was "dead and gone to hell."

Gen. John K. Gerhart of Colorado Springs, Colo., told fellow alumni at the University of Chicago that "a new breed has come to the fore, with all the attractive attributes that his unfairly maligned predecessor is allowed to have lacked.

"Twenty-five years ago a Ph.D. in uniform would have been considered an oddity. Today, in the Air Force alone, there are 6,193 officers with Ph.D degrees or the equivalent there of."

Gerhart said the need for trained, intelligent men was so critical because of the awesome decisions they were called on to make.

"We live in an area of great choice—where men have possession and control over fantastic agents which can give an incredible impetus to our material civilization, or which can destroy the monuments of human society, and human life itself in a manner and in a brevity of time that overwhelm the imagination," he said.

Gerhart was one of four recipients of the university's alumni association medal, the association's highest award.

Gerhart said he was not sure whether the stereotype of the old-time "military mind" ever existed at all. But he gave this description of such an old soldier:

"A man on the declining side of middle age, spare, wrinkled, intelligent but with no imagination, cold, passive, non-commital, with eyes like a codfish, polite in contact but at the same time unresponsive, cool, calm, and as damnably composed as a concrete post or a plaster of paris cast; with a heart of granite and without charm or the friendly germ, minus passions or a sense of humor. . . ."

Space Flight May Impair Brain, Scientists Declare

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Hallucinations, impaired judgment and permanent brain and bone damage are possible hazards of prolonged space flight scientists say.

Several U.S. researchers reported on them to a symposium Friday on space biology conducted by COSPAR, the international Committee for Space Research.

One said that U.S. astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr.'s report of seeing houses and smoking chimneys in Tibet during his recent 22-orbit flight suggests disorders of visual perception or of judgment during weightlessness.

The speaker, W. R. Adey of the University of California at Los Angeles, said Cooper's insistence that he could see objects the size of a house 100 miles up was "obviously impossible, as any experienced pilot would know."

Adey said Cooper's judgment may have been impaired at the time by the total lack of normal nerve sensations.

He explained Cooper's bullseye manual landing after a electrical breakdown saying "in an emergency, the human system tends to pull itself together."

Adey and other speakers suggested dangers will increase greatly as space flights are lengthened. To study this, the United States plans to launch a monkey for up to two weeks next fall, Adey said.

The hazards to the human brain "are such that critical and irreversible changes might take place suddenly on flights of weeks or months. We should be aware of this possibility," Adey said.

He felt it encouraging that Cooper had slept and dreamed. Scientists tend to believe that the sleep with dreams which follows the first four to five hours of dreamless, deep sleep is essential to the brain's renewal process. "Without it, the degenerative process may set in," Adey said. "Absence of sleep or the dreaming period can lead to psychotic states," he added.

Martian Vegetation May Be Like Cactus Plant

DENVER (AP) — There probably aren't any cowboys on the planet Mars, or any other kind of men, but the vegetation, if any, would probably be shaped like one of the symbols of cowboyland—the cactus plant.

This was indicated Friday by Dr. W. M. Sinton of the Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., the world-famed astronomer who has been credited with digging up the best evidence yet that some form of life—presumably vegetative—exists on the mysterious red plant.

Addressing a symposium on the exploration of Mars, Dr. Sinton said that if, indeed, there is vegetation on Mars, it would have to have special qualities to survive under the un-earthly conditions of low oxygen pressure and freezing temperatures at night.

At night, the temperature on Mars, regardless of season, drops to 150 degrees below zero fahrenheit, though at high noon in summertime it gets up to a comfortable 80 degrees.

"I would guess," declared Sinton, "that Martian plants might be shaped something like cacti, especially barrel or saguaro cacti."

The barrel cactus, at least the earthly type, is a roughly barrel-shaped plant of moderate height, sporting spines that run down the sides in vertical columns. It secrets a sticky juice that has been credited with saving the lives of thousands of thirsty travelers in the desert—and so, presumably, would come in handy for American adventures on Mars where there is probably very little water.

The earthly saguaro cactus is tall, tough and thin, with multiple branches shooting off the main trunk. The trunk may tower as high as 50 feet, and branches may number up to 50.

American Cadets Tour Mexico's Military Academy

MEXICO CITY (AP) —A group of 110 U.S. Air Force cadets from Colorado Springs toured the Mexican Military Academy as guests Friday.

The visitors witnessed an exhibition of horsemanship and precision drilling.

The U.S. group is under command of Col. L. S. Johnson.

A spokesman for the group, Capt. G. S. Nixon, said the purpose of the trip was to establish closer contacts between cadets of the two countries.

Mars Flight May Come in Year 1974

By FRANK CAREY

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A White House space-science official has taken strong issue with estimates of top space-agency officials that it would probably be early in the 1980s before a manned expedition to Mars would be possible.

At the same time, Maxwell W. Hunter of the National Space Council, in the Executive Office of the President, gave his estimate that the attempt could be made as early as 1974, and "without having budgets go sky high" in the meantime.

Only Thursday Harold B. Finger, a high-ranking official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, echoing sentiments voiced by other NASA officials in recent months, said that a manned Mars landing would not be possible "until late in the seventies and more probably into the early eighties."

Without singling out any agency or individual in particular, Hunter criticized current con-

Searchers Hunt Man Missing in Rugged Mountains

Eleven members of the Ft. Carson mountain rescue team joined a Custer County Sheriff's posse Saturday night at Westcliffe to search for a Stratton, Colo. man who has been lost since Friday in the rugged Sangre de Cristo Mountains.

According to a Ft. Carson spokesman, the request for the trained mountaineers was received at 3:30 p.m. Saturday. The party, which left the camp at 5:30 for Westcliffe, south of Canon City, is headed by Capt. John S. Kelliher and H. G. Sorensen, civilian trainer of the team.

The missing man is Patrick Quinn, about 25 years old. Information received from one of the civilian searchers, Robert Couzen of Florence, was that the mountain search was made more difficult by the fact that Quinn is mentally retarded.

Custer County officials were notified of the man's disappearance Friday afternoon by his relatives with whom he had gone camping. It was reported to be Quinn's first visit to the mountains.

He wandered from a camping area in the mountains about seven miles south of Westcliffe. Quinn, who weighs about 125 pounds and is five feet six inches.

Searches Will Be Stepped Up for Missing Planes

By United Press International

The Wyoming and Colorado Civil Air Patrol planned maximum-effort searches throughout the weekend for a light plane missing in Wyoming and Montana with two Denverites aboard; and two craft which disappeared in Colorado.

All three had been missing nearly a week.

The all-out Wyoming search was ordered Friday after other search efforts from Wyoming were suspended. The plane disappeared Sunday after calling in south of Laurel, Mont., en route to Sheridan for a refueling stop.

Truman C. Engelhardt, 29, was piloting the plane. His passenger was Linda Ann Sturgis, 24, who was a student-pilot.

The Colorado CAP said 35 planes would be involved in Saturday's searches in Colorado, and at least 120 persons would participate. The searches were to be centered around Kremmling and Alamosa.

One of the craft missing in Colorado was an Aero Commander carrying four persons which disappeared Sunday on a flight west from Boulder, Colo. The pilot was W. V. Penfold, 62, of Newport Beach, Calif.

The other was a helicopter being ferried from Twin Falls, Idaho to Santa Fe, N.M., Sunday by Edwin Hermes of Twin Falls when it vanished between Gunnison and Alamosa.

Yellowstone Travel Said To Be Lagging

YELLOWSTONE NAT'L PARK, Wyo. (UPI)—Yellowstone National Park headquarters Friday said travel through the park through May 1 was off 13.4 per cent from last year's record pace.

The monthly travel report showed season totals of 20,249 vehicles this year, compared with 23,281 through the end of May a year ago.

Visitors to the nation's oldest park so far this year have numbered 72,967, off 11,249 from last year's 84,216.

The west and south entrances have proved the most popular so far this year.

For May, the Park Service noted 66,973 visitors in 18,603 cars. The figures were down 13.7 per cent from last year in the number of visitors and 14.2 per cent in the number of cars coming into the park.

In 1962, the world's fair at Seattle was credited with attracting record numbers of tourists to the park.

Corner-Cuts Allowed at Intersections

Starting this week pedestrians will be able to cut the square corners at three downtown intersections.

City Traffic Engineer Don L. Smith said that Monday or Tuesday there will be crosswalk areas 10 feet wide painted onto the street at each of four corners where Tejon Street intersects with Kiowa Street, Pikes Peak and Colorado Avenues.

Pedestrians will have to stay within the crosswalk confines and cannot venture out into the street.

"Those who cross the streets diagonally are liable to get a jaywalking ticket," Smith said.

Cutting the corners means that a pedestrain won't have to step onto the sidewalk before heading across the street in another direction.

"But this doesn't mean," Smith emphasized, "that pedestrians can walk diagnoally across any of the three intersedtions. It means they can cut the corners only in the specified crosswalk areas."

Britain's Favorite Woman Driver Flunks Test Again

LISBURN, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Britain's favorite woman driver flunked her third driving test Friday when she drove the wrong way down a one-way street.

"Everyone else seemed confused, but I was as cool as a cucumber," Miss Margaret Hunter, 65, said after the examiner failed her on 12 of the 19 points tested. "They just don't want to give me a license, that's all."

Undiscouraged, she indicated she will try again. "I am very confident of my driving ability. Driving is a passion of my life and I could drive for hours and hours."

She first drove into the headlines in her native Stockport, England last year when her instructor, Stanley Davenport, jumped from her car in midlesson and fled shouting "This is suicide!"

Undaunted, Miss Hunter, a retired school teacher, drove herself home—and was fined $3 for driving without a license.

Since then her driving escapades have involved:

—A demonstration spin with a woman reporter aboard that lasted 100 yards before Miss Hunter hit a truck, wrecked her car and was fined $14 for reckless driving.

—Two driving tests in which she was flunked; once before she be-

Police reported Saturday night that an eight-year old boy was found dead in an ice box in a vacant house at 1033 S. Baltic St., Saturday afternoon. The boy Richard James Forney, who lived at 1029 Baltic St., had been missing from his home since 3 p.m. Friday. His body was found by his mother at approximately 3:33 p.m. Saturday when she opened the ice box and the body fell out backwards, police said.

Police said the inside of the refrigerator door had been broken and the bottom of the freezer compartment had been bent upward as if the boy had struggled to get out.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Maxine Forney, had notified police that the boy was missing at 8 p.m. Friday. She and her 13-year-old daughter, Katherine, went into the

Puebloan Killed In Accident Near Monument

A man died of a crushed chest and a possible broken neck when the tractor and trailer he was driving left U. S. Highway 85-87 and rolled over early Saturday morning, the State Patrol reported.

J. D. Richardson, 41, of Pueblo was traveling south a half mile south of Monument when he apparently fell asleep. His truck left the road, went 160 feet on the loose gravel ridge to the left of the highway, then 78 feet thru the median and 90 feet across the northbound lanes, finally rolling over and traveling 50 feet more on its top, the report said.

State Patrolman G. W. Baumgardner investigated the accident.

Old Western Headline Was Corrected

LEWISTOWN, Mont. (AP) — Headline writers were a shifty lot in the early days of Montana newspapering if an old issue of the Lewistown Argus is any indication.

Going back in Pioneer day files, Publisher Woody Laughnan of the Lewistown Daily News found this headline on a story about the opening day of a trial:

"Dirty Horse Thief Caught Red Handed With the Goods

"Will probably be Strung Up and Good Riddance

"Stole Horse From Defenseless Widow

A jury acquitted the man the next day and the headline read:

"Highly Respected Citizen Wrongly Accused of Theft

"Stupid Charge Embarrases Man

"Widow Was Out To Get Him On False Charges."

Colorado Range Reported Poorest in 40-Year Span

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Saturday another month of light and spotted rainfall produced the poorest June 1 range grazing in drought-struck Colorado in at least the last 40 years.

The federal-state agency said some excess wheat acreage was being grazed on the eastern plains and the condition of cattle and sheep declined as feed supplies were used up.

"Range feed condition declined in all areas of the state, with the least decline occurring in the northeast and southwest sections," the service said.

"Depletion of carry - over feed supplies and absence of sufficient new grass resulted in a contra-seasonal decline in cattle condition. On June 1, cattle condition was 73 per cent — 2 points below a month earlier." This was also below the 85 per cent average, the service said.

The service also said:

—Ranchers in some sections were marketing dry cows and cull to conserve feed during May.

—Feed supplies were nearly exhausted, and hay was difficult to find.

—Stock water was being hauled in by some ranchers.

—Sheep and lamb condition also declined. It was four points below average at 82 per cent June 1.

"Sheep more nearly maintained their condition of a month earlier than did cattle," the service said. "Lack of new grass, however, took its toll."

Morris M. Skinner, of Colorado State University civil engineering section, has predicted that if drought conditions persist in Colorado, there will be heavy demands on underground water supplies.

Skinner also said a "considerable" decline in water table levels could be expected in the fall, in comparison to last fall.

Skinner issued a report on pump irrigation which indicated most of the state's pumping farmers went into the pumping season this spring with ground water levels steady or slightly down from a year ago.

Exceptions were in the Bijou Valley east of Denver and the neighboring valleys of Kiowa and Boxelder Creeks, where continued declines were noted.

Ground water levels were being maintained "quite well" in Kit Carson and Baca counties at last report, Skinner said, "considering the relatively rapid pace at which irrigation well development is taking place in those areas."

The CSU report, issued each spring and fall, was based on measurements taken in 668 observation wells in 23 Colorado counties.

Robert Schwartz Gets AM Degree at MU

Robert G. Schwartz Jr. of 1829 Wood Ave. was awarded an AM degree at commencement exercises at the University of Missouri Tuesday. The degrees were conferred by President Elmer Ellis. New NASA Lab For Space Experiments

The environment of space presents many challenges to man, and he must understand it thoroly if he is to find ways to pursue the peaceful exploration of space for useful and scientific purposes.

Among the hostile aspects of space, the most significant, many scientists feel, is the particle radiation streaming from our Sun or trapped in the Earth's magnetic field.

A new NASA laboratory to study such space radiation and its effects is now being built near the NASA Langley Research Center, Hampton, Va.

It will house a synchrocyclotron capable of emitting protons with energies of 600 million electron volts. There are only two similar machines of equal or greater power in the Free world—one at Geneva, Switzerland.

With the synchrocyclotron to produce protons and two smaller devices to generate electrons, NASA scientists will conduct controlled experiments simulating nearly all the major kinds of natual radiation found in space.

By special arrangements with three major Virginia schools—The University of Virginia, The College of William and Mary, and the Virginia Polytechnic Institute — the laboratory will be operated by a university-sponsored organization, and aportion of its research time will be devoted to the needs of higher education as well as to space experiments.

Thus, NASA believes, it will further research needed to increase the reliability of spacecraft and the safety of space missions and at the same time provide the universities with instruments for basic studies in high energy physics and hereby expand graduate education in that and related fields.

'MARALYN' AND MOTHER—Baby "Maralyn," born last Sunday at Cheyenne Mountain Zoo, rests against mother "Cleo" after a swim in her pool. The 600-pound youngster is a healthy week-old youngster and like all hippos loves water. (Photo by McIntyre)

Hippo Born Last Sunday On Display at Cheyenne Zoo

"Cleo," a 13 year old hippopotamus at the Cheyenne Mountain Zoo, selected a busy Sunday afternoon to deliver her third offspring. The husky 60-pound youngster, named "Maralyn," becomes the fourth member of the hippo family

While this is a third baby for "Cleo," it is the first for the father, "Adonis." "Adonis" was a gift from the zoo in Memphis, Tenn. His father, "Adonis I," became quite famous and was alleged to be the largest hippo in captivity. The young "Adonis" tips the scales at 3,000 pounds, altho he has reached only two-thirds his maximum size.

Of the two previous hippos born at the local zoo, only "Shy-Anne" is still a resident. The other baby, named "Salomi," was given to the zoo at Portland, Ore.

The new youngster was quite strong at birth and soon rose to its feet. On the second day, "Cleo" entered the pool with "Maralyn" for her first swim. "Maralyn" was a natural aqua maid and soon mastered the art of swimming underwater hippo style.

At first, it was feared that "Adonis" might harm the baby. Instead, however, he appeared quite fond of it. Once, when he approached too close, "Cleo" chased him back with a warning.

Hippos were once found in most of the rivers, lakes, and ponds of Africa south of the Shara. As the land was cultivated, hippos became a destructive force and were destroyed in great numbers. Today, they are found only in isolated regions and national parks.

The hippo is most closely related to the pig. It is amphibius and spends as much time in the water as on land. An adult bull may weigh in excess of 7,000 pounds. Daylight hours are spent floating on the the surface of the water or walking along the bottom playing and exercising. When threatened, hippos immediately submerge. They may remain submerged for 10 to 12 minutes but must hold their breath as they cannot breathe under water. A value-like apparatus closes the ear and nasal passages when submerged.

The hide of the hippo is almost devoid of hair and is dark on the upper parts, but almost light pink on the belly. A dark, oily substance is secreted by the pores and serves to prevent the skin from drying and protects it from the water.

The new baby is on display in the outdoor hippo yard.

Local Pupils Score High in Physical Fitness

On seven tests of physical fitness this year, children in District 11 elementary schools scored over 18 percentate points above the national norms.

Miss Katharine Bruce, supervisor of physical education, said the average local score was in the 68th percentile; the national norm for the tests is the 50th percentile.

Five schools did especially well on the tests, according to Miss Bruce. Children at Columbia, Queen Palmer, Audubon, Mark Twain, and Pike scored above the 74th percentile. Scores in all but three of the district's 25 elementary schools was above the 60th percentile, she said.

The tests were devised by the American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, and have been adopted by the President's Council on Physical fitness.

Blood Clots Are Defensive But Can Be Bad Actors

You couldn't live without them, but sometimes you can't live with them.

Blood clots can be very bad actors at the wrong time and place, but if it were not for clotting you would have bled to death the first time you cut your finger as a child.

Clotting is one of the body's basic defenses, a normal bodily mechanism which prevents us from being drained of blood after an injury.

In certain rare conditions, such as hemophilia, the blood possesses no natural ability to coagulate and form a clot, and any injury then becomes a most critical matter.

At the other end of the scale, clots which form blockages or create pressures in blood vessels, brain, heart or lungs also can have serious consequences.

So a fine balance between free blood flow and clotting exists within the body at all times.

The clotting process is intricate and complex. In greatly simplified outline, the sequence of events runs like this:

Platelets — one of the main components of blood — accumulate at a point of injury. A chemical reaction starts. Fibrinogen, a protein in the blood, forms a fibrin lattice-work around the injured area. Then red cells accumulate in abnormal numbers. The concentration of fibrin and cells plugs the hole and stops bleeding.

Once the clot has served its purpose of stopping bleeding, a reverse process eliminates it. Not, however, without some scarring in most cases. The bleeding threat has been met, but there may be a permanent effect at the site of injury.

Age — blood vessel age — has special significance in this process. The blood vessels of older persons are harder — more sclerotic — and therefore more subject to injury, clotting and scarring.

But clotting can have ill effects even when it is the normal reaction to injury.

A clot under the skull, for example, can cause pressure on the brain. In abdominal operations, clotting stops bleeding and thus is the surgeon's friend, but a large clot may form, press on other organs, fail to dissolve and necessitate removal by additional surgery.

It is the abnormal clotting of blood — thrombosis — within vessels which earns for clots most of their bad reputation.

The thrombosis can occur in a cerebral vessel and produce a stroke, it can hit a coronary artery and cause a heart attack, or it can develop in vessels of the legs or the intestines. Of these, clotting in the veins of the legs—phlebothrombosis — is the most common.

Such clots usually are the result of several factors or a combination of them. Injury to the vessel — a cut, bruise, irregularity of the lining, inflammation, or accumulated plaques of arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) on the lining; or there may be something wrong in the structure of the blood itself, the red cells, ensymes, proteins, blood chemistry.

On occasion a clot breaks its moorings and flows with the blood, outward from the heart if it is in an artery, inward toward the heart and lungs if it is in a vein.

Most clots are quite adherent to the vessel lining, others are loosely attached, or a firmly-fixed clot may have a long tail up to 10 or 12 inches in length.

A loose clot can cause serious trouble in an artery by blocking it and cutting off the flow of fresh blood to the part of the body beyond the dam.

Old Doc Experience advises:

There isn't really much you can do in your daily life to avoid blood clot dangers beyond normal activity and reasonable exercise. In fact, if you're hurt and bleeding, you want clots to form.

If you have heart trouble, arteriosclerosis, varicose veins or other circulatory troubles, or generally poor blood circulation, you should be under the care of a physician and following his instructions to avoid clots.

Symptoms and seriousness of a clot depend upon its location and whether it is causing direct pressures itself or preventing blood from getting to or away from tissues. A stroke, coronary heart attack, the swelling and ulceration of legs in phlebothrombosis are illustrations.

Clots often cause trouble when there is prolonged bed rest or unusual inactivity. Blood flows less swiftly and clots more readily. This is one of the very good reasons why hospital patients today are out of bed as soon as possible.

There is no single treatment for blood clots. Treatment depends upon where the clot is. Surgery can be employed to remove a lot causing pressure, or to tie off (ligate) a vein to insure that a clot will not break loose and flow to the heart or lungs. Anticoagulant drugs are used, and new enzyme drugs which dissolve clots once they are formed.

Blood clots outside a vessel — in or on the skin, for example — represent no hazard in terms of vital organ.

ASTRONAUT PARACHUTE—A balloon shaped like a child's spinning top is being designed as a safety device for astronauts during the first and last stages of NASA's Project Gemini flights. The drag balloon, called Ballute (BALLoon-parachUTE), would be used if astronauts were forced to use their ejection seats, the planned mode of escape for altitudes below 70,000 feet. The inflatable, rubberized fabric structure would stabilize and slow their fall until conventional parachutes could be deployed at the lower altitude. The Goodyear Aircraft Corporation is the contractor for the Ballute system. Ballute will be packaged in a deflated condition in the ejection seat during flight. It is expected to be about 18 inches in diameter and two feet long. During tests the drag device has successfully stabilized the descent of payloads weighing as much as 500 pounds. The system has been proven at speeds up to 10 times that of sound or more than 7,000 miles per hour.

Minor Employes Must Furnish Age Certificates

Colorado Springs employers who hire minors for summer work must obtain a certificate of age from each minor employee, according to provisions of the Colorado Child Labor Act of 1963.

Julian P. Tatum, Jr., School District 11 director of Guidance and Counseling Services, says the 1963 act repealed the former child labor law and establishes new regulations for employers and for workers under the age of 19.

The Act requires a worker between the ages of 14 and 18, inclusive, to obtain an age certificate and present it to his employer as proof of age.

The employer is required to keep the certificate on file and available for examination by agents of the Colorado Industrial Commission.

By requiring minor employees to present their certificates, employers protect themselves from unintentional violations of the minimum age provisions of the law.

Upon termination of the minor's employment, the employer returns the certificate to the minor.

Minors living in District 11 may obtain a certificate of age at the district's Administration Building.

Those living in other districts should apply for a certificate at the office of the El Paso County Superintendent of Schools.

At the time of application, the minor must present a birth certificate, baptismal record, or other official document verifying his age.

Employers may hire workers under the age of 14, but the 1963 act severely limits the kinds of work they may do. Some jobs are prohibited for workers under age 16, and still other jobs cannot be done by workers under the age of 18.

In addition, the Act imposes restrictions upon the number of hours a minor may work and the period of time within which he may work. These restrictions vary according to the age of the minors.

Tatum suggested that employers who have questions about the operation of the Act should call the office of the county superintendent of schools or the District 11 Administration Building.

CC Professor Receives $9,960 Study Grant

Dr. Donald Shearn, assistant professor of psychology at Colorado College, has received a grant of $9,960 from the U. S. Public Health Service to continue his study of environmental factors in the control of cardiac and respiratory responses.

The grant is the second he has received from the health agency. The initial grant, made last year, was for $35,348.

Working with Prof. Shearn on the research project this summer is Glenn D. Clifford, a sophomore from Rocky Ford, Colo. Clifford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Clifford of 711 S. 7th St. in Rocky Ford.

Prof. Shearn, who holds a Ph D in psychology from Indiana University, joined the faculty at Colorado college in 1961 after having taught at Indiana.

Prof. Shearn already has been able to speed up the heart rate in human subjects through environmental changes which occur as a result of these heart rate accelerations.

The Colorado College psychologist said he hopes to "develop a method of controlling cardiovascular behaviour thru precise use of the environment. Subjects soon learned that mild electric shocks could be postponed by speeding up the heart rate," Prof. Shearn said.

"Most of the subjects were unaware of the fact that the research involved speeding up the heart rate," he said. "Control subjects also getting shocked actually showed a decrease in the number of heart rate accelerations."

DR. DONALD SHEARN

The psychologist hopes the long-range research program may result in techniques for the control of both normal and abnormal cardiovascular systems without the use of drugs or exercise. This could be a step toward a new kind of heart treatment.

Some of the research techniques employed by Prof. Shearn were promoted by animal conditioning experiments which also have influenced the development of the teaching machine.

Florence Schools To Have New Teachers

Three teachers in school district Re-2(J) will be replaced this fall, it was announced by Barto Babitz, superintendent of schools at Florence.

Mrs. Elwood White, who has taught second grade at McCandless school since 1956, is being forced to step down from her post because of a certification law, Babitz declared. He added that her loss will be deeply felt by the district and the board regrets that she will not be able to continue in her present assignment.

Mrs. M. E. Potter, who has taught school at Penrose for the past four years, will also not be back next fall. Mrs. Potter, who is a non-degree teacher, cannot be re-hired under a previously established board policy regarding the placement of non-degree teachers on tenure. Mrs. Potter was a fifth grade teacher.

A third teacher, Mrs. Elsa Abram, has turned in her resignation to the board. Her plans are indefinite. Mrs. Abram has been teaching in the district since 1958. She taught kindergarten for several years and has been teaching girls' physical education.

A number of other teachers have resigned or retired this year including William Sturdy, Thomas Elrod, Mrs. Shirley Norlem, Mrs. Jeannette Stebbins, Mrs. Antionette Cresto, and Mrs. M. Vezzetti.

Canon City Family To Take Part in Chapel Dedication

Membership in a World War II division association for the past 18 years will have its reward in the form of a "bargain - basement trip" this week for Harold McCormick and his family of Canon City.

McCormick, who is a Colorado state representative and a veteran of the Eighth Air Force during World War II, will leave Monday, for Norwich, England with his wife and son, Brian. The Canon City family will stop in Chicago where they will board one of two jet airliners being chartered for the transatlantic flight by the Second Air Division association (b-24's).

The occasion for the visit to England by some 200 members of the association is the dedication of a division memorial at Norwich... one of the USAF's air bases during the war. This memorial, adjacent to the new Norwich city library, contains two Colorado stones sent by McCormick to England last year.

One of the stones is from the Colorado High Altitude observatory at Climax.

The chapel in England was built in 1962 with funds American airmen raised voluntarily at the end of World War II. It is a fitting memorial to the 6,000 war dead that the Second Air Division lost during the war in the air over Europe from 1942-45.

While in England, the McCormick family will first be guests of a British family and later will be guests of Mrs., McCormick's sister and brother-in-law, Col. and Mrs. John M. Bennett, who are stationed in a SAC outfit near London.

The dedicatory address at the memorial will be made by the U.S. ambassador to Great Britain. In addition to many veterans of the ETO, top military and air force personnel will attend the Norwich dedication including Lt. Gen. Robert Terrell, NORAD, who will make the trip to England.

McCormick, who will represent the state of Colorado at the formal function, will present a letter to the Lord Mayor of Norwich from Gov. John Love of Colorado.

Global Travel 'Old Hat' to Academy Cadets

Global travel will be "old hat" to most Air Force Academy cadets by the time they don lieutenant's bars and pilot's wings.

Members of the Class of 1965, for instance, will be seen this summer in Hawaii, Australia, New Zeland, Fiji, Japan, Okinawa, Korea, France, England, Germany, Spain Norway, the Netherlands, Denmark, Austria, Italy, the Philippines, Hong Kong, Formosa, Mexico, the Canal Zone, Peru, Uruguay, Brazil Puerto Rico, Colombia, and Ecuador.

The countries will be visited as part of the summer field study of overseas areas, an integral part of the Academy curriculum.

Although sightseeing is encouraged during the visits, cadets receive thorugh orientations on the political and military aspects of the countries they visit — often from high ranking local officials or members of U. S. embassy staffs — and frequently stop at the Air Force academies of their hosts to "Compare notes."

A total of 27 countries will be visited this summer.

Overseas stays for several groups of cadets will be extended an additional two weeks. They will spend the time assigned to operational Air Force bases in seven foreign countries as "Third Lieutenants" learning the ropes as a junior officer.

The Class of 1966 will also get in plenty of traveling this summer. On "Falcon 1963" they are scheduled to study the other branches of the armed forces in a series of tours to Army and Navy installations in the U. S.

Included in the program are a series of cruises on naval craft ranging from submarines to aircraft carriers.

Cadets will also get a taste of rugged Army airborne and ranger training at Fort Benning, Ga.

was last seen wearing blue trousers and a grey shirt.

Couzen said the temperature in the focal point of the search is cold at night and drizzle and intermittant showers fell thruout Saturday. the altitude is well over 9,000 feet.

The lost man is wearing a new pair of shoes which leave a distinct mark and searchers said they had picked up the footprints several different times. From the scattered prints, they ascertain that the man is working his way up the rugged range toward an area known as Colony Lakes.

Headquarters for the search party is at the Ed Stanton Ranch which is adjacent to the area from which Quinn disappeared.

Fremont County Sheriff's Officers have also joined in the search party which includes about 60 people on foot and on horseback. Bloodhounds and trustees from the State Penitentiary at Canon City were also reported to have joined the search.

Couzens said the region is densely wooded and the rough terrain makes it extremely difficult to comb the area thoroly. He said it is hoped that many more people will join the search party today.

Aradcom Colonel Turns Sleuth to Find 'Coach Joe'

The envelope picked up by Lt. Col. Edward F. Keevan, 1102 Neptune Dr., was addressed to "Coach Joe."

There was nothing more on the outside of the packet to identify either the sender of Coach Joe, so the Army officer opened the envelope. He found 16 one-dollar bills with a note that read, "With appreciation" and which contained nine signatures. It was evidently a gift from a boys' baseball or softball team.

Keevan, an Army Air Defense Command staff officer, found the envelope while walking near Ent Air Force Base along Union Blvd. Fortunately, some of the names were unusual enough to give Keevan the necessary lead to locate the boys—to see that Coach Joe got his gift. The names were Bo McCarthy, Larry Jewett, Pat Graham, Clark Davis, Jerry Maisonneuve, Jack Vawser, David Boom, Tim Mayer, and Mark Vandenberg.

After a call or two, Keevan contacted Ronald (Bo) McCarthy, catcher and captain of the eighth grade baseball team of St. Mary's School. The team placed second in the five-team Junior Catholic League, and some of the same boys, under the same coach, won the 8th Grade Division track meet in the parochial league.

Bo said he apparently lost the envelope while waiting at a bus stop.

Coach Joe turned out to be Joe Trujillo, 1520 N. Weber, St. Mary's graduate of last year who is going on the St. Bonaventure University at Olean, N. Y. Joe was asked to coach the boys by Fr. Leo Kennedy, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church.

Joe was pleased when he received the delayed gift. He said of his coaching work:

vacant house in search of the boy. A neighbor who was also searching heard the mother scream after discovering the body, ran to the vacant house to aid her and then notified the police.

County coroner Raul Urich said the boy had apparently died of suffocation while in the refrigerator.

Richard's mother had last seen him playing with his brothers and sisters in their yard Friday afternoon.

Katherine Ann Forney, Richard's sister, told police she saw a man use a public telephone at the time the children were playing in the yard. She said the man used the telephone beside the vacant house once and then sat on the porch of the house. She said he offered her and Richard doughnuts which they refused, and Richard talked to the man for a time, she said. A little later she noticed that both Richard and the man were gone.

Jarold Forney, 15 Richard's brother, and Linda Sue Forney, 11, also told police they had seen the man.

Police officials said, however, there was no evidence that the boy had been molested, although they refused to speculate on possible other aspects of the case.

The body of the boy was taken to the Nolan Funeral home.

Space Impact Subject of Two Year Study at CU

The impact of space and space-related activities on the economy related activities on the economy of Boulder will be the subject of an intensive two-year study sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

President Quigg Newton of the University of Colorado today announced that NASA has approved a grant of $117,562 for the study to be made by economists from the University of Colorado and Colorado State University.

Boulder in recent years has become a center of space activities, including educationa, industrial and governmental agencies. The National Center for Atmospheric Research, the National Bureau of Standards laboratories and CU's expansion in the physical sciences, coupled with the location of several space-age industries in Boulder, have contributed heavily to the mushroom growth of the area.

Directing the study will be Dr. William H. Miernyk, CU professor of economics and director of the Bureau of Economic Research.

Participants from Colorado State University will include E. W. Sandberg, associate professor of business administration, and Dr. Don Seastone, associate professor of economics.

Dr. Morris E. Garnsey, chairman of the CU Department of Economics, will be a consultant, and another CU staff member will be named later. Six to eight graduate students from CU and CSU also will participate.

Formal title of the study is a "socio-economic analysis of the effects of the expansion of space and space-related technological activities on selected communities."

Miernyk said the objective is "to develop a set of local accounts similar to those now used to measure economic activity for the nation as a whole. Once these accounts have been developed it will be possible to measure the impact on Boulder of the expansion of space and space-related activities in this area in recent years."

Bankers Note Banking Changes Over the Years

Lending money by crediting the borrower's account is one of the most common types of commercial banking tranactions, according to the Colorado Bankers' Association, and it pinpoints two of the most significant developments in Colorado banking over the years.

One is the phenomenal increase in the use of checking accounts — as exemplified in the preference of most commercial bank borrowers today to get their money in the form of a check or deposit credit rather than currency.

The other development is equally significant but much less familiar to the average person — namely, the ability of the modern commercial bank to create a certain amount of so-called "instant money" by a simple bookkeeping operation.

"A commercial bank borrower of the early days got currency the bank itself printed up," a CBA spokesman said. "Today you wouldn't think of asking for a loan in paper money. All the bank does now is give you a check or add the amount of the loan to your checking account," he explained, "then you're free to draw on your account and spend your 'checkbook money' as you see fit."

The bookkeeping operation consists of merely crediting the amount of money loaned to the checking account of the borrower.

What makes it so important, however, is the fact that commercial banks are thus able, by the mere act of lending, to add to the state's money supply—something no other type of bank is able to do.

Almost all of the increase in our entire nation's money supply in recent years has stemmed from this unique money creating activity of our commercial banks, making "checkbook money" by far the largest element in total U. S. Money supply, about four times the combined value of coins and paper money in circulation.

Even more significantly, payments made by coin and paper money account for only about ten percent of all payments made in this country.

Sound management and conformance to strict limits imposed by government regulations, according to the CBA spokesman, prevent commercial banks from overwriting "checkbook money." Each bank is required to keep a certain amount of reserves relative to its deposit liabilities.

"No bank can increase those liabilities unless it has enough reserves on hand to support them," he said.

The most important of the reserve requirements are those imposed by the Federal Reserve System, whose commercial bank members hold five-sixths of the country's bank deposits.

SPACE AGE SPEED — Fine timing and supersonic speeds are major considerations in the Nation's space program, but not all movements of rockets are at supersonic speeds. Sometimes they move at a snail's pace. When the 320-foot Saturn rocket leaves its stall at NASA's Merritt Island vertical launch facility for its two-mile voyage to the launch pad, it crawls at a top speed of one mile per hour. However, in flight, the Saturn will travel about 25,000 miles per hour.

CF&I Will Shut Down Plant In Buffalo, Cites Costs

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI)— The Colorado Fuel & Iron Corp. announced here it was closing its Buffalo, N.Y., plant because of foreign competition and rising labor and material costs.

CF&I President Leonard C. Rose said about 1,400 employes would be affected.

Rose said Buffalo had been losing money for years, and the losses there were the "major cause" of the firm's $5,226,000 operating loss last year.

The Buffalo plant, opened in 1906, produces principally wire and wire products. The shutdown was expected to be completed within 90 days.

Rose said the company will concentrate allits eastern division operations at its Roebling plant in New Jersey and at its Palmer plantin Massachusetts.

"Wire and wire products have been harder hit by foreign competition than most other types of steel," Rose said.

"The Buffalo plant has been severely squeeeerd between foreign competition, which has made adequate prices impossible, and rising labor and material costs, over which we have little or no control.

"As a result, despitan extensive program of planned cost reduction and plant improvement, operating losses at Buffalo have increased year afteryear."

Rose said CF&I would continue to supply a full range of wire and wire products from both its eastern and western divisions.

"By concentrating eastern manufacturing at the Roebling and Palmer plants we expect a lower cost, improved customer service, and a strengthened competitive position," he said.

The president said the closing schedule at Buffalo would be worked out on a department-by-department basis in order to provide orderly shutoown.

"CF&I plans an extensive program to assist the displaced Buffalo employes to secure other employment," he said.

"The company will work with appropriate government and private organizations, and will sponsor an advertising campaign to call attention to the available skills of Buffalo plant employes. The plant personnel department will be mobilized as a re-employment center. We hope to work closely with the United Steel Workers in carrying out this program."

Realtors Plan Breakfast at Rustic Hills

About 150 realtors are expected to accept the invitation of Realtor Board President Hugh Ingels to "come out and have breakfast" next Wednesday morning. The realtors will meet at the North Parking lot of Sky Sox Baseball Park, east of the intersection of Pikes Peak and Hancock Avenues at 7:45. They will be transported by bus to an area in the Rustic Hills Area east of Colorado Springs for a breakfast of eggs, sausage, rolls and coffee.

Besides the breakfast, the realtors will be welcomed by Bill Smartt, president of Rustic Hills, Inc., and a co-sponsor of the breakfast.

They will receive a guided bus tour of the area, which will feature the exact location of new schools, churches, commercial, industrial, and residential areas in the new 2,000 acre tract east of Colorado Springs. A commentator will be on each bus to emphasize points of interest and answer questions.

It is felt that this program will be in keeping with the "Educational Theme" type of program sponsored by the Colorado Springs Board of Realtors, Inc., whereby the general public will be benefited because their realtor is better informed.

The buses should return to Colorado Springs by 9:30. Reservation for this event should be made by calling the Realtor Board Office, 633-7718.

This program will replace the regular Wednesday morning multiple listing service breakfast normally meeting at the Embers. Paul Crozier is chairman of the group; John Steel, program chairman; and Ellen Lovitt, secretary.

Hill Climb Richest Race in World Per Mile

Despite a record $425.000 purse paid to the Indianapolis drivers last month, the richest race per mile in world today, is still the Pikes Peak Hill Climb.

To ensure getting top drivers for the 41st annual "race to the clouds" on July 4, Managing Director J. C. Agajanian has posted a purse of $12,550, plus $6,710 in accessory money, for the 12.42 mile run up 14,110 foot Pikes Peak.

Agajanian's car, with Parnelli Jones driving, collected a record $145,000 for winning the Memorial Day 500-miler.

An unusual facet of the Hill Climb, is that at no time, do the drivers ever run the full 12.42 mile race distance, except on race day. There are three days of practice, plus one of qualifying, yet at no time does a driver get to run the full course, all but .75 miles of which are uphill.

At other tracks like Indianapolis, championship mile dirt tracks, quarter and half-mile dirt and paved ovals, or sports car or road racing courses, drivers get to practice at least one or more times on the course they will run. Not on the "Hill."

The course is broken into three sections for practice; for example, the sports cars on June 28, practice from the Gravel Pit to the Summit; on June 29, from the starting line to 11-mile Water Station; and on July 1, from Glen Cove to 16-mile Post. They never cover the full course during practice runs. Qualifying is just over six miles.

Already in the fold for the world famed Independence Day race are two members of the fabulous Unser family. . ."500" veteran Bobby, six-time championship class winner from Albuquerque, N. M., and Louis J., twice stock car champion from Garden Grove, Calif.

Skyway Park Water Board Reduces Rates

At the June meeting of the Skyway Park Water Board, it was voted to reduce water rates from 40c to 30c per 100 cu. ft., effective with the July 1st billing.

The District pays the City of Colorado Springs 30c for their water, so the operating revenue for the District will be provided by tax levy and service charges only. This rescinds an increase effected on an emergency basis in March 1961.

The board would like to remind all the residents of Skyway Park that an election to consolidate the Skyway Park Water District with the Skyway Park Sanitation District will be held on Tuesday, from 2:00 to 7:00 p.m. in the all-purpose room of the Skyway Park Elementary School.

If this consolidation is approved by the electorate, it will effect a substantial saving in bookkeeping, audit fees, increase taxes to any residents. It must be legally approved by the residents and the board urges that a vote of approval be given.

If this consolidation is approved, it will be necessary to elect a board of directors for the consolidated district. Announcement of this election will be published at a later date, officials said.

70 Foreign Students Arrive for Crossroads

On Saturday 70 foreign students started arriving in Colorado Springs to take part in the Summer Crossroads program sponsored by a local committee in conjunction with the International Institute of Education and the Colorado College.

Since the State Department of the United States looks upon this program as a valuable experience for these foreign students, an unusually generous amount was allocated for travel grants this year.

As a result, many of the host families are entertaining two students so that the total number involved won't tax the capacity of the facilities.

While the largest number of students attending this year come from Europe, all parts of the globe are represented. However, at the latest report, only one student from all of Africa is in the group this year. Dr. and Mrs. Carroll Malone will entertain Adedapo Odutola of Nigeria.

Sixteen students from Asia and their hosts are: Earl Bryson, Dr. Clement L. Wisidagama, Geylon; Maj. and Mrs. J. R. Castelli, Ahmad Joudah, Gaza-Palestine; Dr. and Mrs. M. Christensen, Salim S. Pueblo Construction Co. Gets Highway Job

The Pioneer Construction Co., Pueblo, with an offer of $231,971, was the lowest of six bidders May 23 on a Colorado Department of Highways project to improve six miles of US Highway 24 from Calhan east in El Paso County.

The work will consist of grading, structures and asphaltic paving. Completion will be required within five months. Resident Engineer Van E. Williams, Pueblo, was named to supervise the project.

Payment Increase Slated for Vet Dependents

Approximately 450 children and 300 dependent parents of deceased veterans in Colorado will receive an increase of about 10 per cent in their monthly dependency and inemnity compensation payments as the result of a law recently signed by the President, E. R. Benke, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Denver, said today.

This increase is for dependent parents and children receiving payments under the Dependency and Indemnity Act, effective Jan. 1, 1957 only, and does not apply to those dependents receiving payments under previous death compensation laws, nor to those on the VA pension rolls.

The increased payments will be automatic, and will be included in the July checks mailed to reach beneficiaries about Aug. 1, 1963. There is no need to write the VA.

A child, now receiving $70 a month, will receive $77 per month under the new law, Benke pointed out. Two children, currently receiving $100 per month, will receive $110 equally divided between them. Three children, receiving $130 per month, will receive $143 per month equally divided between them.

If there are more than three children, each additional child, now receiving $25 a month, will receive $28 a month.

In the case of dependent parents living together with an annual income of less than $1,000, their present payment of $50 each will be increased to $55 each under the new law.

McCotter Buys 320-Acre Area Above Skyway Estates

A 320-acre land development owned by Drs. Wilton and Walter Cogswell, the Dr. Kenneth Cogswell estate, Wilbur Hanes and Gov. John Love was purchased last week by Max E. McCotter of 921 N. Farragut Ave.

The acreage embraces more than 100 foothill homesites, each consisting of two to four acres, which McCotter said, "offers gracious mountain living with unsurpassed scenery in all directions. Point Sublime on the Goldcamp Road is located on the property, which is situated northwest of Broadmoor and directly above Skyway Estates.

The most distant home site is less than 10 minutes from the Colorado Springs Postoffice.

The amount involved in the transaction was not announced.

At present there are six new homes on the property and several others are under construction.

"Nearly everyone in the area prefers to leave the colorful, natural beauty of the mountain flowers, scrub oak and pine trees instead of replacing them with expensive labor demanding water-consuming lawns," McCotter said.

Roads have been built thru the area, and water, telephone service, gas and electricity are available. Additional extensions will be completed soon.

McCotter said he plans to continue to develop and sell some sites as well as to sell tracts to builders.

"Home sites in this beautiful acreage have the unusual advantage of being situated in the mountain foothills and at the same time overlook the attractive Broadmoor area to the south, the entire city of Colorado Springs and the plains stretching to the east as well as the colorful Garden of the Gods to the north," McCotter said.

McCotter came to Colorado Springs in 1955 from Ranger, Tex., and bought the Miller Music Co., 114 E. Pikes Peak Ave., from George L. Miller, who opened his first music store in 1919.

He has sold the music company to Kenneth Long, who has been associated with the Miller Music Co. for the last year. Long was in the retail drug business in St. Louis before coming to Colorado Springs, and engaged in home development after coming here. Later he organized K and L Sales Co.

McCotter said his sons, William M. and James D. McCotter, will be associated with him in the new land development.

McCotter still engages in oil production in Texas.

Federal Financing Of Education

Sooner or later something is going to have to be determined respecting the flow of federal funds into institutions of higher learning.

In practice, an ever larger portion of the total number of dollars available in federal coffers is being channeled into colleges and universities.

Whether this is a correct procedure, or even a useful one, is going to have to be resolved.

The question tends to become confused with political aims and objectives and as such furnishes uncertain footing for those who wish to examine the matter seriously. But if we can divorce it, at least momentarily, from any kind of argumentation which might flow from those in political office who stand to gain by the process, or even from those in the educational edifice itself who also stand to gain, we might be able to arrive at a relatively objective island of calm somewhere between the entrenched interests on the one hand, and national sanity on the other.

In February of this year, McGeorge Bundy provided an excellent study on the subject of "The Blessing That Is Federal Aid," which was published in the Alumni Weekly. As the former dean of the Harvard Faculty of Arts and Sciences, Dr. Bundy sought to paint a rather moving and dramatic picture of the unending achievements which have become possible since the ending of World War II when the Washington bureaucracy began to squeeze the tubes of vivid and indelible colors relating to education and to etch them firmly into the kaleidoscopic patterns of American life.

We had expected that other scholars of Dr. Bundy's eminence would come forward to offer a firm challenge to his principal points and then that the issue, having obtained a respectable pro and con stating, would remain suspended in mid-air, like so many other items struggling for resolution.

But it appears that the gravity of the situation will not permit any extensive ideological levitation, and that something is going to have to be said pretty soon or what appeared first as an issue will end as gospel.

To our dismay, President Robert F. Goheen of Princeton has now released the official view from that private institution which supports Dr. Bundy's major postulates. Additionally, there has been a spate of articles from miscellaneous sources all of which tend to tip the balance in favor of federal financing of education.

Thus, even tho we omit the vast and politically weighted contentions of such bodies as the National Education Association, the American Association of University Women, and kindred groups, we come face to face with the fact that the American Academic Community itself has received such monstrous doses of the serum of subsidy that it is a little giddy from the process.

It is thus possible that the firm and objective view we normally expect from the fountains of higher criticism may no longer be available.

Might we timidly suggest that even Atlas sought a cushion for his shoulders?

It is conceivable that even so exalted an institution as Princeton might develop a taste for dollars which could alter its views, at least in matters of emphasis, and cause it to act in its own dollar interest as opposed to its presumed and oft-reiterated "balance" between "needed research" and scholarship.

We propose to discuss this subject in ensuing articles, basing our discussion primarily on President Goheen's report to the Princeton alumni respecting federal financing.

Big Function

A big function of the government has always been to provide jobs for the friends of the leading politicians.

The Case for Federal Support

McGeorge Bundy and Robert F. Goheen have agreed. They unite in saying that as a result of federal financing made available to institutions of higher learning, the nation's security, health and technological capacity have been greatly benefitted.

The major points which are offered in favor of federal financing to such institutions as Harvard or Princeton (we are concerning ourselves primarily with Princeton at this time) appear to be as follows:

1. Government fund support of the basic sciences and in certain specialized scientific channels has enormously enhanced research potential in colleges and universities; has increased the total fund of knowledge; is helping to turn out thoroly competent men in a number of important fields.

2. When this support to basic science or to science in general is balanced by "institutional self-discipline," no harm to the general climate of scholasticism results.

3. Federal aid to institutions of higher education is not new. It began with the granting of exemption from real estate taxes and from the placing of grants to colleges and universities in a tax-exempt status for purposes of the Internal Revenue Service.

4. Most of the federal financing going to universities and colleges has been specific grants for specific research. In this respect, there is an apparent similarity between any other government contract with any other private firm manufacturing some product the government wishes to order.

5. The granting of federal money has not brought on any apparent increase in the anticipated tendency of the government to interfere with local management.

6. In spite of federal money available in certain departments, sound management has prevented excessive emphasis upon those departments with a corresponding de-emphasis in other places. This is, however, a recurring problem.

7. Schools which are well managed are freer institutions today because of their access to federal funds than they were heretofore.

As a climax to these seven points we might well quote from President Goheen's report. He says: "In acknowledging this, we properly recognize that the American people — if not the whole free world — are the ultimate beneficiaries of the research and graduate education federal agencies sponsor at Princeton. The relationship is a two-way street. Indeed, governmental expenditures could not be justified if it were not so. For ourselves we do right, I think, to regard it as simply a new facet of an old tradition here: Princeton in the Nation's Service."

Each of the above points is well argued. Indeed, so thorough is the presentation of thoughtful reasoning in each case that there is almost a temptation to throw up the hands and with it the opposition.

But we are going to attempt to mount a defense for educational support that is purely private and independent, tho our ranks be thin. And to begin with, we would like to point out that with the possible exception of the tax-exemption issue, which we will deal with separately, federal financing of higher institutions is new and virtually revolutionary in its newness insofar as supposedly private institutions of higher learning are concerned.

For many years there has been far more federal support of primary and secondary learning processes. In this respect, a major difference emerges between education thru high school and education beyond high school.

ROBERT ALLEN

Allen-Scott Report

Senators Rebel at Job Juggling

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — White House knuckles are still smarting from a rough rapping in a bald job grab that was stopped cold in its tracks.

The knuckle rappers are Alaska's Senators Ernest Gruening and E. L. Bartlett. While liberal Democrats who usually support the administration, in this instance they angrily reared back and thoroughly upset the applecart.

Details of this backstage affair that proved so discomfitting to the White House are as follows:

Assistant Interior Secretary John Carver Jr. informed Gruening that the Office of Trust Territory, which administers the Saipan and Mariana islands in the Pacific, was to be shifted from the Interior Department to the National Security Agency.

Gruening, director of the Division of Territories and Island Possessions in the Roosevelt Administration, was astounded. That just didn't make sense to him.

The security agency has no administrative functions. It operates directly under the White House, and is a highly secret intelligence agency whose primary sphere is communications. Putting the Saipan and Mariana islands under NSA patently was a cover-up to pull off something else.

That undercover objective, Gruening immediately concluded, was getting rid of M. W. Goding, high commissioner of the Trust Territory.

In other words, the proposed shift was a covert White House job grab.

Goding is an Alaskan. Earlier this year he was highly praised by Interior and Navy officials for outstanding work. Notwithstanding that, the White House apparently had decided to give his job to someone else.

THE BOOMERANG

Senator Gruening wrothily exploded.

Summoning Bartlett to his office, Gruening caustically berated Carver for "condoning this kind of shabby deal." Strongly backed by Bartlett, Gruening declared he was shocked that Interior Secretary Stewart Udall would "permit his department to be kicked around in this manner."

"Who and what's behind this?" demanded Gruening.

"The White House," replied Carver.

"Who in the White House?" pressed Gruening.

The assistant interior secretary ducked that one. He indicated he was acting under orders and had not been told what it was all about.

"Well, you go back and tell Mr. Udall and the White House that I will fight this to the bitter end," Gruening declared grimly. "It's an outrage and I do not propose to stand for it. There is absolutely no justification for it that I can imagine, other than a slick attempt to get rid of Goding and give his job to someone else.

"But I can tell you that the White House won't get away with it. I will not only fight this to the limit, but I'll challenge the administration on a lot of other things, too. If the White House is looking for trouble, they'll find they'll get plenty."

"That goes for me, too," added Bartlett. "I agree with everything Ernest has said. We're not going to stand for this, and you tell the White House that. Don't try to gloss it over. We mean what we say. We are outraged and we want the White House to know it."

Carver earnestly assured the irate senators their message would be delivered. Apparently it was.

Several days later they were notified the job grab had been dropped.

SOCIAL WHIRL

Despite President De Gaulle's sharp differences with President Kennedy, the French leader will come to the U.S. within a year. He will return the President's visit to Paris in 1961. That's what Foreign Minister Couve de Murville told the President in their talk last Saturday. No date for De Gaulle's trip was indicated, but it will be either in the fall or next spring depending on the "political atmosphere" between the two countries. . . Meanwhile French Ambassador Herve Alphand and his beauteous wife are entertaining more frequently and lavishly than ever apparently to make up for the coolness between De Gaulle and Kennedy. Latest Alphand social spectacular was lending the beautiful and spacious French embassy for a benefit for the Opera Society of Washington. The Alphands allowed the society to give its annual fund-raising ball in their embassy, with the result that a sell-out throng of more than 650 prominent guests attended.

Chief of Naval Operations George Anderson, retiring in August to become ambassador to Portugal, is preparing for his new diplomatic career in a lavish manner. With his wife, the admiral is giving a series of garden parties with all the trimmings, including large green marquees and the Navy Band. . . The State Department has been forced to take a drastic step to preserve the costly rugs in its ornate Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson and John Quincy Adams reception chambers. The stiletto-type heels of women's shoes may be very chic, but they are playing hob with the fibers in the rugs; so much so that the rugs will soon have to be replaced — and that will run into considerable money. So henceforth, the department is limiting entertainment in these beautiful rooms to "official" affairs, and diverting other events to uncarpeted chambers. That's why the 700 members of the Naval Officers' Wives Club held their champagne brunch in one of the department's elegant but uncarpeted reception rooms.

Why Fight a Losing Battle

By G. BOARDMAN, Ph.D.

My mail reflects the attitudes and beliefs and hopes and even the aspirations of letter writers who live in many sections of the country. While the majority of the writers provide me with encouragement, there are many who obviously have decided to accept the status quo. For some reason or another, letter writers in this category continually argue about the validity of social security. Obviously, they either intend to ask for the social security dole or they are recipients of social security now. Generally, these are the people who tell me social security has gone so far there's no turning back and they castigate me for continuing to fight what they believe to be a losing battle.

The hirelings we employ to run errands in the social security organization are less than sure of their jobs. They sell and pitch and preach the joys and wonders of the dole at every possible opportunity. Some of their drivel goes like this: "Monthly old age, survivors and disability insurance benefits in Mohave County now top $74,000, Ray Ruthenberg, district manager of social security, said today on releasing his annual county benefit data report." After reporting a 12 per cent increase in payments, the district manager stated, "This money stimulates county business: most of it is spent for food, clothing and shelter. There is no longer any doubt social security benefits are helping to stabilize the income and spending power of many residents in Mohave County." He then goes on to urge people to get on the social security bandwagon because he's sure many new recipients can be found. He's afraid he may be missing a few customers who either don't know they are eligible or don't want any part of it. As of January 1, 1963, more than 18 million recipients were receiving this handout at the rate of $1.4 billion tax dollars each and every month.

Now, let's get this straight. I'm not fighting with those 18 million people. If they can stand to be on the dole, that's their business. I am fighting for my right to refuse to support this dole!

I am fully aware of the operation of the social security system. I believe it is one of the dirtiest of the dirty skin games legislated into law by hypocritical law makers. During the last several years prior to withdrawing from the big city market place, I was compelled to part with some of my earnings to satisfy the insatiable hunger of giant government. There is nothing voluntary about the tax which must be paid on social security and don't ever forget this, it is an excise tax on earnings, it is not a payment on insurance.

In my opinion, when the so-called district manager of social security refers to "monthly old age, survivors and disability insurance benefits," he is guilty of false advertising. Insurance is a system of protection against loss in which a number of people AGREE to pay certain sums for a guarantee they will be compensated for any specified loss by fire or theft, death, accident or other insurable losses.

Social security taxes are not based upon agreement by the taxpayers and there is NO guarantee of compensation since the law can be repealed and there is no guarantee of the compensation to be paid in connection with time and specific amount. In addition, citizens other than the insured, using the word carelessly, are compelled to pay excise taxes into a fund which is not actually a fund in any true sense of the word, except that all such taxes are paid into a general fund. Social security IS socialism and every recipient is patronizing and sanctioning socialism. Every representative and senator who votes for appropriations for the social security administration is voting for the support of socialism, no matter how much you'd like to confuse yourself.

I do not criticize you for paying into this scheme or for collecting what you can from it but I will continue to resist your demands that I be compelled to sanction what I believe is gross immorality and I will continue to fight against it with every lawful means at hand.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

These Days

Railroads Can Dream, Can't They?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The other day, sitting in the office of a man who is responsible for making rate studies for one of the big eastern railroads, I was shown a map of transportation routes reaching from Minnesota and northern Michigan down into the Pittsburgh region of the United States. Toward the top side of the map there were lines representing the "pathway of the lakes." For two-thirds of the year great ore boats carry cargoes of iron ore from Duluth and other Lake Superior ports to steel company dock sidings in Cleveland, Conneaut and other Ohio cities and to places in the Chicago and Detroit areas. But for a third of the year, roughly speaking, ice in the lakes keeps the ore boats from moving.

To the south of the lakes, the map carried lines representing railroads. Over these lines freight trains can move the year around. Yet it has always been cheaper for the steel companies to rely on the pathway of the lakes for the transportation of iron ore. Eight months of water, plus storage of inventories of ore, has been worth more to the steel manufacturers than twelve months of rail.

The man in charge of rate studies had no intention of giving me an academic lesson in certain long-existing facts of geography and climate. His mind was on the future. The point he wanted to establish is that the technological knowledge exists which can be used to make bulk railroad transportation of iron ore from Minnesota and northern Michigan cheaper than the water-borne alternative.

DESIGNED

The miracle-working technology is, to date, limited to the drawing board. But big "integral" bulk-carrying trains are already being designed to carry 25,000 tons of coal at a whack from strip mines to big electric power generating plants, and there is no reason why the same trains could not be used to carry iron ore. With 250 cars in a given train moving from Minnesota iron mine sidings to steel mills in Youngstown or Pittsburgh, the Great Lakes ore boat, according to the man in charge of rate studies, could easily become an anachronism even in the seasons when the lake routes are clear of ice.

The 250-car ore carrying train is known to railroad men as the "Kauffeld Concept," so-called because of the Manhattan Engineering Company that has offered designs of its several possibilities. The plans that railroad men are now pondering emphasize electronically-controlled trains that will never stop moving except for reasons of maintenance or fueling. They will pick up their cargo while still in motion, and when they have reached their destination they will dump the ore by push-button devices that will turn hoppers over on one side or upside down as the diesels draw the trains past a given point.

After demonstrating his dream, however, the man in charge of rate making returned abruptly to the world of vested interests as it exists today. For one thing, the "Kauffeld Concept" would have to be sold to steel companies that have big investments in ore-carrying fleets and in dock sidings. Since no progressive American corporation ever resists scrapping equipment for very long if savings can be made thereby, the business of convincing the steel companies would not be an insuperable obstacle in itself.

MORTMAIN

But beyond this, there are the cities that would be involved. And there is that moss-encrusted federal regulatory agencies, the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The I.C.C. was originally set up to protect primary producers at one end of the economic process and the consumer at the other. But it has long since lost its pristine reason for being. Today it exists for a whole host of reasons that are often wildly contradictory. In one place it tries to keep interstate minimum rates high enough to enable trucks, barges and the railroads themselves to share an existing traffic with no reference to the ultimate consumers' need for cheapness. In another place the I.C.C. favors one method of transportation over another. In still another place, it tries to protect a given community from yielding a status quo advantage over its neighbor.

The new concept of transportation that might result in changes in the patterns of iron ore movement from Minnesota to Pennsylvania is at the mercy of something set by Congress way back in 1887. The I.C.C. is today a prime example of mortmain, or the "dead hand."

The Old Mountaineer

Thoughts by The Wayside

By FRANK McDONOUGH JR.

A recent casual visitor tagged the President with the appellation of "Hopalong" Kennedy. He assured us that this nickname had nothing whatever to do with the physical being because, as we all know, the President walks and otherwise carries himself with true naval precision. The name Hopalong Kennedy seemed to fit only his mental and political acrobatics. Instead of the usual two steps forward and only one step backward, which of course insures forward progress, he has been inclined to take two steps backward, and one step to either side, which gives the distinct impression of hopping along in a wavering manner which would not befit a well ordered game of hopscotch. When the Cuban situation became a too hot potato he suddenly hopped into the midst of far distant crises in other parts of the world such as Laos and Viet Nam. These crises in far off places seem to arise at will to take our minds off more serious situations at our doorstep. He almost tripped over the Dominican-Haitian imbroglio, but to show how firm and brave we could be on occasion, the Caribbean fleet, with full complement of marines, converged on the unfortunate little island. Betcha we could lick Haiti and San Domingo together with one hand tied behind our back. Far be it from us to allow a stepping stone from this little land for the communists to infiltrate into Latin American nations.

This casual visitor also had a nickname for brother Robert. He called him Runaround Kennedy because he was constantly running around from his office to the White House or to the sovereign states of Mississippi and Alabama. As a declared heir-apparent to the throne, Runaround has taken full charge of the army as tho he were titular head of our nation, has taken jurisdiction over state institutions of learning, has run around after the Negro vote (forgetting that perhaps white folks also have some rights of assemblage and privacy), and he has especially run around Mr. Hoffa, whom he had sworn to annihilate. Runaround Robert seems to be a good name for him, altho he is getting somewhat wearisome to the rank and file of citizens.

The third, and probably the most powerful, arm of our present government, the State Department, came up for discussion. Our visitor mentioned in passing that he had a mind to call this the Alger Club after a convicted perjurer who formerly was a member of the department and palsy-walsy with many of the present members. On deeper thought our visitor said that he had decided to apply a generic term to the whole department and call it Fairyland. That sounded quite applicable and had widespread connotations with numerous variant meanings. There are fairies who are images of childhood and float in the air and skip over the greensward. There are other fairies with whom the ordinary decent person would not care to associate, but they exist and are definitely catalogued. Still other fairies are mere impractical dreamers of dreams and the fairyland woods are full of them. No doubt there are some safe, sane and sound American folks among this motley crew, but their strength seems to be negligible. There are plenty of red fairies, and pink ones, and others who are card carrying or fellow travellers.

Altho our little group of loyal citizens has no legislative power, someone made a motion, which was unanimously carried, that the entire State Department be wiped out from top to bottom. Of course, there would be some salvage of good Americans, but most of the mob would have to go on governmental relief. It was suggested that the entire department be replaced with men who looked like Americans, dressed like Americans, talked like Americans and, above all, thought like Americans. A suggested commission to replace the entire personnel of the State Department might well be composed of Rev. Bob Richards, General MacArthur, Jackie Robinson, John Glenn, Barry Goldwater and Harry Byrd of Virginia. They could well select a new and All-American State Department.

As so often happens these days among living room groups, the question arose as to just who is running our government these days. If it is Hopalong Jack, he is doing so in a way to remind one of the childhood game of hopscotch. His policies and actions in southeast Asia and Cuba are diametrically opposed and incapable of being harmonized. While fighting the communists with daily loss of life to our armed forces, he permits the complete taking over of Cuba. His public speeches first stated that we were examining the situation, that we were studying it, that we had it under control, and now we are told that communism having taken over the island, we shall "contain" communism to that island. What he means is that we have handed over to Russia the most strategic piece of land in the world, and on the face of it this has been either deliberate or thru negligent leadership.

Some folks seem to think that Runaround Robert is the head man of our government. This one-lawsuit attorney general manipulates the army at will, invades sovereign states, runs local school boards, and is considerably more prominent around the White House than his older brother. Perhaps after all it is the denizens of Fairyland who actually tell us when to sow, when to reap, when to be informed or when to be kept in ignorance, when to fight and when to surrender to the Reds. This is not lese majesty; it is a statement of cold hard facts. The hammer and sickle is slowly cutting us down to certain serfdom, and there are plenty of shovels in our midst to help bury the corpse.

Nation's Press

Yes, but What Kind Of Tax Cut

From The Wall Street Journal

Everybody — Well, nearly everybody — seems to agree that taxes are too much with us. And that we should lighten the burden to get the country going again. On this point it's hard to tell a liberal from a conservative without a program.

In fact, the liberals are telling us we don't even have to worry about the government deficit. The tax cuts will spur savings, pump new capital into business, set the wheels humming. Thus the government will get more revenue from lower taxes.

And so it might. Still, we wonder if the people, and particularly the liberal politicians, are really ready to recognize the kind of taxes that are the true constrictions on savings, capital accumulation and economic progress. To admit them, and remove them, would require the abandonment of a generation of liberal shibboleths.

For example, no less weighty a voice than Professor Dan Throop Smith of Harvard says that the most obvious tax depressant on capital formation is the progressive income tax itself.

Quite apart from any discouragement on initiative, income taxes discourage savings because they treat consumption and savings equally — that is, your tax is the same whether you spend the money in riotous living or whether you save and make a contribution to the future economic growth of the country. Moreover, the highly progressive rates especially restrict the amount of savings by falling most heavily on those incomes from which come the greatest savings.

So if the objective is good economics and not merely good politics, income taxes should be pared down and replaced by some sort of expenditure tax. And in cutting income tax rates, the biggest cuts should be made in the highest rates.

And if the objective is to halt the depletion of the nation's supply of capital, what of the inheritance and estate taxes? As Professor Smith points out, with a large estate tax, even a saving of all the net income from an estate for a generation might not restore the original capital sum. The redistribution of wealth by this kind of taxation, which is the political objective, is achieved only by reducing the total of the wealth of the nation.

The same is true of the capital gains tax applied against any shift in investments. A long-time investor in General Motors can shift his capital to another enterprise only by realizing the capital, because the capital gains tax takes away up to a quarter of the principal. The unfairness of this has long been argued. What has been too little noticed is the depletion it causes in the nation's total capital resources.

Equally unnoticed has been one especially adverse effect of the corporation profits tax as a drag against more efficient economic activity. The efficient, of course, pay heavily on their profits, with a reduction in their net return. The marginal producer pays less; nothing if he is sufficiently inefficient as to make no profits. The effect of this, Professor Smith notes, is to slowly shift the control of more of the nation's resources into the hands of the less efficient producers and managers.

The mere listing of a few of these simple and obvious ways in which our tax system does indeed burden the economy is enough to raise some wonder about the kind of tax changes that will actually be forthcoming.

For these oppressive weights on the economy — heavy death duties, high rates on high income, the capital gains levy — did not happen accidentally. They came in obedience to the sociological doctrine that the "rich" should be leveled, and the political belief that it's profitable to soak the "rich." The rich, of course, are anyone who earns more than you do.

Now if the Congress would in fact junk this economic and political philosophy, admitting it to be the true evil that it is, and throw overboard these plain burdens upon our economic growth, then there would be some hope that cutting tax rates might deliver the promises. The burst of new energy from the release of these constrictions might even overcome the government's heavy spending.

But is this what the President will propose, and Congress adopt? Some major reductions where they are most needed, in the upper income brackets? Rules to permit capital shifting without capital shrinkage? A recognition that death taxes ought not to destroy capital accumulation?

Or will the upshot, when all the talking is over, be nothing more than a sop to this idea of unchanging the economy while the real emphasis is on cuts in lower-income brackets, leaving the real economic burdens almost as heavy as before? If so, it will also leave the deficit bigger and make the injury worse.

All this unanimity about cutting tax burdens is fine. But the question remains, such as which?

CHORALE CRITIQUE

To the Editor:

Mr. Fetler's somewhat waspish review of May 28 seems to have stirred the musical corpuscles of at least two of your readers.

This is good. This is what critics exist for (now you know).

When we criticize, it is because we know that the thing, person, (goverament?) performance, could be better.

We don't criticize a child; we correct it. We criticize an adult; he knows and can do better.

The chorale has done — and can do — better. This is how I interpret Mr. Fetler.

Reader Eisen is indignant, to put it mildly, but how graciously Mrs. Marie Gardner accepts the review. And how true is the need for a really fine choral group, and this town of ours HAS the singers to make such a group possible.

I am certain that Mr. Fetler and other reviewers would be more kind and glove the mailed fist if all our musical directors would demand more, much more, from our musicians — and they'd get it, too.

But let us keep trying, that we can sing with the poet, "Go, song of mine, and break the harness of the heart of man."

FREEDOM OF PRESS

the journalism instructor tells us freedom of the press was not established with this case.

"However, neither in New York nor in Great Britain did the Zenger case gain ready acceptance as a binding legal precedent. The verdict had no effect whatsoever on the law of the land. . .

"The New York constitution of 1777 failed to contain a provision for safeguarding freedom of the press. (Nine other states as well as the federal Bill of Rights did make such provision, however). . .

"At long last two pre-eminent New Yorkers, James Kent and Alexander Hamilton, fashioned a legal cubic for freedom of the press following the Cromwell case in 1802. This principle was upheld by the state legislature in 1805 and incorporated into the constitution of 1821 and 1845."—Morris, Richard B., Fair Trial. Alfred A. Knopf, New York, 1963.

The instructor here also teaches we do not have freedom of the press today. He does not say the government is always right.

I like your paper and editorials.

Editor's note: Actually freedom of the press began at an earlier date than that of the famous Zenger trial. During the reign of Queen Anne in Britain, some relaxing of general censorship has been noted by historians.

However, the Zenger case advanced the cause of freedom of the press enormously.

We would agree with the instructor at Port Huron Junior College that we still do not have complete freedom of the press.

We would add that recent evidence of the "management" of news by federal bureaucrats is not encouraging.

The Meditation Room

By RUSSELL KIRK

In the glass-and-aluminum skyscraper of the United Nations Building, called by some "the tombstone on the East River," is a Meditation Room. When first I knew that spot, a great African log served as a kind of altar in the middle of that chamber. But perhaps it looked too much like a pagan fetish, for it is gone now.

In its place is a vast lump of iron. To this, the late Robert Frost referred in a little poem called "The Sage" — this "purest iron ore at the United Nations in the room for meditation on Tools and Weapons.

"Nature within her inmost self divides
To trouble men with having to take sides."

As Frost implied, in such a room one can meditate only on tools and weapons; for God is not made of iron. And the nations are not united, for union can come only from agreement upon the truth.

Your servant is put in mind of all this by a pamphlet recently issued by our Department of State (Publication No. 7442, obtainable from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25). It is called "You and the United Nations," and it purports to explain to the citizen of these United States the various functions of the U.N.O. and the relationship of that body to the United States. It does little of the sort; on the contrary, this is a propaganda-piece of a particularly blatant character. Some of the cooler heads in the State Department now are willing to concede that the U.N.O. has been oversold in the United States, and that our citizenry expects too much of that organization. Some influential senators, too, have said or hinted as much.

But these prudent counsels are not to be found in this propaganda-pamphlet. The U.N.O. is represented as perfect — and apparently, like the laws of the Medes and the Persians, immutable. All the starry-eyed idealism of the charter days at San Francisco are to be found here; and all the excesses and failures of the organization are ommitted. The assault on Katanga — a flagrant violation of the U. N. Charter's own prohibition against interference in the internal affairs of states — is conspicuous by its never being mentioned. One has stuffed down his throat all the cliches about "the moral force of world opinion," "the collective conscience of mankind," "the best hope of humanity." One is left to conclude that our State Department is a mere auxiliary to the U.N.O.

I like especially the pamphlet's passage on the Meditation Room. "The iron ore. . . symbolizes the qualities of timelessness and strength. The late Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold called the Meditation Room 'a room of stillness, where nothing intrudes on those who wish to find stillness.'"

Just so. But if one wishes to find a principle of union? Or wisdom? Or truth? Or even God? The U.N.O., however, rests content with being "the collective conscience of mankind." Who needs God? We already have a secretary-general.

Drugs Impair Driving Ability Council Warns

The Colorado Highway Safety Council asks you to think twice about driving while under the influence of a drug, because even those mild enough to be sold without prescription, can produce side effects which impair driving ability.

Effects may vary in intensity with the user, but any degree of drowsiness, dulled senses, or slowed reaction time will cause nothing but harm on the highway.

Many preparations carry a warning about this on the label. Don't take it lightly. Operating a car safely requires maximum alertness. Be sure that you have it when you drive.

Carson Youth Recovering From Strange Paralysis

Two months ago Mike Tracy of Ft. Carson was felled by a mysterious paralysis and rushed to Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver. Today he's on a light-duty summer job at the Ft. Carson Officers Club.

In those two months the 17-year-old youth managed to complete his requirements for graduation from Fountain-Ft. Carson High School and progress from his back to a wheelchair then crutches and a cane.

He was put on outpatient status from the Ft. Carson U. S. Army Hospital on June 1 returning for April and was paralyzed from a supervised physical training three days weekly.

His father, Major Donald Tracy, Ft. Carson adjutant general, feels that the "wonderful treatment" his oldest son received in the two Army hospitals and his will to recover were the vital factors in the quick recovery.

One of his physicians at Fitzsimons commented that he had never seen the rare case take the course it did. Tracy's physical therapist calls Mike his first miracle case.

The 17-year-old became ill in disease diagnosed as epidural abcess of the spine. Presumed cause was a bacteriological blood infection. It was traced to an infection on his ankle bone, perhaps caused by the chafing of a track shoe.

Young Tracy was in surgery a week later at Fitzsimons. The operation to remove the abcess took 191 stitches to close the incision the full length of his spine.

On April 25 he was removed from the critical list and on April 28 resumed studying with two tutors assigned by the State Board of Education. Early in May he received permission to attend his senior prom in a wheelchair. On May 18 he graduated to crutches and on May 25 to a cane.

This high school athlete and journalist has one of the service academies as first choice for college. But physical therapy is a close second as a result of his past two months experience.

Noted Artists Added to CC Summer Concert

Two internationally noted musical artists will be added to the 29th annual summer concert series at Colorado College, it was announced today by Dr. Max Lanner of the College.

The series of six concerts will begin June 28.

These concerts have become a cultural tradition for Colorado Springs and represent the best music here during the summer season.

Under the musical direction of Max Lanner, noted pianist and Head of the music department, the programs will feature the artist teachers of the music faculty in masterpieces of the chambermusic literature. The concerts will again be given at the Fine Arts Center Auditorium.

The intimate setting of this place is ideally suited for this music, with all seats in the auditorium permitting fine acoustical and visual contact with the performers, Lanner said.

Two new artists of international reputation will be introduced to the public this summer: Abraham Skernick, solo-violist of the famous Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, and Leslie Parnas, concert cellist under the exclusive managemento f Hurok Attractions and winner of the most coveted cello prizes: the Casals Prize, Paris 1957, and the Tchaikovsky competiaions, Moscow 1962. Giorgio Ciompi, Head of the String Department, Cleveland Institute of Music, and violinist of the celebrated Albeneri Trio, will return as first violinist of the ensemble and Max Lanner will again be the pianist of the group. Guest artists will be announced with the individual programs.

Classic, romantic and contemporary composers will be represented on the series and each of the fine artists will be featured in a major work for his own instrument.

Season tickets for the whole series can now be secured from the music department by mail order. Only a limited number of single tickets will be available on the evening box office before each concert. For information call 634-7744, Ext. 324.

Sergeant's Desire to See AFA Comes True

One of the happiest and proudest men in Colorado Springs these days is a Royal Air Force flight sergeant.

He is Evan R. Davies, an air wireless fitter, whose home base is RAF Sealand, Cheshire, England, near Liverpool.

Davies is in Colorado Springs, thanks to a lot of planning and arranging on the part of ex-Mayor William C. Henderson and C. Roy Siemon, a Canadian who is deputy commander of the North American Air Defense Command.

One of the main purposes of his visit was to see the Falcon Stadium at the Air Force Academy. He saw it Thursday and thought it was "tremendous."

He got an added treat Wednesday because less than an hour after his arrival at Peterson Field he got a close look at President Kennedy, who came to Colorado Springs to attend graduation exercises at the Academy.

the 42-year-old flight sergeant who holds the "Purple Star" decoration for service against the Japanese, started things when he was prompted to write to Henderson Oct. 23, 1962, after he had heard dedication ceremonies for the new Falcon Stadium at the Air Force Academy broadcast by the Armed Forces Network from a radio station in Munich, Germany.

Davies said in his letter that he was highly impressed that American people were willing to "give" such a magnificent stadium to a "very worthy defense force." He also said in his letter that he would certainly see the stadium if he ever had the chance to visit America.

Henderson, who was then mayor, felt that it would be an international good will gesture if Davies could visit Colorado Springs.

"If it could be accomplished," Henderson said, "it would certainly portray democracy in action."

And Davies agreed after arriving in Colorado Springs. "It is a rare thing, indeed, for someone like me to get the VIP treatment."

He got the VIP treatment in deluxe style, too, because he flew to the United States in a plane carrying Hugh Frazer, Secretary of State for Air for Great Britain, who attended the Air Force Academy graduation and had official business at NORAD.

But after the mayor got the initial letter from Davies, Henderson sent him a copy of the Falcon Stadium dedication program, which included a full page picture of President Knnedy.

He also explained to him that Colorado Springs was the home of NORAD and that members of the Royal Air Force were frequently in and out of the command.

Not long after that, Henderson received a charcoal portrait of President Kennedy from Davies, who is an accomplished artist. It was Davies way of thanking Henderson for the interest he had taken. The picture was intended for Henderson's office.

The ex-mayor felt, however, that the picture should be more appropriately presented to the Air Force Academy.

Such a presentation was made Thursday to Col. M. L. Martin, director of athletics at the Academy. The portrait will be hung in the stadium with an appropriate plaque.

During last winter, there was considerable communication between Henderson and Davies, all aimed at attempting to arrange a trip for the flight sergeant to the United States.

Some of the letters from Henderson were shown by Davies to his commanding officer in England. Davies was advised that appropriate leave could be granted —if the transportation problem could be solved.

It was then that Henderson got in touch with Siemon. "I was convinced that the sergeant was the type of person who could add something to a better understanding between our Air Forces."

"Additionally," the ex-mayor said, "I felt it was a good international relations type thing, a sort of a grass roots, people-to-people project."

Henderson said Siemon agreed and willingly contacted the appropriate personnel in the Royal Air Force.

It wasn't long before the job was accomplished. The British press made much to do when the career airman departed for the United States in the same plane with the distinguished Frazer.

During his stay in Colorado Springs, Davies will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, 1229 N. Union Blvd. He will leave the Pikes Peak region next Tuesday and fly to Patrick Air Force Base in Florida, then leave from England next Friday.

"This is a great thing," Davies said when he got his first look at Falcon Stadium. "It is a public monument to your great Air Force. It is a public demonstration that the people are 100 per cent behind this brand of the service."

Several times he expressed amazement that Americans would contribute so generously thru the Air Force Foundation in order that the stadium could be built.

He was also impressed by the size of the Academy, which includes 17,900 acres of land. "This would be a fantastic amount of land in England, where a good sized farm is only five or six acres."

Next to the stadium, the flight sergeant was probably most impressed with the chapel, "which has caught the imagination of the people in England."

When his English friends learned he was going to visit the Academy, most of them made him promise to give a detailed account of the magnificent edifice upon his return. "I shall probably have to go on a speaking tour," he indicated with good humor. "It is simply magnificent," he said after he had seen both the inside and outside of the structure.

Davies also got a look at practically every building in the main academic complex. He also met and talked with some of the cadets.

"Pretty wonderful people—Americans," he said after being in Colorado Springs slightly more than a day.

"Everyone here makes you feel so welcome, and they go out of their way to do things for you," Davies said. He added that this was quite different from the impression the British people get of Americans from observing tourists and watching American television programs.

Davies has been in the service of the Royal Air Force since he was 18. He hopes to serve another 15 years, on top of the 24 already served.

The sergeant's wife, Alice, is an ex-member of the Women's RAF. They have two children, Madelin, 14, and Andrew, 5.

In the next few days, Davies said, Henderson should receive an oil portrait done in color of the ex-mayor. The portrait was done before the sergeant had ever seen a portrait of Henderson but even so indicated it should prove to be an amazing likeness.

"Just from reading his letters, I could have picked Mr. Henderson out of a crowd here in Colorado Springs," he said, which is an amazing bit of extra-sensory perception. He worked on the portrait for five days during a leave period. Davies conceived Henderson's likeness just from reading his letters.

"He is a most extradordinary person," the flight sergeant said.

"That would apply more appropriately in the vice versa," Henderson said.

Stock Market Registers First Loss in 14 Weeks

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market this week registered its first clear-cut loss in 14 weeks. Volume was the year's heaviest.

The Dow Jones industrial average came close to matching the historic closing high of 734.91 reached on Dec. 13, 1961, then retreated.

"The downturn was not surprising, since the market has been obviously struggling in the heavy supply zone just below the all-time high in the Dow industrials," said Bache & Co., the nation's second largest brokerage house.

In day-to-day trading, gainers outnumbered losers only on Monday. Losses in the averages were small every day but the market was obviously having trouble digesting the amount of stock available for sale at the relatively high level prevailing.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended the week with a loss of 4.55 at 722.41. The 2 p.m. reading on Wednesday was 730.73 but by the time that session ended the average was down to 725.55-93.

Chrysler, which has been the dominant gainer during most of 1963, reached a peak of 69¼ on Wednesday, then was hit hard by profit taking in the succeeding sessions, closing unchanged at 63⅞ on the week. Brokers said some big institutional investors had decided to turn their paper profits in Chrysler into cash and switch to Ford which has been relatively neglected in the motor group. Ford ended the week with a net gain of 3⅜, second in volume only to Chrysler.

The news about the auto industry remained glowing. New car sales in May set a record for the month. The outlook for auto glass continued very encouraging. The selling in Chrysler—also in General Motors, which declined 2 to 71¼—was attributed mainly to trading factors rather than to any dimming of prospects for these companies.

Volume for the week swelled to 27,312,060 shares from 16,684,740 in the four-day trading week previous. It was the biggest weekly volume since the week ending last Dec. 1 when 27,509,910 shares changed hands.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 2.6 to 273.3, its first decline in 14 weeks. A couple of weeks ago the average had a net gain of .3 on the week while the Dow Industrials declined 4.28.

While business news remained quite good on balance, despite a decline in weekly steel production and the rise in unemployment reported for May, Wall Street began worrying about tighter credit.

Brokers were concerned that the relatively high level of the market, combined with increases in some interest rates and a decline in the supply of cash available for immediate lending by commercial banks, might prompt the Federal Reserve Board to increase the discount rate and perhaps raise the margin requirement for buying stock on credit.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock exchange were Chrysler, unchanged at 63⅞ on 880,000 shares; Ford, up 3⅜ at 55½; Sperry Rand, up 2 at 15½; American Motors, up ⅞ at 20½, and Studebaker, up ¾ at 6⅞.

Mrs. Shirley Pearson of 2129 W Boulder St. has applied for a state license to operate a child care home offering all-day care.

Mrs. Pearson formerly lived at 6 S. 8th St., where she offered day care for four children. Under her new application, she plans to offer an all-day program for up to 20 youngsters.

The Pearson's new home has three rooms and a family room on the first floor that can be used in the program and has a fenced yard. The family will live on the second floor.

Mrs. Pearson has had experience in a Colorado Springs nursery school, and her child care program would include providing a meal at noon, an afternoon nap period and games for youngsters. The all-day program would be offered from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Christine's mother testified she bought the swimming togs from a street peddler.

MUCH MOOLA

CHICAGO (UPI) When the government talks about spending billions of dollars we sometimes forget just how much money that is, says Anthony Downes, Board Chairman, Real Estate Research Corp.

If you spent $100,000 a day, seven days a week, it would take 27.4 years to spend $1 billion, he said.

West Side Nursery School Plans to Increase Program

Mrs. Shirley Pearson of 2129 W Boulder St. has filed an application with the State Board of Standards of Child Care for a license to increase the size of her kindergarten nursery school from four to 20 children.

Mrs. Pearson formerly lived at 6 S. 8th St., but said her new location has facilities for a larger group of children. If the application is approved, Mrs. Pearson plans to offer all-day care, from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., with a program that includes meals, naps, field trips and games for the youngsters.

Mrs. Pearson plans to use the first floor at 2129 W. Boulder St. for the nursery school. It has three rooms and bath in addition to a recreation room, and there is a fenced yard. The Pearsons will live upstairs.

Mrs. Pearson plans to have one adult in charge of each 10 children.

Move to Tighten Securities Control Made Last Week

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The second move to tighten control of the vast securities industry highlighted business and financial developments this week.

It was made by the Securities and Exchange Commission in recommendations to Congress for drastic legislation. The first set of SEC proposals came out last April.

This newest attack on what an investigation revealed as "grave abuses" was directed primarily at the far-flung over-the-counter market in which some 15 million Americans own $100 billion of stock.

It is intended to provide greater protection for investors in stocks that are not listed on the New York, American and regional exchanges.

Key proposals would:

Bring 4,200 corporations whose stocks are sold over-the-counter—mainly in telephone transactions between buyer and seller and securities dealers—under the same rules of full disclosure of financial facts as apply to listed stocks.

Make more stringent the standards for brokerage firms and individuals entering the securities business.

Require all broker-dealers registered with the SEC to become members of the self-policing agency of the unlisted securities market. This organization is the National Association of Securities Dealers.

These proposals received general approval and support from financial leaders, although spokesmen for the banking and insurance industries were dubious that additional regulation was needed in their areas.

The business picture looked sparkling to members of the National Association of Purchasing Agents, the men who buy products for industry.

A poll showed that they considered business to be surprisingly good with prospects of getting better. The second half of this year, they believe, will be better than the first. Most of those surveyed expected capital spending to increase.

Economic straws in the wind included:

—Retail sales in April totaled $20.6 billion, 5 per cent above March and 7 per cent ahead of April, 1962.

—Inventories held by manufacturers, trade firms, wholesalers and retailers in April increased $250 million to $10.73 billion.

—Investment in new construction in May rose to an annual rate of $62,739,000,000 from $60,473,000,000 in April.

—Instalment debt increased in April by $530 million at the most rapid rate since November.

—Factory orders rose 2 per cent from March to $34.9 billion. It was the fourth consecutive monthly record.

Steel production dipped last week by 0.7 per cent to 2,608,000 tons as orders tapered off.

Output is headed for a downturn and may slump 10 to 20 per cent in July, an industry publication, The Iron Age said. It attributed the easing of orders in part to optimism that a labor agreement will be reached withotu threat of a strike.

The automakers turned out an estimated 170,000 passenger cars this week, compared with 139,394 last week and 150,285 a year ago.

If producers hold to current schedules, output in the second quarter may set a record for any quarter. Indications are that 2.13 million cars will come off assembly lines in the April-May-June period. The record of 2,129,018 was set in the first quarter of 1955.

Sales of new cars in May exceeded 700,000, a record for the month. It was the first time there have been two 700,000-car sales months in succession.

The long-controversial issue of whether to develop supersonic airliners in the United States exploded this week.

It came to a head when Pan American World Airways ordered six of the 1,400-mile-an-hour Concorde planes to be built by British and French interests. President Kennedy quickly directed an immediate start of work toward developing a U.S. supersonic jetliner. The cost may run $1 billion.

Another major railroad merger plan popped up when the Santa Fe and Missouri Pacific announced they had begun exploratory talks about the possibility of a combination.

Such a merger would create a 24,000-mile line, longer than any existing American system.

Stock sales totaled 27,312,060 as compared with the sales the previous week, shortened by the Memorial Day holiday, of 16,684,740. Bond sales, par value, were $30,541,700 as compared with $22,682,000.

Gastroenteritis Is Riddle With Many Possible Causes

Grandma had a name for it: "Summer Complaint."

She was talking about gastroenteritis usually as it affected the children and babies in the family. And she was right. There is more gastroenteritis in the summer.

Literally the word means inflammation of the stomach and bowels. It is an uncomfortable, annoying and worrisome thing, and it can be dangerous—both to children and as a symptom of something more serious as an underlying cause.

It is also a stumper of a disease to doctors and laboratory medical scientists.

The difficulty lies in trying to fix responsibility for the inflammation of the digestive pathways which results in diarrhea abdominal cramping, dehydration and other symptoms.

Some authorities believe that a specific cause can be discovered in not more than half of all cases of gastroenteritis.

In one careful study of 355 hospitalized children at the University of Colorado Medical Center, a specific cause could be found in only 25 per cent of the cases despite exhaustive laboratory tests which would not be feasible in a routine case.

Generally, some sort of organism is blamed—bacteria, viruses, amebas, spores, animal parasites such as protozoa and tape and helminth worms.

Some of these can be readily identified and are well known as causes of gastroenteritis: bacteria such as the salmonella, shigella and proteus types; animal parasites such as protozoa amebas, worms and helminth; flagellate spores; viruses of the Echo and polio groups.

Some of them, however, are very difficult to find even when their presence is suspected. Certain of the viruses, for example, cannot be tested except after transmitting them through human volunteers.

All of this makes gastroenteritis a difficult diagnostic problem. Fortunately, much diarrhea and gastroenteritis is a minor matter, and it is not always necessary or even desirable to run down the specific cause.

Many cases receive no medical attention, or only minor home treatment, and disappear within a few hours or days.

On the other hand, some severe or chronic gastroenteritis can be a serious threat, especially in babies. They can quickly become dangerously dehydrated in a bout with diarrhea, which is the most prominent symptom of gastroenteritis.

Other symptoms include stomach cramps, with or without diarrhea, vomiting in some cases and fever or chills in others.

The danger is that the condition may be resulting from a serious cause. Diarrhea often precedes infectious hepatitis. Long-lasting gastroenteritis can be traceable to such conditions as ulcerative colitis, ileitis, tuberculous enteritis and bowel cancer. Emotional factors often are involved, both as a possible cause and as a result of the condition.

Certainly any patient with acute or long-term gastroenteritis is emotionally upset by it.

It is believed some cases are the result of allergies or individual hypersensitivities — reactions to foods, pollens, water or any irritant to the mucous membranes lining the stomach and intestines.

Because gastroenteritis occurs more frequently in summer than in winter, changes in diet — more fruits and vegetables—are suspected as causes.

Or summer gastroenteritis may be food poisoning in disguise. Food protection in summer is both more difficult and more lax, leading to increased numbers of staph bacteria and thus to food poisoning.

Don't be disturbed by mild diarrhea. Just be sure it doesn't become violent or continue for an extended period.

If there is blood in the stool, or if the diarrhea persists, get medical help. You should see your doctor if diarrhea continues for more than three days in an adult. In children, medical aid is needed if there are more than 10 bowel movements a day in a child under 3, or more than 4 in a child under 6.

Dehydration is much more serious a threat in children and babies because they have smaller reserves of fluid in their smaller bodies. Loss of fluids and accompanying chemical salts can be a real problem, especially in children and elderly persons.

Extra fluids thus are a good idea for anyone, child or adult, undergoing an episode of diarrhea. Tea is soothing and a good way to get the extra fluid.

There are medicines for the treatment of gastroenteritis. The problem is that no one medicine will cure all forms, and it may be extremely difficult to pinpoint the precise cause.

Do not give cathartics or laxatives to a person with diarrhea on the mistaken theory you are "cleanout out" the system. You aren't. You are only farther irritating the intestinal passage.

Any recurrent, long-lasting diarrhea should be investigated thoroughly and any persistent abdominal pain or severe fever and chilling accompanying diarrhea should have medical attention without delay.

STARTING TACKLE LOST—John Conley, 6-1, 220-pound tackle who was tabbed for starting duty next fall with the Air Force Academy football team, has been dropped for academic deficiency. Conley is a graduate of St. Mary's High School in Colorado Springs. Others lost by the Falcons were freshman quarterback Jim Graham and guard Dick Nethers, both slated for considerable duty next fall. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

* * *

Conley and Two Others Lost Off Falcons Team

The loss of tackle John Conley and two other football players for academic deficiency at the Air Force Academy put the outlook for the Falcons next fall into a nosedive today. Coach Ben Martin announced that the three will be lost and all figured high in battle plans for the AFA.

Conley, of course, was the biggest loss of the trio. A graduate of St. Mary's High School in Colorado Springs, Conley held down a starting berth at tackle thru several of the last games last fall as a sophomore and he was definitely tabbed for starting duty next season.

At 6-1 and 220 pounds, Conley played regularly on the defensive unit with the Falcons during 1962 and then took over on the two-way Turks unit in the latter games after an injury to a more experienced tackle. Conley as being counted on to anchor the Falcons line this fall as a junior, along with senior Gil Achter.

Others lost with the announcement of final grades were quarterback Jim Graham and guard Dick Nethers, who both tendered their resignations and have left the Academy for their homes. Neither have divulged their plans for future schooling or possible football play.

Graham, one of the most highly publicized players on last year's freshman grid team, was another who was high in the plans of Martin. He was being counted on as a contender for the No. 2 quarterback position behind veteran Terry Isaacson.

At 5-7 and 170 pounds, Graham was a "crowd pleaser" and this spring quarterbacked the first team while Isaacson was participating with the Falcon golf team. A former "player of the year" in Oklahoma high school before his entry into the Academy, Graham showed fine progress this spring and figured to add depth to the AFA backfield picture. He excelled on both offense, as a running and passing quarterback, and on defense where he hit much harder than would be expected from a player his size.

Nethers, a 6-0, 200-pound guard, was listed as a second team lineman on Martin's tentative depth chart at the conclusion of spring practice. He is a native of Mt. Nernon, Ohio.

The Falcons this next fall undoubtedly will miss all three of these players as they tackle one of the toughest schedules in the history of the school. The rugged slate leads off with Washington University in Falsons Stadium, Sept. 21. Other home games will include Colorado State University, Boston College, UCLA and Colorado University. Games on the road are with Southern Methodist, Nebraska, Maryland, Army in Chicago, and New Mexico U.

Chateaugay Tops Candy Spots Again to Win Belmont Stakes

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Chateaugay, the Darby Dan Farm colt who upset Candy Spots in the Kentucky Derby, did it again Saturday when he overtook the pacesetter inside the final one-eighth of a mile and drew off to a 2½ length victory in he 95th Belmont Stakes at Acqueduct.

Candy Spots, who beat Chaeaugay in the Preakness, middle two of this famous triple crown for 3-year-olds, was the 1-2 choice of a crowd of 53,281 and was the third straight odds-on-favorite in the Belmont to go down to defeat.

Candy Spots, who took the lead after 6 furlongs, got second place by only a length over Choker, a 19 - 1 shot in the field of seven. Tom Cat was fourth, another four lengths behind.

This was as big a surprise as the Derby and threw the 3-year-old race into utter confusion with many more rich races to come.

Willie Shoemaker, who was aboard Candy Spots in quest of his fourth Belmont, got all of the boos as he came back to unsaddle and the crowd, watching under sunny skies, gave winning jockey Braulio Baeza of Panama a tremendous ovation for scoring his second major upset of the year.

Chateaugay, owned by Pittsburgh Pirate President John W. Galbreath of Columbus, Ohio, ran the 1½ miles in 2 minutes, 30 1-5 seconds. It was the slowest Belmont since Cavan upset the odds-on favorite Tim Tam in 1958 when the race was run at Belmont Park. Cavan's time was identical.

Chateaugay, the second choice, returned $11, $2.90 and $2.70. Candy Spots, owned by Rex Ellsworth of California returned $2.30 and $2.20 for his second defeat in 10 starts of his career. Choker, who hadn't even been considered as a starter until Thursday, paid $3.80. He carried the silks of Louis Haggin 2nd of Lexington, Ky.

Chateaugay won $101,700 in scoring his seventh victory in 11 starts and boosted his lifetime bankroll to $279,057. Candy Spots' second place was worth $25,000 and gave his career earnings of $580,527.

Baeza said Chateaugay "showed surprising speed at the start and I had to take a strong hold on him. He didn't handle the track too good until the half-mile pole, when I got into him and he took off."

And take off he did. At the head of the home stretch with one-quarter mile remaining, Candy Spots led Choker by two lengths and the Haggin colt, ridden by John L. Rotz, was one-half length ahead of Chateaugay. Suddenly the crowd realized that Candy Spots was beginning to stagger although the pace had not been too fast. Chateaugay zoomed up along the rail and made his winning bid with a rush even later than in the Derby May 4 at Louisville.

Candy Spots, Bonjour and Choker went to the far turn where the mile was caught in 1:39 3-5 and at 1¼ mile pole it was 2:04 4-5 with Candy Spots still on the front end but with Chateaugay coming strongly.

Chateaugay had been a problem horse in training the past week. Last Sunday, he worked 1¼ miles in 2:10 3-5 at Belmont Park and trainer Jimmy Conway was far from happy but blamed it on the judgement of his exercise boy.

On Wednesday, Conway shifted him over to Aqueduct and wanted a snappy 6-furlong drill, but Chateaugay refused to cooperate and quit after 3 furlongs. He was returned to Belmont Park, Baeza put on him, and he worked five-eighths of a mile in :59 and a fraction Thursday.

For Baeza, who picked up 10 per cent of the $101,700 in the third richest Belmont, it was another astounding upset. In 1961 after Carry Back had won the Derby and Preakness and had a shot at the Triple Crown, Baeza won the Belmont on Sherluck and the combination paid the highest price in the race's history. . . more than $100.

Chateaugay is a home bred son of Swaps-Banquet Bell by Polynesian. Swaps, Ellsworth's 1955 Kentucky Derby winner, was sold to Galbreath in a $2 million deal.

Back of the four leaders in order came Insurrection, Top Gallant and Bonjour. Insurrection was the last Belmont starter to be saddled by trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, who has won six of the runnings. The 88-year-old dean of American trainers retires within a week.

NEW YORK (AP)—Emile Griffith outpointed defender Luis Rodriguez in another close, split decision in 15 rounds Saturday night and became the first boxer ever to win the world welterweight championship three times.

The 24-year-old New Yorker by way of the Virgin Islands thus avenged his title loss to the 28-year-old Cuban exile on a close but unanimous decisson at Los Angeles last March 21.

The 2-1 verdict for the home favorite before a roaring crowd in Madison Square Garden was greeted by a mixture of cheers and boos.

Referee Jimmy Devlin had it 9-6 and judge Tozy Rossi 8-7 in rounds for Griffith. Judge Joe Armstrong scored it 10-5 for Rodriguez. The Associated Press score card had Rodriguez ahead 8-6-1.

After three fights and 40 rounds of boxing, the gap between the two is as narrow as an arrow. Griffith won a split decision in 10 rounds in their first clash on Dec. 17, 1960, before either was champion, and Rodriguez evened the score by taking the title in Los Angeles.

Griffith's split decision victory ended Rodriguez' streak at 12. His record is 50-3. Griffith's record is 36-4.

A quick poll of the ringside showed a 6-4 edge for Rodriguez.

In their last meeting at Los Angeles, the ringside poll favored Griffith, the loser.

There wasn't a knockdown or anything close to one in the tightly waged contest. They used 8-ounce gloves instead of the 6-ouncers previously worn in title fights in New York.

Griffith's determined effort in the last round, although it wasn't as effective as it may have looked from a distance, proved the difference in the fight.

Los Angeles Tops Cubs; Keeps Lead

CHICAGO (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers clung to the National League lead Saturday by defeating the Chicago Cubs 9-5 before 26,577, largest Wrigley Field crowd of the season.

In chilling the hot Cubs a second time in a row, the Dodgers broke a 3-3 tie with three unearned runs off loser Don Elston in the seventh.

Ron Santo dropped Wally Moon's pop fly after a collision with shortstop Andre Rodgers to open the gates for the Dodgers. Maury Wills used his fourth straight single to power the first runs, and the next two resulted from Junior Gilliam's infield out and Ron Fairly's single.

Birds Keep Top Spot Despite Loss

BALTIMORE (AP)—Backed by a 14-hit Red Sox attack, Bill Monbouquette pitched Boston to a 7-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Saturday night.

Frank Malzone, the American League's leading hitter with a 352 average, paced the Boston attack with three singles which knocked in three runs.

Carl Yastrzemski sent two more runs across with a single and double, while Lu Clinton rapped out three hits and had one RBI.

Monbouquette, who didn't allow a runner past second base through the first eight innings, yielded a one-out homer to Jim Gentile in the ninth. Monbouquette struct out eight as he notched his seventh victory.

Giants Lose Sixth Straight On Rookie Staub's Key Hit

HOUSTON (AP)—Rookie Rusty Staub lined the game-winning single in the eighth inning as he Houston Colts sent San Francisco's reeling Giants to their sixth straight loss Saturday night, 2-1.

Right-hander Bob Bruce and reliever Hal Woodeshick limited the Giants to five singles in outpitching southpaw ace Billy O'Dell. The loss dumped San Francisco intoa tie for third place in the National League, one game back of Los Angeles and St. Louis and even with Chicago.

Woodshick bailed out Bruce in the ninth after Willie Mays and Willie McCovey walked with none out. Against Woodeshick, Matty Alou hit into a force play and Orlando Cepeda grounded into a game-ending double play.

Why Not Pioneers??

So it's pro they go.

Amid the optimism that's been flowing in streams out of Denver the last few days over our northern sister city's adoption into the Western Hockey League, we can't help but wonder if the future is quite as bright as some would have us believe.

* * *

BOB SCARLETT
Heads Hockey Group

* * *

True, this time the visible signs say Denver promoters have learned a few lessons. Unlike past attempts to enter the professional field, this time there appears to be all-important monetary backing, affiliation in a league that's soundly established, and alignment with a "major league" team that undoubtedly has one of the better farm systems going.

But let's look a little deeper. . .

Why should the league openly solicit Denver for a new franchise, especialy since it breaks the boundaries by about 1,000 miles of what used to be a compact circuit?

First, it would seem there was abnormal difficulties within the city of Spokane and that town's team in the WHL for the franchise to be pulled out like a slippery run under an unsuspecting scapegoat. The Spokane people made no bones about their unhappiness from this move.

Secondly, evidently the powers-that-be must have considered Denver prime territory for pro hockey fans. They certainly wouldn't have added the obvious expense of travel to such a widely separated city had they not been confident the coffers would be choked thruout a season that will include the better part of six months.

And thirdly, those backing the team in its new Denver home must have influenced quite a few people that this was to be no fly-by-night operation. With the Mile High City failing twice before in attempts to get and hold professional hockey (first in 1950 and again with the shoestring managed Mavericks in 1959), we rather imagine that promoters had to have in hand most of the $275,000 they estimate it will take to put the club thru the first season.

So what are the chances of success for the team?

Let it be understood that we wish this new club all the luck in the world on this venture. Hockey, certainly one of the fastest and most exciting sports going, has always been popular with us and we would like to see it flurish no matter in what form.

As for the apparent sickness connected with the franchise when in Spokane, it looks like most of this can be quickly cleared up with a pill of that old miracle drug fresh from the corner bank. Even with some 10,000 seats to be filled at the Denver Coliseum, this team will still rate next to last in the league in size of arenas and the other cities in the circuit — namely, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Vancouver — are on firm ground and thriving with this imported sport from Canada.

Right now, Denver certainly would seem to be prime for plucking pro fans. Few cities in the country can claim a better record in attendance than that shown at Denver University over the past few years. Seldom are there vacant seats in the DU Arena whenever Coach Murray Armstrong parades his talented Pioneers onto the ice.

But we wonder if this is a true barometer of the probable acceptance of the professional version. How many more consistent hockey fans are there in Denver besides the 5,000 loyals who seem to turn up night-after-night at DU? Will the allegiance of these numbered fans suddenly turn overnight to this new group?

The mere tacking the tag of "pro" onto the new team will not necessarily lift the caliber of talent from the grade these fans have become accustomed. In the past there have been insinuations that the DU squad borders on the pro level already — and this is more than an innuendo at recruiting philosophy but more a discription of playing talent.

DU's Armstrong has sidestepped any controversary with the pro invaders by diplomatically predicting a "minimum of conflict." But we wonder if Murray's mind were read if it wouldn't tell another story.

The fate of schoolboy hockey has long been scribbled on the shower walls around the Western Intercollegiate Hocky Association. Even some of the observers in Denver are starting to admit that the days of high powered hockey here are limited.

DU has been given a year's grace because of being the site of the NCAA tournament this winter, but next year and in seasons to come the Pioneers may be lucky to scratch up any kind of schedule for their omnipotent teams. Three of the seven teams in the WCHA have already slapped a boycott on Denver, and after this year it's doubtful they will be ruled eligible for titles on a half schedule.

If DU is forced to play without a championship at stake, or worse yet they start losing a few games, it's highly probable interest will fall off like hogs leaving an empty sty. And then there's the question of whether these fans will switch flags in favor of the adopted pros, or whether bitterness will push them to other establishments of entertainment.

In that DU's top regional rival Colorado College has become used to a scrawny handful of supporters after continual whippings administered by the Pioneers and a nonchalant attitude toward conforming to the trend of the majority of league-mates, it's rather ironical that a former CC player is now heading the group bringing rival hockey to Denver.

Bob Scarlett, who once donned the pads of a goalie at Colorado College, headed the drive to bring the Spokane franchise to Colorado and he has been named as the team's general manager.

It's been suggested that the pro team run a public contest to pick a new name to replace the Comets moniker from the West Coast. We would like to submit one of the first entries — why not the Pioneers, DU probably won't need the tag much longer and that way they might fool a few fans into believing it's the same team.

Elimination Races Set For 200-Mile Stock Test

At least two stock car tracks in the region are planning to run an elimination tournament between drivers for the alloted qualifying positions in the first annual 200 mile Stock Car Race at Continental Divide Raceway later this month.

The novel race, sponsored by Speed, Inc., will include the top three drivers from the local tracks with guaranteed starting positions. Others from the top 15 drivers of these tracks will be entered, but must qualify thru time trials in order to earn starting positions.

The 200-mile race, the first of its kind in the region with stock cars racing over a twisting sports car course, is scheduled for Continental Divide Raceway, June 29 and 30. Officials feel that it will be a true test of driving skill rather than a race of horsepower around an oval track.

Continental, with a 2.8 mile course of both right and left turns, is located between Colorado Springs and Denver on Highway 85-87, near Castle Rock.

Qualifying in time trials for the 50-car field will be held on Saturday, June 29, with the long feature race set for the following day. Drivers are slated to come from thruout a nine-state area around Colorado for the highlight of the stock car season.

Competition will be open only to those drivers invited from the region. The national event was made invitational to assure participation of only the best cars and drivers, officials said.

Since this will be the first time modified stock cars have competed in a long distance race on a road race course in this area, there will be a mandatory practice session on June 29 for all drivers.

Former Baseball Trainer Is Dead

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)—Stanley G. Scheckler, 61, trainer for the Charleston Eastern League baseball team and affiliated with the Cleveland Indians farm system for 40 years, died early Saturday.

He died shortly after the Charleston club arrived here from York, Pa. He became ill during the night and apparently died before an ambulance arrived at his home.

Scheckler, who weighed 265 pounds, was a native of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Women's Western Highlights Golf

By TOM CUSMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Another summer of topflight tournament golf for the Colorado Springs area is upcoming with competition scheduled to open with the Broadmoor Women's Invitational in early July and continue thru the World Seniors Championships at the same course in late August.

In all, some six tournament will be run off which will attract golfers from outside the area, including one of national interest and one with international competition.

The two major events will be the Women's Western Amateur scheduled for the Broadmoor the week of July 7th and the Francis H. I. Brown International Team Challenge Match at the Broadmoor, Aug. 24-25.

The Western, which is one of the top four tournaments for amateur women, is expected to attract an outstanding field for the local course, including several of the women who took part in the Curtis Cup Matches last August. The fact that the Western will be held here is also expected to increase the stature of the field for the Women's Invitational which will be run off the preceding week.

The International Team Challenge will precede the fourth playing of the World Seniors at the Broadmoor and is an innovation introduced by Brown, who donated the trophy, and Chick Evans, the originater of the Seniors. A team of United States senior golfers will meet like teams from New Zealand, India, Italy, Venezuela, Mexico, Great Britain, and one additional country over two days of competition.

The other major tournaments for the local area are the Broadmoor Men's Invitational scheduled for the last week in July and the Pikes Peak Invitational at Patty Jewett, which comes the first week in August.

As was the case last summer when the Curtis Cup Matches were held here, the women will again have the edge as far as events of national importance are concerned. Barbara McIntire, Judy Bell, and Jean Ashley, three members of the Curtis Cup team who play out of the Broadmoor Club, are certain entries for both the Women's Invitational and Western and a number of other top amateur stars are expected as well.

Entries for the Women's Invitational had already reached 80 by late this week and included are a number of new low-handicap entries, a fact which indicates the tourney field will probably be one of the strongest in history.

Aside from Misses McIntire, Bell, and Ashley, other familiar names already indicating that they will return include two-time champion Natasha Matson Fife and the runner-up of two years ago, Joan Birkland of Denver. In addition Mrs. Paul Dye, Jr. of Indianapolis, Ind., Barbara Fay White of Shreveport, La., Julie Hull of Anderson, Ind. and several other less familiar entires carry no handicap. Miss McIntire is the defending champion.

* * *

BARBARA McINTIRE
Defending Invite Champion

* * *

The Western, which ranks along with the U.S. Women's Amateur, the Trans-Mississippi, and the North-South as the top tourneys for amateur gals, was won last year by Carol Ann Sorenson but local interest should pick up this time as the invaders attempt to best the Broadmoor's three stars over the course with which they are all so familiar. The Women's Western Golf Association presents the tourney annually and it is the top attraction of the season locally.

The Broadmoor Men's Invitational, on the verge of becoming the personal possession of Los Angeles' sensational Fred Brown, will have another exciting field here in late July. Brown has won four of the past seven years and finished second another time, altho he did not compete on one occasion during that period. The L. A. swinger has indicated that he will return this year after winning the championship again last summer.

The Patty Jewett tourney has turned up outstanding champions the past two seasons. Johnny Stevens, a smooth belter from the University of Wichita, won two seasons back and last August Jerry Abbott, a long-hitter from Borger, Tex., spreadeagled the PPI field after putting together scores of 68 and 67 in the first two rounds.

Howard Creel, the former U.S. lefthanded champion, has won the World Seniors over the familiar Broadmoor course the past two years and will undoubtedly be the favorite if he enters this year, regardless of the makeup of the field.

The playing of the International Team Matches the weekend preceding the Seniors virtually assures that this year's field will have the largest foreign representation of any to date.

All of the tournaments at the Broadmoor will be on a match-play basis, still the most familiar type among amateurs. The Patty Jewett tourney is the only medal play contest in the area for amateurs.

On the professional side of the scene, the Denver Open is again scheduled this September and this fall promises to have a select field with the early promise that the "Big Three" of the pro tour, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, and Gary Player, will be on hand. The Open, plagued by attendance and money problems since its conception, was a whopping success a year ago, even without the "Big Three" and appears to be on the way to becoming one of the outstanding attractions of the area.

Arnold Winick, with 17 winners, led the trainers for the fifth time at the 1963 Gulfstream Park thoroughbred meeting.

Drake University now appears on next winter's cage slate, replacing the University of Wichita, Jan. 25, as previously announced. St. Michael's College was added to the schedule to round out the home slate on Feb. 12 in an afternoon encounter.

HELSINKI (AP) — Colorado Springs, Colo., was tentatively awarded the 1965 World Figure Championships Saturady at the last day of a three-day meeting of the International Skating Union's congress.

Secretary Van Englenburg of the ISU's figuring skating section emphasized that the decision was not final. He said Colorado Springs was the only city to have applied for the meet so far and he hoped by the meeting of the congress next year more applications would have been received.

In other action Saturday, the congress:

More Skiers Counted Despite Short Season

DENVER (AP) — Despite a short season, Colorado counted more skiers last winter than during the record-breaking 1961-62 season.

The Colorado Ski Information Center said Saturday 189,000 out-of-state skiers visited 25 principal snow sports areas, compared to 188,263 the previous winter.

It estimated the skiers from other states spent $18.9 million in the state. An estimated $10 million was invested in new areas and facilities prior to the 1962-63 season.

Favorites Advance In Tennis

Despite intermittent strong winds, the 1963 Pikes Peak Open Tennis Tournament came off as predicted Saturday with the two top seeded players, Bill Ellwanger of Denver and Jery Bennett of this city, winning their matches at the Monument Valley Park courts.

Bennett, a practicing attorney, is the top challenger to unseat the favorited Ellwanger in next Saturday's finals. The latest consensus, based on Bennett's performance in Saturday's competition, is that he could possibly surpass the Denverite if he settles down to steady playing.

Ellwanger, on the other hand, is a composed steady player. He eliminated his foes quite handily Saturday when he shutout De Ros Hogue, 6-0, 6-0, in the men's singles division. The Mile High City resident also blanked Richard Bradley by the same score in the senior division. Both Bennett and Ellwanger are entered in the two singles' divisions.

Bennett drew a bye in the men's singles division, but competed in the senior division (for men over 35) and downed F. K. Newcomer Jr., 4-6, 6-4, 6-1; and surpassed James Abell, 6-2, 6-3.

Kathy Dunlevy defeated Barbara Kellogg, 6-1, 6-3, and Dorothy Bradley scored a victory over Rosemary Smith, 6-3, 7-5. Kathy and Dorothy will meet today at 10:30 a.m. in the women's finals.

Boys and Girls Divisions will begin play on Monday, also at the Monument Valley Park courts. Finals in all these divisions should finish by Friday with the Men's finals winding up action next weekend.

Entries in the Boys and Girls Divisions close at 3 p.m. today at the courts. All candidates for the Jr. Davis Cup and Jr. Wightman Cup teams must play in two sanctioned tournaments and this will count as one of them.

Nancy Schnering's SKI SCHOOL

This is the first of a series of instructive articles written by water skiing champion Nancy Schnering which will appear on a regular basis in the Gazette Telegraph.

Water Skiing is growing so fast it is impossible to say accurately how many are actually enjoying the sport in this country. While you're saying a figure, it jumps up. The latest estimate I've heard is seven million.

The sport is within reach of just about anybody who is within reach of a sizable body of water.

Water skiing requires a minimum of equipment, none of which is priced out of sight. You don't have to own a boat. You may have a friend who does. You can ski from behind all sorts of outboard-powered house boats.

Even if you don't have a friend with a boat, you can ski. There are 500 or more organized water ski clubs in the country. Most of them have boats and some community equipment, which the beginner can use while he's learning the basics from experienced skiers and having a fine time in congenial company in the process.

Water skiing is thrilling and spectacular, yet as safe as any participation sport if you follow the rules and take a few basic precautions. It is a sport for both sexes and all ages. Some boys and girls I know started before they could swim, which is not a recommended practice.

I know an 80-year-old gentleman who is as chipper as any one you ever saw on the water.

Mazeroski Leads Bucs Over Braves

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bill Mazeroski, hitting safely in his 11th straight game, drove in Willie Stargell with the winning run on a seventh inning single that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-4 triumph Saturday over the Milwaukee Braves.

Mazeroski's hit came with two out off reliever Tony cloninger, 0-3, after Stargell had walked and Roberto Clemente had singled.

The Pirates added an insurance run in the eighth when Don Clendenon singled, moved to second on an infield out and scored on Al McBean's single to left.

McBean, knocked out by the Braves Friday in a starting role, roared back with a fine 5 1-3-inning relief stint to pick up his sixth victory against one loss. He gave up only two hits, fanned three and walked one after replacing starter Vernon Law.

White Sox Blow AL Lead In Loss to Kansas City, 7-6

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Haywood Suolivan's pinch single with two out in the bottom of the 10th inning scored Gino Cimoli with the run that gave the Kansas City Athletics a 7-6 victory over Chicago and cost the White Sox a chance to take over the American League lead.

Chicago remained a half game behind the Baltimore Orioles, who lost 7-1 to Boston.

The A's blew two leads before finally putting it away. Cimoli opened the rally in the 10th with a one-out single off Joe Horlen, took second on a fly ball and came in when Sullivan singled.

John Wyatt, 1-1, was the winning pitcher. Horlen now is 4-1.

Kralick Wins Fourth Straight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lefthander Jack Kralick won his fourth straight game Saturday night, scattering five hits in pitching the Cleveland Indians to a 6-1 victory over the Washington Senators.

Squaring his record at 5-5, Kralick was in trouble only in the fifth inning when singles by Ed Brinkman and Marv Breeding and an infield out produced the only Washington run.

Boros Leads Buick Open; Bayer Wins Auto With Ace

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP)—Julius Boris followed a first-day 66 with a one-under-par 36-35—71 Saturday to widen his lead to four strokes in the $52,000 Flint Open Golf Tournament at Warwick Hills.

The year's fourth leading money winner suffered his first bogeys of the tournament but rallied with three birdies. Bob Charles, George Knudson and George Bayer were tied for second place at 141.

Bayer stroked a 6-iron shot into the 171-yard eighth hole for a hole-in-one and earned an automobile with an estimated value of $5,700. It was the third hole-in-one in the last two years of the Buick Open.

In contrast to Friday when 27 men broke par and 11 others equaled par, Saturday's round produced only eight sub-par scores and eight of par 72. The lowest scores were 70s by Bayer, Knudson, Don Essig and defending champion Bill Collins.

Collins was one of five men at 142, joining with Bruce Devlin, Gene Littler, Dow Finsterwald an Art Wall Jr. At 143 were Bob Harrison, Mason Rudolph and Bob McCallister while Sam Carmicha Johnny Potts, Gardner Dickinson and Jerry Pittman stood at par 144.

Boros suffered his first bogey on the 11th hole when he pushed a tee shot into the trees and couldn't hook a 4-iron into the green. But he pitched within 2 feet and birdied the 13th hole and made a 5-foot putt on the 18th for another birdie. The North Carolina pro bogeyed the fourth hole but got another birdie with a 10-foot putt on the seventh.

He payed the back nine first.

The 137 total was one stroke better than the previous low at 36 holes in the six-year history of the tournament. Wall had 38 in 1959.

The low 75 pros with ties qualified for Sunday's 36-hole finals. It took 151 or better to make the cut.

Among those missing was venerable Sam Snead whose 154 total ended a string of 54 tournaments in which he has been on the money list.

Walker Cup Player Lunt Wins British Amateur Golf

By TOM REEDY

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Michael Lunt, 28-year-old textile company executive and British Walker Cup player, won the 68th British Amateur Golf Championship Saturday, defeating an irrepressible Sunday golfer named John Blackwell, 2 and 1.

The final over 36 holes was played in brilliant sunshine before a tiny gallery of less than a thousand people. As the original 39 Americans in the championships drifted away, so did the interest.

Yet the 48-year-old Blackwell managed to make a match of it against his younger opponent.

In the morning's 18-hole round, Blackwell amazed everyone by holding Lunt even. Both went out in a ragged 41 and Blackwell had the better medal round with a 78 against Lunt's 80. The afternoon was a different story. Lunt went 3 up on the final 9 holes and enjoyed his advantage to the conclusive 2 and 1 triumph.

Lunt knocked four Americans out of the marathon match play over the 6,936-yard, par 72, Old Course in driving to the 36-hole final. They included Billy Nicks of Hollywood, Chris Blocker of Jal, N.M., defending champion Dick Davies of Pasadena, Calif., and Dr. Edgar Updegraff of Tucson, Ariz.

The all-England final was the first time since 1926 that the Americans in a Walker Cup year had failed to win the title.

Professional Bowler Slated For Fountain Valley Show

For the first time since its opening, Fountain Valley Bowl will import a national professional bowler for an exhibition this Tuesday from 2-8 p.m.

Brunswick staffer Robbie Frey, reported one of the nation's top women bowlers, is slated to appear at the Security establishment to roll exhibition matches and give free instruction to local keglers.

A resident of Dallas, Robbie is a three-time winner of the Texas State All-Events crown. She has also been All-Events champion of San Antonio twice and has won the Houston All-Events title three times.

In 1955, 1959 and '60, she won the Texas Match Game Crown and in 1960 shared third place in the BPAA National Doubles.

District 11 Juniors Top Test Average

Scores on the achievement and ability tests given in District 11 high schools show that eleventh grade students again did considerably better than students in the national norming sample.

Miss Helen Bailey, director of Pupil Accounting and Testing Services, said that on the achievement tests a higher precentage of local students were in the upper two quarters of the score distribution than those tested for the national norms.

In January, District 11 testing specialists administered the Sequential Tests of Educational Progress and the School and College Ability Test to nearly 1200 juniors at Wasson and Palmer.

STEP includes tests of reading and writing achievement, and SCAT tests verbal and quantitative abilities. Scores on the two test batteries indicate whether a child is achieving at a level comensurate with his ability, Miss Bailey explained.

On the STEP reading test, 51 per cent of the local students scored in the top quarter of scores compared with 26 per cent for students in the national norming sample. The next lower quarter included 24 per cent of the District 11 students compared with 25 per cent for the national sample.

Miss Bailey pointed out that 75 per cent of the local students had above average achievement in reading. Local scores on the writing achievement test were similar to those for reading, she added.

An analysis of scores indicates the majority of Wasson and Palmer juniors have achievement, as measured by STEP, equal to or above their ability, as shown by SCAT scores.

Except for writing, which is about the same, a comparison of 1962 and 1963 scores on all ability and achievement tests shows a slight gain for this year's students altho Miss Bailey does not consider the gain significantly higher.

Starting in the lower elementary grades, children in District 11 schools take the standardized tests at regular grade intervals. The results help teachers, school counselors, and parents plan the most effective school program for each child, Miss Bailey said.

Two Palmer High Students Win Dramatic Honors

Jim Oaks and Mike Neely, students at Palmer High School have recently earned state-wide recognition in the field of dramatic arts. Both have been active participants in the dramatic productions at Palmer this year.

Jim Oaks is the winner of the Speech Arts Scholarship from the University of Colorado in Boulder. This four year scholarship is offered every year to an outstanding student actor who performs in the district and state drama festivals. In addition to performing in Palmer's first-place winning play, "The Visit," Jim was interviewed by a committee that screened the applicants and make the final selection.

This year Jim has appeared in the Masque and Sandal Play, "Our Town," the senior play, "Liliom," and the state festival play, "The Visit."

Mike Neely, a junior at Palmer, has been selected to represent Palmer High School at the Summer High School Institute of Drama at the University of Denver. This special school will last five weeks; from June 17 to July 19. The curriculum will include classes in dramatic production and direction, modern dance, music, and acting.

The students will visit the various theaters in the Denver area and receive experience in acting.

Mike Neely's interest in drama is evident from his record of achievements this year.

It was on this basis that he was chosen to attend the drama institute. His interests include not only acting but backstage work as well.

His major roles include Mr. Webb in "Our Town," Papa in "I Remember Mama", and Sebill in "The Visit". Mike earned membership in both Masque and Sandal and Thespians this year.

Region Forest Fire RecordOff to Blazing Start

A statement issued by the Denver regional office of the U. S. Forest Service says that "suffering thru an unprecedented dry spring, the forest fire record of national forests in the Rocky Mountain Region is off to an impressive but discouraging start in 1963."

Regional Forester D. S. Nordwall, reports 46 fires as of April 30, on national forests and grasslands in Colorado, Kansas, and South Dakota. This is almost double the 27 fires reported during the same period of 1962.

"Most discouraging of all," Nordwall said, "is that these 46 fires were caused by careless humans. As a result of these needless and preventable fires, more than 7,000 acres of timber and grasslands have been burned off."

By states, Colorado leads with 32 fires, followed by 13 in South Dakota, and 1 on the National Grassland of Kansas. This latter fire burned over 6,500 acres of grazing land on the Comanche National Grassland.

In addition to the National Forest administered lands, 307 acres of state and private lands have gone up in smoke this spring.

Recent rains have had little effect in reducing fire danger, the Forest Service points out. The public is asked to be particularly careful about trash burning, camp and picnic fires, and cigarette flipping.

In preparation for the heavy influx of visitors, the Forest Service has built 750 new camp and picnic picnic family units during the past year and rehabilitated 800 old ones, Nordwall reported.

Of an expected 21 million visits to the 16 National Forests and 7 National Grasslands of Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas, approximately 6 million will be made to camp and picnic grounds, with most of the visits between Memorial Day and Labor Day. This is an anticipated increase of 1.2 million over the camping and picnicking visits reported last year.

A developed campsite provides fireplaces, tent space, table and benches and automobile parking spurs, with water and toilets nearby. Basic provisions to be brought by the camper include tents, bedrolls, cooking utensils, and food.

A new National Forest campground directory has been issued, which lists those campgrounds having trailer facilities, drinking water, etc. A copy may be obtained by contacting any of the National Forest supervisor's offices, or the regional forester, Denver.

Most people elect to use developed sites, although camping in the 23 million acre National Forests of this region is usually unrestricted. Those willing to carry food and equipment can camp almost anywhere.

A new high of 6.5 million tree seedlings for forest planting have been shipped from the Bessey Nursery near Halsey, Neb., and Monument, Colo. Nursery. The forest tree nurseries are operated by the U. S. Forest Service, Rocky Mountain Region.

The six and one-half million seedlings will be used in reforesting burns and timber sale areas on the sixteen National Forests and Grasslands and for cooperative plantings on other lands in the Rocky Mountain States. These trees are being set out in Colorado, South Dakota, Wyoming, Nebraska, Kansas, New Mexico and Utah.

Half of the trees are ponderosa pine with the balance in lodgepole pine, cedar, Douglas fir and Engelmann spruce.

The trees being planted on the Forests are in old burns and timber harvest units. Many of those furnished to the state forestry departments, will grow into farmstead windbreaks.

Interest in tree planting is up sharply. To supply the wanted trees, a new nursery has just been completed at Basalt in western Colorado. It will have a capacity of 25 million seedlings per year.

"To meet the goals for the National Forests, we must reforest 50,000 acres each year on the National Forests in this Region," said Nordwall. "While planting seedlings is the most publicized way to reforest, direct sowing of seed and scarification of the soil to encourage natural seeding are other methods used successfully to do the needed reforestation job."

A new regulation adopted by the Forest Service may assist campers and boating enthusiasts in National Forest recreation areas.

The regulation authorizes impoundment of house trailers, boats, or camping equipment left in recreation sites for excessively long periods of time.

NOSE CONE INSPECTION—Prof. William A. Rense, faculty supervisor of the University of Colorado's Laboratory for Atmospheric and Space Physics, inspects a nose cone being readied for an experimental probe of the earth's upper atmosphere. The laboratory was organized 15 years ago to develop a rocket nose cone pointing device. Under Rense's supervision the laboratory's scientific activities have been greatly expanded. The University today received a $797,500 grant from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to construct a new building to house the laboratory.

NASA Grants CU $791,500 For Space Physics Lab

The University of Colorado has received a $791,500 grant from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to build a new Laboratory for Atmospheric and Space Physics on the Boulder campus, President Quigg Newton announced today.

The laboratory will be the first unit in a major physics complex to be erected at CU over the next several years. Total cost of the complex is estimated at $6.7 millions.

"This laboratory will provide the University of Colorado with a significantly enlarged facility in which to conduct a more complete range of graduate and undergraduate space research training," Newton said.

"It is another in a series of steps over the last few years which are making Boulder and the University a center for educational, governmental and industrial space research."

The 25,000-square foot building to be financed by NASA will house the 15-year-old Laboratory or Atmospheric and Space Physics, which has made major contributions to knowledge about the earth's upper atmosphere. Physics Prof. William A. Rense is faculty supervisor of the laboratory.

Special laboratory areas of the new building will be provided for studying ultra-violet physics, solar ultra-violet radiation data from rockets, and for testing solar rocket pointing control mechanisms.

Rooms with special temperature and humidity control devices will be set aside for delicate instrumentation work. Other areas of the building will house a supporting machine shop and a seminar room for graduate students.

Plans for the entire physics complex were approved May 25 by the CU Board of Regents as a major step in the University's long-range campus development program.

The complex will be located along Pennsylvania Avenue, south of Folsom Stadium, as a connecting link between the new connecting link between the new Engineering Sciences Center and the older part of the campus.

It will include a building for the Joint Institute for Laboratory Astrophysics, a building to house teaching and research in the pysics and astrophysics department, and a computer center.

JILA is a unique academic unit sponsored jointly by the University and the National Bureau of Standards to conduct research and train graduate students in areas vital to the U.S. space effort.

Newton and other CU officials are to meet soon with Gov. John Love to discuss financing of the JILA building, which will cost an estimated $1.8 millions.

Newton said it is possible that cost of the building can be met thru rentals provided by various federal agencies, if the state can advance the money on a loan basis.

The University in 1964 will ask the State Legislature for $134,400 to prepare working plans for the first phase of the building for teaching and research in the physics and astrophysics department.

It hopes to complete both stages of the physics building by 1969. Each stage would cost approximately $2,000,000 and would be financed by a combination of state funds and grants from federal and other agencies, with the major portion coming from the state.

Cook's Tour

By JEANNE LESEM
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's the adults who mix up when it comes to combinations using that American standby of diet, peanut butter.

A survey of consumer attitudes toward the nut spread indicates that grownups in general are more imaginative in using the product than the child who adds jelly or mashed bananas to the peanut butter sandwich.

The study, made by the Peter Pan Peanut Butter Co., Chicago, showed that children tend to use the butter in sandwiches but seldom alone. One mother said her children prefer it with marshmallow fluff, jelly, sliced bananas and shredded coconut.

But a Nebraska woman won a sandwich recipe contest with this filling: peanut butter, crushed pineapple, honey, chopped walnuts, chopped celery, butter and light cream.

A teen-aged boy in Jackson, Miss., praised his sister's invention — peanut butter spread inside split frankfurters before broiling. A Birmingham, Ala., girl said she mixes it with milk and ice cream for milk shakes.

A Jacksonville, Fla., woman, who classed herself with "older folks," told the survey-makers that she serves it for breakfast, as a spread for waffles and pancakes, with preserves or syrup.

In Phoenix, a woman reported that her 82-year-old mother "just loves peanut butter in mashed potatoes and spread on tortillas." (Tortillas are small round thin Mexican pancakes made with either crushed corn or special corn meal called masa harina.)

A Salt Lake City housewife said her family goes for peanut butter mixed into bread or rice stuffing for poultry.

"My family never tires of peanut butter, not even the dog," said a Des Moines homemaker, who added that the spread in meatballs makes a hit with human members of her clan.

A Minnesotan who classed her husband as "a peanut butter addict," said, "He used it like some people use salt — on everything . . . spread on hot pork chops, on fried chicken and on the hot crust of pot pies."

A Holland-born housewife, now living in Houston, puts peanut butter sauce on cooked vegetables. Her Dutch recipe, hagel-slag, consists of five cooked vegetables with a sauce of peanut butter, fried, minced onions, salt, sugar and water. She added that she serves the same sauce on baked potatoes.

Desserts mentioned in the survey ranged from the usual peanut butter cookies and cakes to bread pudding. All this adds up to annual consumption of 400 million pounds, including 16.4 million sandwiches daily, the manufacturer said.

Peanut butter coating puts a crisp crust on oven-fried chicken. Mix together 1 cup of cornflake crumbs, 1 teaspoon each of monosodium glutamate and salt and ¼ teaspoon of pepper. Using ¾ cup of smooth peanut butter, coat all surfaces of a 2½ to 3 pound broiler chicken, cut up. Dip each into seasoned crumbs, and place, without overlapping, in an ungreased shallow baking pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven to 60 minutes, or until tender and brown. Serves 4.

Launder Swim Clothes After Each Wearing

A long day in the sun can be fun but also tiring. The last thing most mothers feel like doing after such a day is washing clothes.

But there will be many beach clothes to be washed. According to the Maytag home service department, beachwear should be laundered after each wearing because abrasive sand, salt water, chlorine and sun tan lotion damage fabrics.

All "played-out" play clothes, including colorfast shirts, T shirts and bathing suits, can go into the washer while Mom fixes dinner.

Use light-duty detergent, warm water and gentle agitation. If you have a one-speed washer, use regular agitation and washing time. All these items can be dryer-dried on the "Regular Fabrics" setting. But bathing suits that contain rubber elastic, those made of wool and those that have plastic stays, should be removed while still damp.

Sometimes stains cling to synthetics. If you get some suntan lotion on your swim suit or other play clothes, rub a little extra liquid detergent on the stain before putting the garment into the washer.

Other tips to remember for beach-type items:

Bright-colored beach towels and terry cloth beach robes will retain their original tones and come out clean and fluffy if they're laundered in cold water and dried on the "Regular Fabrics" setting.

Beach bags can be washed in the washer, just how depends on what they're made of. But if they've got a plastic lining, as many do, keep the water cold and take them out of the dryer while they're still damp.

Canvas sneakers also can be laundered in the washer, using warm water and regular agitation. They can be partially dryer-dried on the "Regular Fabrics" setting. When they're partially dry, take them out and let them air-dry the rest of the way.

Some Recall Saying 'I Do' While Thinking of Escape

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK UPI — Here's help for the bridegrooms of tomorrow who wonder what thoughts will zig and zag through the cranium when they utter "I do."

For what's likely to capture their thoughts during that moment when bachelorhood is abandoned, United Press International asked bridegrooms of yesteryear two questions:

—How long have you been married?

—What is your best recollection of what went through your mind when you said "I do"?

Those surveyed have been married from two to 41 years. An analysis of the questionnaires shows that initial enchantment dims around the tenth year of married life.

The original glow goes but isn't forgotten. It tends to reappear after the silver wedding anniversary, growing more mellow with each subsequent year.

Some participants in the survey didn't wear wedding bands. It was necessary to ask, "are you married?" Their comments, as they spurned the questionnaire, included:

—"No. But my wife is."

—"I wish I wasn't."

Typical recollections of the bridegrooms:

—"Oh, heck, I kept thinking. How am I going to get the cat out from under my feet." He said "I do" at a home wedding where even pets were invited.

—"It'll be for a long, long time," recalled a husband of 22 years.

—"I don't think I had a chance to say 'I do' loud enough for even me to hear it. She had the last and loudest word then — and still has."

—"I kept wondering if I'd get a ticket," said the bridegroom of 20 years. "I was double-parked."

—"There, I did it and I'm glad," responded a man married two years.

—"What am I letting myself in for?," answered another.

—"I thought of nothing at all," said a husband of 15 years. "I was too happy to think — happy about marrying the girl I loved at the time."

"—I just wished my knees would stop knocking," said a veteran of 10 years."

—"When I said 'I do' I thought that I'd make it a better marriage than the one my always-fighting parents had."

—"When I said 'si' — as we do when married in Argentina — It was seven years ago. I'm about to develop a serious case of seven years' hitch!"

—"I said the words and kept wondering: why didn't we get out of here quick. It was snowing and I was afraid we'd need a tow. I didn't have snow tires."

Some of the bridegroom just felt trapped, putting it this way: "Well, old boy, you can't get out of it now. You just said 'I do' and a promise is a promise."

Several admitted the mind went blotto. These men have absolutely no recollection of even saying the two words.

Others wondered about the possibility of making a mistake, saying at ceremony's end: "Oh, well, now it's too late."

One bridegroom said he never said "I do." The ceremony was in French. He didn't speak a word of French, his bride's native language.

"I simply nodded," he recalled, "and I remember that I was pretty groggy that day."

Other comments:

"I sure could use a drink." "What in the world am I doing here!" "How in the world did I get into this!"

The most sentimental recollection came from a man married 41 years. He said:

"As I said 'I do,' I remember thinking — thank God, I got what I wanted. Now I'm happy."

And what do women think when they say "I do?" A husband of 15 years guessed it this way:

"All women remember s the sound of a steel trap slamming shut," he said. "Clink. That did it."

Sherry J. Walker Becomes Bride of Paul D. Cook

The marriage of Miss Sherry J. Walker and Paul D. Cook took place at 6 p.m. May 29, at the Skyway Baptist Church. The Rev. James McKee performed the ceremony, and nuptial music included the traditional wedding march and "Bless This House."

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis W. Walker of 1034 Florence Ave., was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Orris F. Cook of 2007 S. Corona St.

Arrangements of white gladioli at the altar formed the background for the ceremony.

The bride's gown of white chiffon over taffeta was made with fitted bodice and long tapered sleeves. Her flowers were white roses, which she carried on a white Bible.

Miss Marilyn Elmore, wearing blue taffeta, was maid of honor. Her flowers were pink roses. Roy Lynn Suddarth attended the bridegroom as best man.

Blue and white iris decorated the table at the reception which was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Walker wore for her daughters' wedding a dress of taupe lace with brown accessories. Mrs. Cook chose a dress of eggshell lace with white accessories.

Sandy Johnson presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. LeRoy Richardson served the cake.

For her honeymoon traveling costume, the bride chose an apricot-pink suit and a corsage of white roses.

Bank Needs Bones

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hope for the deaf and partially deaf is being limited by the scarcity of research material, says Dr. Paul H. Ward, assistant professor of otolaryngology (ears, nose and throat) at the University of Chicago.

A program termed the Temporal Bone Banks Program for Research in Disorders of Hearing and Equilibrium, is designed to provide this material.

Ward explained in an interview that ear banks urge individuals who suffer hearing loss to will their ear bones for research.

A donor signs a pledge card certifying that the temporal ear bones may be removed for medical research after his death.

Temporal bones, Ward explained are located on both sides of the skull and contain hearing organs and the balance mechanism.

"The inner ear is so difficult to test and examine during life that the standard data available on practically every organ of the human body are lacking for the ear," Ward said.

Hearing problems affect more than twice as many Americans as heart disease, cancer, polio and tuberculosis combined, he said, but research in the field "has lagged woefully." Yet, less than two per cent of the national expenditures on medical research is devoted to hearing disorders, said Ward.

The bank program began two years ago and today there are 22 laboratories in universities and hospitals throughout the country.

The bones are sent to these banks, processed and analyzed. Sometimes as many as 300 slides are made from bone, Ward said.

The donor also must arrange for his medical records to be sent to the bank.

The bidding:

3 ♠	Pass	6 ♠	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ◇ West in today's hand was not concerned with salvaging a mere 30 points out of a possible wreck. He was more concerned with avoiding the wreck itself. In this he succeeded by keeping a stiff upper lip when the crucial moment arrived, recognizing that one trick does not beat a slam.

South reached a contract of six spades and, when the dummy was spread, it appeared that he was an outstanding favorite to win. There were a number of chances open to him. The club jack might drop on the first, second or third round. If the club suit failed to oblige, there was still a chance of holding the losses in the heart suit to one trick.

South's leap to six spades, far from being brash, was in reality on the conservative side. He held considerably more than an opening bid, while partner had opened and jumped in a manner that suited his tastes. At least a fleeting thought should have been given to the possibilities of a grand slam which, indeed, would have been a cinch had North's hearts and diamonds been interchanged. As the hand was constituted, there was considerable duplication of values in the diamond suit.

The jack of diamonds was opened and taken by the ace. Trumps were drawn and declarer tried the heart play at once. Even after giving up a trick in this suit, declarer could still rely upon the hope that clubs would break favorably, or that a squeeze might develop.

While trumps were being drawn, West did some thinking. There were obviously no spade or diamond tricks for his side. South surely had the ace of clubs and possibly the queen as well. It appeared that the only hope was to take two heart tricks. When declarer led a heart, West promptly played low. South played the nine from dummy (clearly the best percentage play — it succeeds whenever the heart honors are split and West holds the ten). East won with the ten. From this point on, there was nothing declarer could do to bring in the hand.

It is argued that West might have lost his heart trick by playing low. The answer is, "What's 30 points more or less, when hundreds of points are involved?"

Sewing Tricks Will Be Demonstrated at Penney's

Home sewers take note! Miss Raymonde, Maranda, a fashion representative from Coats and Clark, will be in J. C. Penney Store to show Colorado Springs women how new methods have made sewing easier. Miss Maranda will be in town on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday June 25, 26 and 27 and is eager to meet home sewers.

Miss Maranda will show how to make clothes with that all-important professional look by means of handy tips, one concerning interfacing collars. Even experienced sewers have problems with this particular phase of clothes construction and Miss Maranda, by means of step-by-step models, will show a simple way to do this that even beginners will be able to master.

Other handy sewing tips, to name a few, will concern directional cutting, stitching, pressing, hems and an unbelievably fast zipper application.

Along with sewing tips, Miss Maranda will show shoppers the wonderful new decorator uses of the hot-iron tape. No longer used for just patching, this terrific tape can be cut out in cute patterns and used for decorating tablecloths, place mats, curtains, lamp shades — anything that can be ironed. Shoppers will get lots

Food Travels Well To Summer Home In Plastic Dishes

Tired of packing dishes and glassware and all kinds of foods in makeshift boxes and sacks for the trek to a summer cottage?

One way to erase the problem is to use airtight, unbreakable plastic dishes and containers. These are good for fresh menus or for packing leftover foods. Iced drinks, also, can be kept at the right temperature in their own plastic containers.

Here are some practical tips from Tupperware test kitchens for traveling with food:

Transfer coffee from a tin, which can spill or rust, into an airtight, plastic coffee canister. Stow opened cereal boxes or potato chip packages or cookies in a similar container.

Figure that a 20-ounce canister will accommodate one pound of sugar. A 50-ounce unit holds milk and juice, and a giant canister holds eight king-sized bottle drinks, plus ice. As an alternate, 10 pounds of flour can be emptied into the giant unit and sealed tight.

For handling leftovers while moving, place them in plastic bowls with lids. These stack easily, one atop the other.

Another tip for the harassed mother on her way to the lake or country home is to prepare the fixings for one or two meals in advance and pack them, too.

Leisurely picnics are fun and make a break in a long vacation drive.

Perhaps you would like a sandwich-and-fruit menu. Put the children in charge. They'll enjoy packing the bread container. Try raisin, pumpernickel, whole wheat, rye or French bread to give cold cuts a lift. relishes, can go along, too, in separate containers.

Tab for Hotel Thievery Runs Into Millions

FRENCH LICK, Ind. (UPI) — Hotels lose hundreds of thousand of dollars annually because Americans turn slightly dishonest and forgetful when checking out.

The American Hotel Association declined to give an estimate of total loss. But hotel executives report it "runs into a few million" each year for the industry to replace stolen articles and forward forgotten ones.

Lifted items range from Gideon Bibles to desk pens. About the only thing a husband and wife never forget in the rush of packing: one another.

Mrs. Hazel McIntosh, housekeeper at the Sheraton Hotel group's branch in French Lick, Ind., said the most common article left behind by a man is his electric shaver cord.

Cosmetics and lotions, usually kept in the hotel bathroom medicine chest, are left behind by many women.

Both sexes are adept at forgetting sleeping garments.

Slippers, pushed under beds, often are left behind by both sexes. Ditto for toothbrushes and medicines.

What's the oddest item ever left behind? Mrs. McIntosh nominated a pair of false teeth she said were "in good condition." She stored them for three years, but the owner never asked for them.

Hotel security plans include name-stamping on glasses, blankets, sheets and the like, use of oversized pictures that won't fit into suitcases and bolts to anchor television sets.

Tubes are removed from television sets. Radios disappear. So do blankets. Sterling silver in dining rooms is a favorite target.

One New York hotel lost so many sterling demi-tasse spoons it finally switched to plastic spoons and urged guests to take them as souvenirs.

SINGAPORE — Recent income tax revisions in Singapore have caused a slowdown in production by workers taxed the most.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I work in the office of a tannery and the phone rings frequently with people asking advice regarding their leather-topped furniture.

They usually say someone left or spilled an alcoholic drink on the leather table top and it bleached the leather white and "What can I do?" Or "Is it possible to re-dye it exactly?"

Women might try this:

Clean the entire top of the table with saddle soap and let it dry "completely".

"Sparingly", apply a scuff-type liquid polish to the affected area, using a color that matches as closely as possible. If it should stain the leather too dark, pour the polish on a clean cloth and lightly coat the entire top of the table, to more-or-less even the color.

Another question that comes in, is "Can I use varnish or similar products on my leather table tops?"

The answer to this is "no"! Leather is "skin" and as such must breathe. It contains fats and oils introduced in tanning processes to keep it glowing and alive looking. These are all that are necessary to the finish.

If your table top has lost its gloss it most likely is dirty. Again, use saddle soap to clean it! It should be cleaned this way at least every six months. Saddle soap contains the essential oils which leather needs.

And as a parting word of caution, if you must polish leather for any reason use "only" leather dressing polishes sold by most better furniture stores. —Mr. Leather

Dear Heloise:

One of your marvelously intelligent readers suggested turning the ironing board "broad end" to iron flat work.

Tell women not to stop there! This works just as beautifully for men's shirts and blouses down to size 32, "and" boys' shirts.

It "should" work with most of the straight-cut clothes we are all wearing today.

I actually timed the shirt-n blouse routine, using the broad end of my ironing board, and cut my ironing time down by almost two-thirds! What used to take me three hours to iron . . . just takes one hour now. —Converted Ironer

Dear Heloise:

When forming meatballs with all of the gooey stuff included, put a few drops of vinegar on your hands ever so often and the ingredients will not stick to your hands!

This does not mean when flouring them. I just form them first and "then" fry later. —M.I.L.

Dear Heloise:

For people who fix a lot of salads as tuna fish, potato, macaroni, etc., keep a jar of sweet pickle relish on hand and it really makes it easier for mixing. We also use this on hamburgers and weiners. Just dip a teaspoon or so out and mix it. —Mrs. J. K.

Dear Heloise:

For those of us who still use the old-fashioned dish rags . . . the very last thing I do at night in my kitchen is clean the sink with a cleanser which contains bleach. I do not rinse the dishrag but leave it in a corner of the sink overnight. The next morning I rinse it and have a very bright clean rag. —L. M.

Dear Ladies:

We have had many comments on this. I would like to explain this procedure.

A cleanser which says "contains bleach" contains hydrochloride. Hydrochloride . . . in its way . . . is an antiseptic. She has the right idea. —Heloise

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Try Loving Patience

DEAR ABBY: Is there a way to cure a person of talking constantly? When my mother comes to visit us for a week every summer, she doesn't shut her mouth for one minute unless she's asleep. She's always been this way. No matter who is talking she takes over, and changes the subject to something "SHE" wants to talk about. I am getting so I dread her visits. I'm a nervous wreck when she goes home. It's not because she's lonely as she lives with another one of her married children, who also has a family. Heaven help them! They should get a medal! If I sound bitter, I am. —TIRED OF MOTHER'S BABBLING

DEAR TIRED: Your mother is apparently a "compulsive talker". But if others are able to tolerate it, perhaps you should exercise more patience and understanding. We all have to put up with a certain amount of "babbling" from strangers to whom we owe nothing but common courtesy. Don't you think your mother is entitled to at least that much? And perhaps a little more?

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 and very mature for my age. I have been dating since I was 12. I am going steady with a real doll of a guy who is 16. There is only one thing wrong with him. He doesn't know how to kiss. Should I just act like I don't know how to kiss any better than him, or should I tell him he needs a few kissing lessons? —FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Don't tell him he needs kissing lessons unless you're prepared to tell him how you got to be such an expert!

DEAR ABBY: This might help some of your readers. There was a couple who were married six years, wanted a family and could not seem to have any. They both went to doctors and took all the advice their friends offered, but nothing helped. Finally, an old Norwegian woman told them to drink goat's milk. They were amused at the idea, but said, "What can we lose?" So they got a goat and started drinking goat's milk. (Both of them!) Within six months the lady became pregnant. They kept on drinking the goat's milk, and in the next four years they had three more babies. Then they got rid of the goat and have not had a baby since. This is no joke, Abby. The lady is me. —"MOMMY"

(Note to readers: Check local laws before acquiring a goat.)

DEAR ABBY: At the office where my husband works they have dancing during the noon hour. My husband is participating. There are married women, divorcees and single girls working at his office. He made the excuse that he needs the exercise. I don't like the idea. Should I express myself? —WIFE AT HOME

DEAR WIFE: By all means. Tell him if he needs exercise during his lunch hour to take a brisk walk.

Don't put off writing letters. Send one dollar to Abby for her booklet, "How To Write Letters For All Occasions."

Rainbow Girls Grand Assembly Set for Opening

The 34th annual Grand Assembly of Colorado of the International Order of Rainbow for Girls will open at 7 p.m. Wednesday at City Auditorium.

Miss Quentina Scogland, of Boulder, will preside over the four-day conference as Grand Worthy Advisor of the Grand Assembly of Colorado Rainbow Girls.

Wednesday's informal opening program will be "Pathway of Light Session". The formal opening of the meeting is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. Thursday.

At the final session Saturday afternoon, Miss Christina Sauger, of Holly, will be installed as Grand Worthy Matron for the coming year.

The Order of Rainbow for Girls is sponsored by Masonic Lodges and Order of Eastern Star chapters.

Safety Patrol Children Honored By Schools, AAA

Some 15,000 boys and girls from thruout Colorado have been honored this spring by their schools and the Rocky Mountain AAA Club for their valuable service on the school safety patrol.

Merit certificates were awarded to each youngster who served on the patrol during the school year and lapel pins in the form of miniature patrol badges were awarded to those who gave outstanding performances.

The statewide awards program is part of a national campaign to reward the nearly one million boys and girls who this school year have helped protect their classmates from traffic accidents.

President John F. Kennedy, in presenting awards to eight school patrol heroes in Washington last month, described the patrols as valuable "positions of responsibility and leadership which the youngsters have responded to."

The safety patrol program is one of the most effective safety education activities now conducted in elementary schools, according to the auto club.

The patrols are sponsored by civic organizations, parent-teacher groups and in some cases police departments. The AAA club serves as a co-sponsor and supplies equipment, handbooks, supervisors' manuals and other material.

The school safety patrols serve two functions, the club says. First, they keep their classmates on the curb until it is safe to cross the street. Second, and possibly even more important, is the value of patrols in reminding the youngsters and motorists alike to be especially careful at school crossings.

According to the auto club the patrols have made a favorable mark on accident statistics. Since the patrols were first organized in 1922, the traffic death rate of school-age children has dropped nearly one-half, while the death rate of other age groups has doubled.

Region Residents Contribute to Folksong Book

Two women from Canon City and one from Colorado Springs are listed as contributors to the "Colorado Folksong Bulletin," Volume 2 for 1963. The bulletin is published at the University of Colorado, Boulder.

Rubey F. Brookshire of Colorado Springs sent the bulletin a term paper on her grandmother's version of "Willie and Minnee," a tragic ballad which will be published in the bulletin when Miss Brookshire sends the tune.

Giacinta Maschette and Cesarina Santarelli, both of Canon City, are also listed as contributors to the publication.

The bulletin is published to show the kinds of songs that are being collected by the editors at the University of Colorado, who say that they are always glad to exchange copies of the bulletin for old Colorado songs.

People who have old songs are urged to write Ben Gary Lumpkin, the editor.

PARIS—An American brand of floor wax is to be made in France near the famous railroad car where two armistices were signed.

YMCA in Need Of Playground Equipment

The YMCA is in need of equipment for a new playground which was built recently next to the Youth Center by the Y's Mens Club.

Especially needed is a heavy duty swing set made out of at least 2½ inch pipe. The ordinary home set would not work well because of the heavy usage.

A set of monkey bars could also be used in the playground area if any interested person would have one to donate for this use.

The YMCA Youth Center is also in need of some table games for use inside such as checkers, dominoes, chess and ping pong paddles.

Anyone wishing to donate such equipment to the 'Y' should bring it to the main YMCA at Nevada Avenue and Bijou Street or call 633-4643.

Underground Parking Plan Falls Flat

LONDON (AP) — Patronage at a seven-acre underground parking garage in Hyde Park has been "very disappointing" since it was opened in October 1962, according to a spokesman for the garage firm leasing the $2,800,000 car park from the Westminster City Council.

Opened in elaborate ceremonies by the Prime Minister and designod to hold 1,100 cars, the garage never has been more than half full, the spokesman said. Complaints are that it is too expensive, too isolated, and hard for casual visitors to locate.

MISS LILLIAN PICKEN

* * *

Missionary to Address United Church Women

At a luncheon to be given at the First Presbyterian Church on June 18, the United Church Women of the Pikes Peak Area will hear Miss Lillian Picken who lived for over 43 years in Bombay State, India. She served under the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions as an educator, organizer of public health and social services and as an evangelistic leader among the villagers of western India. For some time she was the commissioner for five thousand Indian Girl Guides (the counterpart of the Girl Scouts) and before her retirement was cited by the government for her services to the country.

Miss Picken says that the great new country of India, the largest Democratic Republic in the world, is crucially important to the whole world and particularly to America because of the unique experiment in democracy being carried out there under almost impossible conditions.

Since her retirement in 1958 Miss Picken has traveled in some forty states, speaking to churches, colleges, schools, professional and service clubs, relating the story of the new India and her amazing "Progress Thru Democracy." She spends her summers as a missionary visitor to youth and family camps. She comes to Colorado as a leader at the Interdenominational Rocky Mountain School of Missions to be held at Colorado Women's College in Denver the week of June 23.

Prayers for Peace, the monthly program of the United Church Women, which is usually scheduled on the 16, will be included in the services following the 12:30 luncheon on June 18 in the First Presbyterian Church.

Luncheon reservations may be made with the key women of the participating churches, or by calling the Presbyterian Church office, 633-3771.

Expert Hails System of Mending, Ending Marriage

By BOB METCALFE

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan seems to have found a system that could cure much of the United States' divorce ills, says a Californian who has researched 11 countries in the past six months for divorce laws and customs that tend to save marriages.

Jay Burchett, a 47-year-old engineering professor at Pasadena City College, is vice-president of United States Divorce Reform Inc., a non - profit organization launched two years ago to tackle America's high divorce rate. (He said it averages about 28 out of every 100 marriages).

Burchett, on leave from his college at half-pay, ended here his world-wide research into divorce customs and laws. The tour took him to see judges and government officials in Britain, Germany, Switzerland, Scandinavia and central Europe.

He intends to write a book and lecture in the United States, hopeful the ideas he has picked up will be adopted as state laws.

Burchett likes Japan's family courts system, he said, because it "tries to save" floundering marriages with case teams of psychiatrists, doctors and priests—and has accountants to divide property when divorce is unavoidable.

As in Britain, judges specialize in divorce and act only on case-worker recommendations.

And the system can function without lawyers. Divorce lawyers would starve in Japan, said Burchett, since the Japanese can get a divorce for as little as a $25 court fee. Grounds here include divorce by consent, though a three-month waiting period is mandatory.

Japan's family court system, set up in 1948 when the Japanese constitution was written, is based largely on studies made around 1900 by Judge Ben B. Lindsay of Chicago.

Japan's divorce rate (69,000 in 1961) is one of the lowest of any country Burchett visited.

"Japan takes a positive approach," said Burchett. "In America we have an adversary system that pits husband against wife for the material things they can salvage from a divorce. It seldom tries to solve the petty differences that often lead to divorce. We destroy, rather than save marriages."

American couples get precious little help from lawyers in solving their problems instead of going ahead with divorce, he said.

Los Angeles divorce lawyers alone make $20 million a year," he maintained. "Lawyers are paid to liquidate marriages."

Said Burchett, "We want to take divorce out of the world of lawyers and put it into the hands of people specializing in personal relations."

Among the countries he visited, Burchett found Sweden's divorce rate one of the highest. Britain had one of the lowest.

Burchett said he found in his tour that European women were not so downtrodden but pretty happy with their lot.

He said it was not a valid argument to blame U.S. divorces on American women's independence —"foreign women married to U.S. citizens have the same divorce rate, so the system's to blame."

He saw hope in the fact that a family court started in Toledo, Ohio, by Judge Paul Alexander in 1951 had reduced the divorce rate there, and that other U.S. cities were taking notice of the court's operation.

Burchett's interest in divorce reform prompted him to run for the California legislature last June. He said he spent $280, drew 5,500 votes and finished fourth among the seven candidates. His platform was based strictly on divorce law reform.

Burchett has a personal interest in divorce law reform. His parents were divorced when he was six. He is divorced, and has custody of his five-year-old son.

Comparison of Costs Show High Schools More Costly

Editor's note: This is the eighth in a series on public schools in El Paso County.

By GLENN URBAN

The Lytle School District is the only public school district in the county which does not have a high school.

Cost figures for the district indicate quite clearly that high school operations are much more higher priced than grade school.

For instance, the average cost per pupil per day in the Lytle district is about $1.77, whereas the Alta Vista district average about $5.40, and the Falcon district averaged about $2.76. Both of the last two listed have high schools.

The following figures are based on the 1961-62 school year and fiscal year, which began on July 1, 1961 and ended June 30, 1962.

The Lytle Public School District, 39 J, south of Colorado Springs and joint with Fremont County, had done teacher for 21 pupils. This district ends its high school students to the public school of the parent's choice in the area. This is the breakdown of the students:

Kindergarten — none
1st grade — 2
2nd grade — 9
3rd grade — 4
4th grade — 1
5th grade — 2
6th grade — 1
7th grade — 1
8th grade — 1

The district lists no value listed for the building site, and lists the building at $8,000. Other equipment is valued at $2,000.

Assessed valuation of the district is $300,005, and the special fund tax levy is 11 mills, which brings in $3,702.18 in taxes.

The district has no bonded indebtedness and thus no levy for bond retirement.

Specific ownership taxes brought $230, making total local revenues in the district $4,011.30, including the $78.96 collected in delinquent taxes.

The county school fund returned $4,226.93, and total state aid was $3,398.12, including $2,640.96 for class room unit support and $686.82 as the state's share of transportation costs.

Total receipts were $9,636.94, and total expenditures were $6,392.42.

Teacher salary was $3,800, textbooks cost $159.79, the school library cost nothing, and teaching supplies cost $53.01, making total instructional cost $4,012.80.

The Lytle district is another one that contracts its bus service, and expenses for that were $1,395.

Building operating costs were $334.96 and maintenance costs were $233.22.

With 21 students and the instructional cost for the year at $4012.80, the average cost per student for the year was about $191.

Figuring the total operational

Based on 172 days, cost per student per day for overall operational cost was about $1.77.

Alta Vista, School District No. 45, has a total of five teachers including the administrator for its 44 students. The students were in these classes:

Kindergarten — none
1st grade — 3
2d grade — none
4th grade — 6
5th grade — 3
6th grade — 2
7th grade — 3
8th grade — 1
9th grade — 6
10th grade — 5
11th grade — 6
12th grade — 5

The district, which has its high school in Alta Vista, values the sites for its school buildings at $16,05.71.

The buildings were valued at $83,964, and transportation equipment was listed at $9,000.

Assessed valuation of the district was $631,450. The special fund levy was 29.50 mills and the bond levy was 2.80 mills, making the total district mill levy 32.

Live Ammunition Cleared From Carson Range

Ft. Carson's 94th Ordnance Detachement (Explosive Disposal) recently cleared Ft. Carson's artillery impact area of unexplode ammunition. As part of their unit training the ordnance men destroyed 266 unexploded rounds of artillery, grenade and mortar ammunition on the firing ranges of the mountain post.

In addition to their ordnance disposal job at Ft. Carson the 94th, along with the 41st. Ordnance Company have experts on call 24 hours a day to serve the civilian community to check war trophies or other potentially dangerous explosive material.

Specially trained explosive disposal men from the two units serve several states throughout the Great Plains and Rocky Mountain regions.

Military and civilian personnel are reminded by the explosive experts that unexploded rounds are frequently found in the impact area. These should not be moved or handled in any way. If such a round is found it should be reported to the nearest military or civilian authorities for disposal.

College Men's Average Yearly Wage Nears $10,000

The average income of men with a college degree is on the verge of reaching $10,000 a year to establish a new financial milestone in the rising money value of an education, the Institute of Life Insurance reported today.

The figure crossed $9,500 a year in 1961, and has been going up steadily thruout the Post-World War II period, the Institute stated based on new data compiled by the U.S. Bureau of the Census on the average income of males, 25 to 64 years old, by years of school completed. The biggest rise, which added up to practically $2,500 in annual income, occurred between 1949 and 1956, the Institute said.

The rate of growth has slowed down noticeably since then, the Institute noted, but the annual income figure increased by another $800 for the 1956-61 period.

"Since these figures are statistical averages for all adult males with a college degree during the predominant part of their working lives," the Institute said, "they do not necessarily apply to individual cases.

However, while some will lag, many others will go on and do far better than average, based on their own capacity and ambition, and their adaptability and performance in an age of rapidly increasing technology and sophistication in the means of production and in other economic activities.

"The timeliness of the latest evidence on the dollars and cents value of an education and its growth is enhanced by the importance of June in the educational calendar, when more than 400,000 of our youh will get their coveted sheepskins this year from colleges and universities, and about 1¾ million more will be awarded high school diplomas.

Beyond that, the figures serve as a reminder to the many millions of others still in school of the importance of going on to attain the educational groundwork and training so vital to individual progress in our times.

The school dropout problem has become a matter of widespread national concern, particularly in view of the employment experience of teen-agers in this group.

"The rising earning power and income of the college graduate is a highlight of the general upgrading of income throuout the working population over the last two decades. The Census Bureau ficant proportion of the more the holder of a high school diploma rose from $3,800 to more than $6,100 between 1949 and 1961.

For the elementary school graduate the increase was from just under $3,000 to over $4,700.

"A basic fact that stands out from the figures is the wide gap in average income that exists between men with varying degrees of educational attainment.

The dollar difference has been widening as between the high school diploma and the college degree, and in 1961 it amounted to an average of more than $3,400 a year.

"Figured out over the typical working life, the difference translates into around $150,000 in a lifetime income. A college degree opens many doors of opportunity that are closed to others, and the great majority of these graduates are found in the professional and managerial occupations, which are at the top of the national income scale.

"The figures likewise emphasize to those at the educational crossroads in their lives the material rewards of completing their schooling to get the degree or diploma as the case may be and thus avoiding a dropout penalty.

"In the college group, for example, the difference in 1961 was between an average income of under $7,400 a year for those with one to three years of college, and more than $9,500 for those who graduated.

The comparable difference for the high school groups was $800 a year between the ones who graduated and those who didn't, and for the elementary grades almost $1,300 a year. Such differences in earning power figure out to tens of thousands a year in a lifetime income.

"The Census Bureau has not developed comparable income figures for women by years of school completed, explaining that a large proportion of them are not in the labor market and many of those who work are employed on a part-time basis.

Obviously, however, educational qualifications are an important factor with respect to the positions held and earning power of a significant proportion of the more than 24 million women now in the working population.

This is particularly true of the career occupations, such as the professional group where women represent two out of every five workers, and the nonfarm managerial class where the female proportion is one out of every seven."

Florence Board To Rule on Old School Buildings

The future of McCandless and Emerson schools, two ancient monuments to Florence elementary education, will be decided by the board of education of school district Re-2 (J) at its meeting next week, it was indicated this week by Superintendent of Schools Barto Babitz.

Now that school is closed for the season, the McCandless school building, well over 60 years old, is expected to go to the auction block with bids to be drawn up by the board.

The fate of Emerson, also a pioneer structure in the community, is less positive. There is some indication that the building may be saved from the wrecking crews and used for storage of school equipment.

However, the board is expected to sell eight lots, or the north half of the school grounds on highway 115 on a bid basis.

It was also reported that the board will draw up long-term lease agreements with Brewster, Rockvale, and Coal Creek residents for the school buildings in the three communities.

The agreements, which are drawn up for 99 years, call for the use of the buildings a community centers with stipulations that the buildings may be taken over by school district at any time they are needed, and that the buildings be kept in good repair.

Community boards are appointed to see the agreements are kept in force.

OUTDOOR LIVING

It's that season of the year again—the time when millions of Americans, unleashed after a long, cold, confining winter, make their mass move for the great outdoors. The season for outdoor living is at hand.

For some it will be a simple maneuver. They'll dust off the porch or patio furniture, stock up on charcoal for the grill and move a combination kitchen-living room to the lawn. For others it will be a trailer trek to some near or remote part of the country to camp or fish while living al fresco.

Teen-age boys will get that irrepressible desire to "sleep out." This may come in the form of a Boy Scout expedition or an urge to camp out in the yard—anything to sleep under the stars and wonder anew at nature's mystic moods.

It's an All-American urge and afflicts citizens of all ages—this Outdoor Living. Now's the season for renewing this pastime, and there's a world of new ideas for enjoying the world outdoors.

We hope you'll enjoy this presentation of many of these new items and perhaps even some of the old ones will seem new.

So whether your yen for life outdoors takes you as far as the distant mountains and resorts or is satisfied right in your own back yard—have fun. It's been a rough winter.

Potato Chips Star in Entree And Dessert

Forget the fear of the weatherman spoiling your picnic. Here's a picnic for indoors or outdoors: picnic ham steak as the main course, with country style peach pie for dessert.

Counting one thick slice of boneless, ready-to-eat ham (about ½ or ¾ inch thick) and about ½ cup crushed potato chips for each serving, spread ham slices lightly with mustard, then sprinkle generously with crushed potato chips. Wrap each ham steak in a double thickness of heavy foil; seal tightly with double folds. Refrigerate until ready to grill. At picnic time heat wrapped ham steaks on grill until steam begins to escape, about 15 or 20 minutes. Open wrap before serving. Serve with additional potato chips and pickles.

For the country style peach pie, drain a 16 or 17-ounce can of peach halves, reserving ½ cup of the syrup. Crush contents of a 6- to 8-ounce bag of chips. Blend crushed potato chips with 1½ cups cottage cheese and ½ cup syrup. Place mixture in bottom of 9-inch pie plate. Arrange peach halves, rounded side down on chip-cheese mixture. Place a maraschino cherry in each hollow of peach halves. Serves 6 to 8.

Clever Wrapping Makes Gift for Hostess 'Special'

"Oh, you shouldn't have done it," says your hostess as you present her with a small gift upon arrival to show your appreciation for a patio party or a summer weekend.

A last-minute purchase isn't always appropriate, according to Margaret Drummond of the Papercraft Corp.

"A better idea," Mrs. Drummond suggests, "is to bring a present that shows special thoughtfulness, no matter what its price. Music, for example, is something most enjoy."

Mrs. Drummond has several ideas for dressing up gifts.

A square dance record, for example, can be wrapped in gaily patterned paper, then decorated with solid color paper cut into straw hat and bandanna shapes. A dinner music record can be wrapped in rich embossed foil paper and decorated with musical motes.

Any visitor is welcome who brings a gift for the hosts' children. A furry toy animal is fine for tots to age 4, an educational game is good from 4 to 9 years, a book is worthwhile for older ones.

Decorate a package containing a stuffed bunny to LOOK like a bunny. Paste on the wrap paper blue circles for eyes, an orange triangle for the nose, lengths of pink or white tissue paper for ears and broom straws for whiskers.

Cover a package containing an auto travel game in paper with a bright circus pattern. You can glue a tiny plastic auto between two strips of contrasting tape meandering across the top like a highway. That will intrigue any youngster.

A package containing a book can be decorated with something symbolic of its contents. For a boy, choose one of the geometric papers and top with a toy plane, rocket or fishing lures. For a girl, choose a dainty floral paper and top with pincushion, toy comb and brush or tiny stuffed animal.

MUSHROOM SCRAMBLED EGGS

Stir 1 can (10 ½ ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup until smooth in a large bowl. Blend in 8 slightly beaten eggs. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in aluminum skillet; pour in egg mixture. Stir occasionally while cooking, until eggs are firm and set. Serves 4 to 6.

Car Should Be Comfortable as Well as Safe

You can tour without tears this summer if you give a little forethought to your car. Since it's to be your home for the term of the trip, see that it's comfortable as well as safe. Give it a thorough cleaning, under the seats, in the trunk and glove compartment. Leave anything home that won't be used in the next few days.

Vacuuming is the surest way to remove accumulated dust from the upholstery, crumbs, bits and parts of paper, dried-up grass and cakes of dirt from the floor.

Then pack the car methodically with such items as flashlight, first aid kit and tire repair equipment. One item that you're wise to stow in the glove compartment is a box of baking soda. You'll be able to start each morning's hitch of the trip with a clean windshield if you wipe it off with a damp cloth sprinkled with baking soda. Go over it with a clean damp cloth and dry. Commercial car wash operators have found that nothing as effectively removes evidence of insects that have taken the wrong course. Apply the same treatment to headlights.

Add a teaspoon of soda to the water of your windshield wiper tank and you can clean your windshield while driving should it get heavily soaked.

Summer Sets Millions Traveling Outdoor Trails

If someone dredges up the archaic epithet "You're all wet" this summer, just reply, "So's your old man." Chances are you both will be correct, for as the days grow longer and the desire stronger to get outdoors, more and more Americans will head for the water.

According to a report by the Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commission to the White House, as the population grows so does the demand for recreation. And, playtime will outfly the stork. The commission estimates that the population will double by the year 2,000 while recreation activity will triple, the result of more money jingling in our pockets and increasing leisure and mobility.

What kind of pleasure will be sought the most? Water sports, studies indicate. At this juncture, the National Association reports, the National Recreation Association reports, "Sports related to water and boating are on the upsurge. The increase is more than in other established sports."

Reflecting this is the growth 20 per cent annually of skin diving that is enjoyed by more than 3 million enthusiasts who gobble up approximately $50 million worth of equipment. Last year, for the first time in three years, more swimming pools were being built. This is in line with the NRA's report that swimming soon will be the favored sport in this country for all over 12 years old.

Right now it is pushing driving and walking for the most-popular sport honors. In related water sports, more than 36 million go down to the sea in ships of all shapres, sizes and power. There are approximately 7½ million pleasure boats plying our inland and coastal waters with slightly more than 4 million of these churning the waters with outboard or inboard motors. Fishing gets 33½ million hardy souls out each year and again will prove to be among the top five choices of what the family or some member of the family will do this summer.

But, landlubbers aren't being left high and dry as far as outdoor fun is concerned.

Family camping, for example, is becoming so popular that 22,000 sites now in use are threatening to burst their boundaries. By 1966, 30,000 sites will be available.

Whether fishing, playing tennis or golf or just looking for scenic sights, 85 per cent of those seeking summer pleasure will be driving. And, the American Society of Travel Agents estimates the 90 million who took trips within this country last year will be at it again, joined by others anxious to see beyond the city limits. The favorite sightseeing spots of California, Florida and New York City again will be crowded.

Not everyone is on the road all the time and innumerable families make the most of pleasant summer weather in their own back yards.

Thanks to the influence of the West's way of life, more and more families are cooking out. After a slow start, this way of summer life is steamrolling. In 1951 about 250,000 grills were sold. By 1960 the number finding a special niche in U.S. home life was 3 million and sales continue to increase 20 per cent each year.

Men in the industry cite surveys and psychological reasons for this growing interest in outdoor cookery, but their findings notwithstanding, people like to cook out because all that recreation makes them hungry.

You Can Raise Roof Attractively When Painting

Every homeowner sooner or later becomes eager for something new. We're all up-to-date on the latest in interior designs. However, the exterior is just as important.

A majority of homes of today and yesterday have peaked roofs. You can take advantage of this essentially attractive look by emphasizing its shape, its line, its spaciousness and even its color. This isn't a completely new idea. A material, called Terne and known to our parents and grandparents as valley tin or roofer's tin, has been an American favorite for almost two centuries. With its lead-tin alloy coating, it is adaptable to paint. This means an easy change of roof color.

When selecting colors, keep in mind warm colors for chilly climates and soft, cool tones for sunny regions. Unusual effects through a new color theme idea called Terne Tonalities can be created by using a series of tones within the same color range. These can be painted on the horizontal seam roof construction with the colors rising from darker to lighter at the peak. Three attractive tonalities run from terra cotta through sand to an off-white blue-gray through turquoise blue, and series of soft greens.

In addition to color, if you've decided to reroof your home and give it a new face, here's your chance to achieve unusual design effects as well. Because of the combinations of seam constructions possible, your roofer can create definite patterns.

You can accentuate the slope of the roof by a triangular effect, with the top of an inverted V at the peak, widening as it descends. Or, you can have him combine the Bermuda horizontal seam with a vertical standing seam, giving an individual, two-level appearance.

Ceramic Tile Used To Cover Bare Spot

Do you have a heavily shaded area in your yard where the grass just won't grow, regardless of your planning and planting? Not all is lost. You can convert the area into a pleasant spot for your outdoor meals or lounging by surfacing it with colorful ceramic tile. If you build a barbecue pit there, cover it with matching tile. There are more than 250 colors and designs to choose from.

Forget Your Worries! Outdoors Is for Living

Time was when we were all happy to get outdoors in summer. But now that we LIVE out there, we have our doubts, what with fence-to fence lawn, fancy furniture, exotic plants, artistic lighting, barbecue equipment that is an engineering production. Some homes have art on the terrace walls.

Everything is getting too precious.

A wonderful stage has been set. But the family wants to know: when does the play begin.

Nobody enjoys the rules and regulations.

Dad is accused of running the kids are told to take off their grass. There is barbecue grease on the patio walk, charcoal ashes on the deck, and shame on the thoughtless person who put his feet on the new chaise lounge cushions.

C'mon now, let's enjoy the summer.

Trees are for little boys to climb. And if you can't play baseball in your own backyard, well, now! But Mom worries about those glass hurricane lamps, clay strawberry barrels and her prized dahlias.

The Junior set has been fast losing ground anyway to parents' projects. How can we have slides and swings when we need a pretty lawn for croquet, ask Mon, who has just become an expert on crab grass removal.

If the man of the house says he'll be 'dandelioned' before he'll lie in the broiling sun and clip the grass around the trees with manicure scissors, he's got a point. Visitors will never notice the difference, unless they're midgets.

The trouble with the new fancy outdoor diggin's is not so much that there is no diggin' allowed, but rather that the family just doesn't dig the rules.

Everybody must be prepared to take his post when a dark cloud appears. Perish the thought, but happens - everything must be moved into the cellar until the shower is over. How many times can one do this with vigor during a rainy spell?

Let's get a new perspective on our outdoor living, and live it up. If the cushions aren't waterproof, and dirtproofed, we're sorry, Mom. And if your outdoor furniture can't take it, for shame, you're not a good shopper. Breakable gear doesn't belong outdoors with the elements. And if you insist on taking a facsimile of the kitchen stove into the yard, you had better make a slip-cover for it, or suffer the consequences.

We don't mind tiptoeing through the tulips that you've placed in the entrance path, and putting raincoats over the boxwood when it storms, but couldn't we please use the swimming pool if we promise not to get the water too ditry?

Blacktopped Area Can Provide Fun Space

A blacktopped terrace or driveway turn-around area can provide an area for family fun, says paving specialists for Allied Chemical's Barrett Division. Family games that require painted court lines — such as badminton, paddle tennis or shuffleboard — are ideally suited for a blacktopped driveway.

WHIPPED CINNAMON

Remove whipped butter from 1 (8-ounce) carton and stir in ½ cup verifine sugar and 1¼ teaspoons cinnamon. Return to carton to store and serve. Spread on hot toast. Makes enough for 12 slices.

Proper Duds Add To Beach Pleasure

Happy days of surf and sand are back, and if you want to squeeze the most out of summer days at beach or pool, you should assemble your equipment and accessories in advance.

Make a list of the things you need for maximum enjoyment and then jot down the budget you will need for these things. In addition to such items as bathing suits, beach wraps, bags and caps, you will probably want some play equipment, especially if there are youngsters in the family.

Well-equipped sun-and-surfer this summer will need two swim suits, at least two caps, a beach bag, beach shoes, beach hat, an umbrella, a waterproof mattress and a couple of beach towels.

It is also advisable to have a half dozen or so inexpensive bath towels that can be reserved just for beach use, saving your better and more expensive towels. For youngsters you will want beach balls and some rubber animals to take in the water.

Don't forget sunglasses and beach cosmetics. On this list should be suntan lotions and a good nourishing cream to ward off dryness.

Down by the pool or at the shore, the poncho with gay appliques is a practical coverup and attention-getter.

To make, you will need one square yard of broadcloth or terry cloth, six yards of bias tape in contrasting color and one-fourth yard printed fabric for applique. Two buttons form the eyes.

To stitch on your Slant-O-Matic sewing machine, bind four sides of the square with bias tape. Fold square diagonally and cut 11-inch opening for neckline in center of fold. Bind neckline. Fish applique is 8 by 4½ inches printed fabric cut in egg shape. Pin in position and stitch.

GOOD LIGHTING doubles the usefulness and nighttime attractiveness of a patio. Here the wall is brushed with light from a floodlight set to the right. The left wing of the wall is accented by a spotlight concealed at dead center while lily pad lights float in the pool. Inside the strawberry jar is an incandescent bulb while the small waterfall and shrubbery in the garden area at far left are bathed in a soft glow of light from a mercury floodlight.

Garden Comes to Life With Night Lighting

Now that warmer nights are here, many of you look to your gardens and patios.

A sure way to derive greater pleasure from the garden and outdoor living areas is to install lighting. Garden lighting makes it possible to dine and entertain outdoors after dark. It is also a "safety first" for it enables family and friends to watch their steps at night. It can be a protection against unwelcome intruders, too.

Fortunately, the lighted garden is not a luxury. Miss Myrtle Fahsbender, director of home lighting for Westinghouse, emphasizes that garden lighting is economically feasible for any garden. Installation can be temporary or permanent.

Here are some basic rules in carrying out your lighting plan:

Avoid "whitewashing" the entire garden in imitation of daylight. The result is often flat and monotonous. The fascination of a lighted garden lies in contrasts of light and shadows, in highlights and silhouette effects.

Scatter the lighting units. Place them so they illuminate a flower bed, a well-shaped tree, a path, a pool, a rock garden.

Conceal the light source. Respect the neighbor's right to privacy and place light bulbs and fixtures so that the light is confined to your own premises.

Use white light on flowers. Colored light may be used sparingly on white statuary, walls, fences and trellises and is most effective in pools and fountains.

A little light goes a long way if directed on light-colored walls, fences, concrete and gravel paths. They all serve as reflectors of light.

Top Drivers Say Keeping Cool Key To Safe Driving

Keep cool, boy.

That's one of the keys to safe driving as shown by a poll of pros of the road. Their observations are food for thought all through the travel-packed outdoor months. These "pros" are bus drivers from all parts of the country who have helped make bus travel 17 times safer than private car travel.

"If there was one bit of warning advice I would rate above all others," says Spencer L. Hege of Charlotte, N. C., "it would be 'have patience.' "

Hege, a Greyhound bus driver, said he believes driver irritability is a big cause of accidents. Other hazards: following too closely, speeding and entering highways from side roads carelessly.

Summing up his feeling about others on the road, Hege observes: "I always expect the other man to make a mistake. If somebody tries to pass me and he hasn't got room to make it, I give him room, all that I can. No man has the right to let another man kill himself."

New Bedford, Mass., driver Joseph P. McCarthy has gone 1¼ million miles for Greyhound without a chargeable accident in the last 25 years. He advocates that drivers "yield to other drivers and to the traffic regulations."

"I know it doesn't sound too original," he says, "but it works. It saves lives." He lists these suggestions for staying alive and uninjured on the highway:

"Drive the only safe way, the right way. Learn the six basic driving maneuvers: turning, passing, stopping, parking, braking, and entering traffic. Get into the habit of doing them right.

"'Love thy neighbor.' Protect him and you protect yourself.

"Don't be a traffic fighter. You don't save any time this way and it's dangerous as all get out. Don't fight traffic. Join it.

"Don't take chances. Chance-taking can become a habit. Leave it out of your driving pattern," says McCarthy.

Temper tantrums are for babies. "Many a hot temper has been cooled off by an accident.

"If your slip shows, find out why." He advises, "If you make an error, stop when you can and analyze it so you won't make the same mistake again."

Land, Preliminary Costs 25 Per Cent

Purchase of land and preliminary costs in building a home account for about 25 per cent of total development costs, estimate building specialists at Allied Chemical's Barrett Division. This is more than double the pre-war average of 10 to 12 per cent.

Summertime Means Mildew Trouble to Many

Summertime means mildew troubles to many home owners. The whitish mold grows on wood, leather, cloth, paper and dozens of other organic materials and occurs indoors and outdoors. Where conditions are damp and warm all or most of the time, mildew thrives.

While mildew can bewashedoff again and again unless the conditions that caused it are elimiated. It frequently shows itself in damp basements, crawl spaces, closets and dark corners, but often makes an appearance on outside portions of the house where sunlight never hits.

One home owner found mildew onstantly forming on the side of the house in an area about 20 square feet. He discovered that shrubbery, planted close to the house at that point, was keeping out the sun. As a result, the side of the house behind the shrubbery failed to dry out after a rainfall. He dug out the shrubbery and replanted it in a different location, not too close to the house. After the mildew was washed off, it never returned.

Where there is no such easy solution — and the product under attack can be painted — it is best to paint the surface with a mildew-proof paint. Years ago this was done by adding a mildew retardant to regular paint, but it now is possible to buy paint which contains what is called a mildewicide.

Before painting, it is important that all traces of the mildew be removed from the wood or other material. In mild cases, soap and little warm water will do the job. But for an effective result, it is better to use any of the household liquid cleaners which contain either sodium hypochlorite or trisodiuphosphate.

There are half a dozen or more household cleaning products which have one of these chemicals in them. The labels will give you this information. If the cleaner has sodium, hypochlorite, mix one and a-half cups of it to a gallon water. If it has trisodium phosphate, mix three heaping tablespoons if it to a gallon water. In either case, brush or scrub on the solution, allow it to remain for five minutes and the rinse with clean water.

You can combat mildew if you remember the comgination that causes it—dampness and warmth.

Special Driving Technique Needed For Turnpikes

Turnpikes and expressways are special duty roads that require special driving techniques and planning.

One turnpike problem is finding a place to stop overnight. Those turnpikes designed for cross-state travel, such as the Indiana and Ohio toll roads, usually have motel accommodations at interchange areas.

The toll roads designed for commuter use in and around cities, as the Illinois toll road, have few or no restaurants and motels. The sure way to find night accommodations is to plan likely stopping points and then to check the motel listings put out by auto clubs and motel chains for lodging at your planned stop.

Most mechanical troubles on turnpikes involve running out of gas, no radiator water, flat tires or defective headlights.

Accidents do happen on turnpikes, although the death and accident rate is lower than on other roads according to the National Safety Council. A prime safety rule is to get your car off the roadway if you have trouble, even if you have to rip a flat tire to shreds to do it.

To prevent rearend collisions after dark, (a major turnpike hazard) 12 states now issue "safety" license plates. These plates reflect light so that cars can be seen more easily by other motorists.

Following another car too closely is another cause of collisions on turnpikes. Give the other driver plenty of room.

"Highway hypnosis" is the name used to describe the boredom and loss of attention caused by traveling long, straight roads. Cures for this are a car radio turned to varied music, periodic stops, constant use of the eyes — keep glancing at the rear-view mirror, gauges, speedometer, signs and other cars — fresh air and light meals.

VARIETY FOR your outdoor dining setting can be whipped up from printed terry cloth. Place mats and matching cushion covers are easy to make and go into the washing machine for easy cleaning.

* * * * * *

Gay Place Settings Made From Printed Terry Cloth

One of the nicest things about arranging a special outdoor luncheon is in creating a pretty setting. One that combines daintiness with practical sudsability, for chair cushions and matching place mats with complementary napkins, in a setting that puts guests in a patio party mood.

Local Singer Sewing Center experts suggest you use pretty floral terry towels or terry-by-the-yard to make cushions and place mats for a change of pace. If you have a round table, contour the place mats to fit.

Each place mat and its organdy lining may be shaped from a piece of fabric measuring 20x14 inches. This size allows for contouring to conform to table dimensions and seam allowance.

Before cutting, you should draw a paper pattern contouring the bottom of the place mat. To cut diagonal side slant and contour top of place mat, place a dot on right and left sides at top of pattern 4 inches inside. Draw lines connecting bottom of mat to upper dots.

Now draw a curved line to contour top of mat to measure 12 inches from upper point to upper point. If you wish to silhouette a blossom on the terry, allow 1-inch seam around a flower at top of mat. Right-sides facing, stitch lining to place mat leaving 6-inch opening on one side for turning. Slip stitch opening.

There is such a variation in cushion shapes that you would be wise to draw a paper pattern of one of your cushions before cutting. Allow ½-inch seam for top and bottom sections as well as the boxing strip. When stitching boxing strip to top and bottom pieces, place strip next to sewing machine feed with top or bottom section over strip.

Start stitching ¼-inch from end of strip. Keep edge of strip straight with presser foot, keeping edges of fabric together. As you will want to zipper closures for complete washability, when stitching strip to top section, leave an opening long enough to make removal of cover quick and easy. The zipper should be about 1 inch shorter than the opening.

Rainwear Good Insurance Against Summer Colds

Warm weather colds are a pain in the head in more ways than one. They can be more annoying and potentially dangerous than their winter counterparts.

That's why the old ounce of cold prevention is worth an extra quarter-pound of cure from about March through October—the outdoor living season. With this in mind, medical consultants to Torch Rubber Co., manufacturer of drain footwear, offer these warm-weather hints for better health:

Avoid sudden drops in temperature, whether of air, water or food.

Avoid overheating. This is really part of avoiding the drops in temperature. Keeping cool, as much as possible, is a good way to avoid a summer cold.

Have a good "rain insurance policy" against getting caught in summer squalls and thunder showers. Again, it's a matter of sudden lowering of body temperature when cold rain seeps through thin summer clothing to chill you.

Effects of such sudden summer rain exposure can be minimized through use of lightweight synthetic raincoats, rainhats and rain footwear.

Avoid drafts. Although the mercury soars, a narrow stream of even slightly cooler air blowing on you invites trouble from a cold.

Eat sensibly. "Heat"and "eat" rhyme easily but apparently don't seem to go together in warm weather, a condition that tends to disturb nutrition in summertime.

Get sufficient rest. Warmer weather usually brings more opportunity for vigorous outdoor recreation. This is fine, but exhaustion offers another invitation to cold germs

Bright, Bold Colors Are Being Emphasized

Bright, bold colors are being emphasized in interior decorating this spring, according to Allied Chemical's Barrett Division, and yellows, oranges, golds, greens and pinks are receiving most of the attention. Decorative ceiling tile such as Barrett's Leilani — a colorful flower and line design — is one of the up-to-the-minute ways to help enhance almost any decorating scheme.

KEEP PLANTS MOIST

You can easily make a small greenhouse to keep your house plants humid and healthy while you're on vacation. Tie a plastic bag over the plants and fasten it securely to the clay pot. Soak plant and pot in water before fastening the cover. This method should keep your plants moist for two or three weeks.

No-Fuss Furniture Adds To Fun of Outdoor Living

One of the nice things about an outdoor living room is its informal, nondecorated look.

The easiest way to insure this is to be sure there is a minimum of care connected with your patio. You'll get very little enjoyment out of it if you have to whip the furniture indoors at the ment out of it if you have to whip the furniture indoors at the sight of a dark cloud, worry about a plate shattering or waste time ironing table linens.

Lightweight patio furniture of tabular steel, for example, takes to sunny skies and rainy weather with equal aplomb with snap-on plastic cushions.

Some easy decorative touches can be a beach towel for a tablecloth and terry cloth fingertip towels for contrasting napkins.

Scout dime and department stores for colorful, inexpensive wares. Start withseveral sets of paper plates, cups and napkins, plastic dishes and mats so you can experiment with different color schemes. You might also try handy individual trays of brilliant colors.

Invest in baskets for serving corn, fruit, rolls and raw vegetables. Cutting boards are perfect for dispensing cold meats, cheeses and cake. Colorful, airtight canisters can store and serve edibles, such as potato chips, cookies and crackers.

And for that extra touch of glamour in the evening, put candles right in the soil to create a flowerbed of tapers.

Sal Soda Handy For Cleaning Up Outdoor Areas

Folks who enjoy outdoor living have many a clean-up problem to deal with during the summer. For the gardener, it may be the lawnmower that needs to have matted grass removed. The garden spray should be cleaned out several times during the summer, too.

If you have filled the spray with weed killer, wash it in a solution of two tablespoons of sal soda per quart of water. Even a slight trace of the weed killer left in the tank can injure tender plants next time the sprayer is used for another purpose.

Patio barbecues present yet other clean-up jobs. Ugly grease stains on flagstone patio, walks or cement can be erased by wetting them down with a watering can or hose, sprinkling them with dry sal soda concentrated. Leave overnight; hose and scrub next morning.

Don't neglect your barbecue grill, either. Grease, left on will harden. Scrub it with a solution of three tablespoons of sal soda concentrated per bucket of hot water. Accumulations of grease can be removed if you use sal soda dry as a scourer, applying it with a damp brush. Then rinse.

SHAMPOO OFTEN

Hair can become like straw during the summer months because of overexposure to sun and water. Gentle shampoos return needed oil to the hair and wash away damaging sand and salt.

Canned Formula Solves Baby Feeding Problem

Feeding time presents one of the biggest problems for tourists traveling with an infant who's taking formula.

Aside from problems of refrigeration, heating and finding a place to do the mixing, there's always the chance that variations in water across the country may upset baby's stomach.

An instant infant formula now available provides an ideal solution to the problem. Ready - to - use Enfamil helps solve the problem. It needs no mixing, no heating, no refrigeration, no added water.

Wherever you are, in a car, on a train, on a plane, when it's time for baby to eat, simply open the can, pour contents into a sterilized nursing bottle and give it

Treated Wood Advised for Fence

Caribbean Vacation Lands Beckon (but Do Skip Cuba)

Low round-trip air fares to the Caribbean in the late spring and summer have transformed this area into an increasingly popular summer playground.

According to tourist experts, a trend similar to the new travel pattern in Europe is beginning to make itself noticed.

Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands have become a favorite twosome for this type of area vacationing. This combine enables you to headquarter in San Jaun, for example, and do a bit of island-hopping, too, all within a limited radius.

Hotels, large and small, offer attractive summer rates and some are even sightseeing attractions in themselves.

In San Juan, for instance, you can stay in the elegant Condado Beach area for sun and fun, where intimate small resorts offer pool swimming and water skiing at the door, but you still are but a few minutes from the sights of Old San Juan.

Here El Convento is one of the new, great sights. Once a 17th century monastery, it has been restored and transformed into a luxury hotel.

Its furniture was made in Spain and all pieces are authentic reproductions of the period. The patio is an inviting and refreshing spot after sightseeing along the narrow, cobblestoned streets of Old San Juan, where you can sample life as it was lived some three centuries ago.

Nearby, the islands of St. Thomas and St. Croix beckon the visitor and are but a half-hour by air, with several scheduled flights daily to each via Carib Air. You can do either island in a day.

St. Croix is of particular historic interest. It has flown the flags of seven nations, the last being that of Denmark before St. Croix was purchased by the United States in 1917 to protect our sea routes to the Panama Canal.

It also is the easternmost tip of U.S. soil and on that spot the resort of Grapetree Bay is worth a look-see in itself. The winding road to Grapetree is bordered by the picturesque ruins of old sugar mills which were worked by the Danes until the slave rebellion in 1848.

In contrast, the Grapetree pool is lined by the modern murals of a young Frenchman, Daniel Meyer, in which he depicts sports life on St. Croix.

The island is a haven for free port shopping, too. Here your allowance is $200. Shops in the capital city of Christiansted have enormous bargains in Danish silver, English china and wares from the Orient.

Rigidwall Sheathing Cuts Down Drafts

Rigidwall sheathing, now used in most residential construction, eliminates chilly drafts that plague many older houses, report building specialists at Allied Chemical's Barrett Division. The big — four by eight — panels meet only at the frame studding so there are no vertical joints through which the wind can penetrate.

TASTEFULLY LANDSCAPED HOME

* * *

Landscaping Important In Home Decoration

The exterior decoration of a home is just as important as the interior design. It is the frame, the garnish, the fillip that puts the finishing touch to a house. If a mistake is made in planting a tree or bush, it can't be moved easily as an out-of-place chair or sofa indoors.

It is important to spend at least as much time plotting plants as home furnishings. The same things apply — form, color and texture. Good landscaping can increase the value of your house.

One can begin by photographing a home, placing the picture on a large background, and then filling it in with sketches of trees, bushes, vines or pictures cut from nurserymen's folders. If these are in scale, one should find a suitable arrangement. Most nurserymen are willing to volunteer assistance in this respect.

Some people prefer simple plantings, building their houses to take full advantage of nature's woodland growth or tropical foliage. But some people, forgetting, let the bulldozer rampage thru to make a clearing for a new house. Then they must replace the plants The expense is important, but oftentimes the biggest mistake made is making the setting look unnatural.

A house should look natural in its setting whether it is in a desert or in the mountains. Height, manner of growth, flower and foliage colors are important considerations. Still you don't want plantings too pat. There is monotony in symmetry, altho many amateurs think that is the goal in planting. The look to achieve is "it just sort of grew here."

Nurserymen can give you a hand in planning your landscape from the standpoint of appearance, privacy and even climate control. Neophytes forget details such as that fast-growing trees can screen out all the light in a few years and may need to be moved or chopped down. Trees planted too near the house may beat against the shingles, disturbing sleep on windy nights.

A long-range planting program is best if funds are limited, rather than spreading out the money. Trees are chosen first, so that they will serve as a windbreak in winter, keeping fuel costs down, and providing shade in warm weather. In general, tall evergreens should be used with low-growing, slow - growing plants around the house, broken up with spreading and ball-style plants. Low, slow growers should be used under windows.

Espalier trees and climbing roses help cool a house. A pool of water near the house can serve as a heat trap. In windy spots where there is a pretty view, such as one overlooking water, combine hedges with an outdoor window arrangement to maintain the view and foil the wind.

There are standard prices on good nursery stock, and these should have a good root system. Planting at the right time is important, too.

As soon as pocketbook and weather permits, one's next step should be to plant an area that can serve as a screen or cozy spot. Even in the country where one can enjoy wide open spaces, an intimate little area may be screened off with hedges, bushes, trees of varying heights and color to offer privacy and contentment.

Certain bushes will attract birds, if that's what you want. If planned properly trees may flower successively thruout the outdoor season. They may be placed strategically behind the hedge or in front of it. A garden door placed in the right spot can invite breezes. Hills and rocks may be utilized as part of this enclosure if it is properly planned.

Use Deep Colors To Paint Glamour Into Furniture

Give your patio furniture a new lease on life. Do it with great style by painting pieces one of the rich, deep colors currently in vogue.

Hot Persian pink, golden curry and olive green are three color choices suggested by Margaret Hutchison, a color stylist for a paint company.

These and many more boldly bautiful colors are now available in Ultra-tone satin gloss paints that can be used on wood, metal, wicker or rattan.

"Instead of standard white, how much more imaginative to have curry furniture, perhaps with Persian pink seat cushions," she says. For a cooler effect, she recommends violet with pale blue trim or a combination of sapphire, emerald and turquoise.

Planter tubs and flower boxes set around the edges of the patio can take this handsome color treatment, as can the door opening on the patio.

For homes with large picture windows or sliding glass doors overlooking patio or terrace, Miss Hutchison suggests relating the patio color scheme to the interior.

If the room overlooking the terrace has a bronze green accent wall, you could repeat the bronze green on the outdoor furniture.

If you have accumulated an assortment of unmatched lawn furniture over the years, tie it all together by painting it all the same color.

Used Chairs Can Often Be Bought At Bargain Prices

Second-hand chairs sometimes can be picked up at a bargain price because the fabric is worn or the cushions have acquired a shabby air.

If a chair is structurally sound and has a good design, it can be given new life with an upholstering job. This can best be done professionaly, of course, but you may want to take a crack at it yourself, either from a budget standpoint or simply because you make a practice of do-it-yourself projects.

Modern materials make it possible to get good results. One of these is latex foam rubber, which not only makes a soft, resilient cushion, but is easy to handle. Flat slabs and rolls are available in widths from 18 inches to three feet. Thicknesses vary from one-quarter inch to one and one-half inches. Where added cushioning is glued together with rubber cement.

You will need, in addition to the rubber and cement, wrapping paper for making patterns, tacking tape or muslin, webbing, a stapler or tacks and shears.

To start the job, carefully remove all old fabric, tacks and padding. If the webbing is worn or loose, remove it too.

Install new webbing, making sure it is very tight. It can be stapled or tacked. If you desire, the webbing can be replaced with a piece of plywood or pegboard. The foam rubber is soft enough so that you won't miss the webbing, and wood is easier to handle.

Place wrapping paper over the frame, trace the outline of the frame with pencil and cut out the pattern. Iace the pattern over the foam rubber and mark the rubber with a pen, soft pencil or magic marker. Allow an extra half inch all around. Cut out the cushion with scissors and bevel the underside of the cushion. This makes it easier to tuck under to create a rounded edge.

Rubber cement the tacking tape or strips of muslin to the top edges of the cushion so that it overlaps an inch or two. When the cement is dry (in an hour or so), place the cushion on the frame, pull the tacking tape down to form a rounded edge on the cushion and tack or staple the tape to the frame. If the chair has springs, they should be covered with an insulating pad so they won't fray the foam rubber.

If you plan to cover the cushion with a slippery fabric or one that has a high pile or loose weave, it is a good idea to cover the foam rubber with muslin at this point to prevent shifting and wrinkles.

The final step is the covering of the chair with the fabric selected. Staple or tack it to the inside of the chair frame. The material should be tight and smooth, but not so tight that it compresses the foam rubber. The cushion will be robbed of some of its resiliency if it is compressed. Corners should be neatly tucked in so that the material lies flat, and tacked with, upholstery tacks.

Welting added around the seams and black cambric tacked on the bottom give the job a "professional" touch.

Casual Living Calls for Outdoor Look of Summer

Summer's casual living calls for a different outlook on beauty. This season, coiffures and cosmetics are teaming up to put more focus on the face than in many a year.

Gone are hte bouffant hairdos that lived lives of their own. Now the relaxed, close-to-the-head look has taken over and brushes and combs are back in style.

Neat, shiny and rounded, these hair styles are just long enough to give a face its best frame. A good cut, preferably wet, is a must. Teasing is out. Instead, back-brushing makes the style take shape, mostly turned under. Because the hairdo is uncluttered, hairpieces can be worn for glamorous evening affairs without fear of ruining the set.

To take advantage of this added emphasis on the face, a glowing complexion is a must. Anne Whitfield, beauty consultant for Dial Soap research laboratories, advises wearing as little make-up as possible during summer months.

In hot weather, perspiration gets mixed with oil and make-up. So to keep that sun-kissed glow, wash you face as often as you can, at least three times a day.

Dressy evening events call for more make-up, she advises. But avoid heavy bases. Don't forget to keep foundation in pace with your changing skin color.

Brows should harmonize, not match, hair coloring. If you want to be really "in" this summer, try two-tone browns, brown and gold for redheads or charcoal and dark brown for brunettes.

BERLIN — A ring of jewel thieves operating inside of the Iron Curtain is reported to have struck at the Kremlin.

TRANSFORMED PORCH—Rooms can be made to appear part of the outdoors and, in this case, a part of the outdoors, a porch, has been made into a room. A wall of windows overlooking a terrace has been retained, and shades of a material matching chair upholstery have been used. Main colors in the bright room are yellow, red and black.

Here's How to Make Room 'Part of Outdoors'

People bemoan that they haven't more space to spread their wings outdoors in summer, but forget to look at the "acreage" to waste in their homes.

"You can convert indoor rooms to outdoor living — a porch, family room or recreation room to double your enjoyment of the outdoors," points out interior designer Erica Lemle of Hewitt, Long Island. "The trick is making the indoor area look like it is part of the outdoors, and vice versa."

If this is accomplished you can entertain without fear of rain spoiling your barbecue. You just move into your indoor garden.

"I've done this in my own home and in many other homes for a very successful effect. The trick is in coordination, color and accessories," Miss Lemle says.

She suggests that the same flooring be used indoors and out. She often uses flagstone, but one could use brick or other flooring. Highly waxed flagstne makes an elegant flooring indoors for this purpose.

She chooses furniture that is compatible to both indoors and outdoors. That way you can use the indoor furniture outdoors in summer and the outdoor furniture in winter, if you like. The coordination of furniture helps to spread the "one big room" idea.

"I love plants in the indoor room and this helps the theme along. I use lots of plants in groups, individually or hanging types. I hang oxen yoke from the ceiling, and these hold copper pots of plants," she says.

Miss Lemle likes a hi-fi speaker hidden under a table indoors, so that the music may be heard softly outdoors.

"You can freshen the dreariest room with color, and I personally feel it is more important than the actual pieces of furniture used. People have definite reactions to color, and it can make them happy or sad."

She has done red, black and white rooms with red linen on walls, white leather furniture, white rug and white draperies trimmed with black burlap braid. She often uses inexpensive matchstick blinds at windows, spraying them in bright colors or black, and "they look terrific with white curtains," she says.

"Whatever you build or remodel should have large areas of glass," she advises, "linking the patio and indoor room to give the all-one-area illusion."

In one porch-converted area she used slipcovers of yellow, red and black, the same material used in Roman window shades, and its background color, yellow, was carried out in draperies.

"Whenever you have lots of windows as you do in a room off a terrace, it's a good idea to break up the monotonous look with a variety of window treatment. In this instance I used shades with pattern across an area along the back of a sofa, and used floor-length draperies of the same background on windows on either side of shades."

Keep furniture and accessories informal, she says, even in screened-in porches that are closed in to be an extra room in winter. She uses tole bin bases for lamps and improvises with such objects as Chinese incense burners used as bases for coffee table tops. She likes long billiard lights over long tables.

"And wherever possible the room should serve as a guest room," she points out. All the windows and bright colors in a room of this sort makes it very cheerful for the purpose. "A slab of oak may be put on wrought iron legs to make a long table. A day bed can slide right under it to sleep one person or even two."

That's almost the part of decorating she likes best, planning the furniture. Her father owned a furniture factory in Germany and she learned everything from the ground up, "even pasting veneers together as a child."

More Than 100,000 Second Homes in Year

Last year more than 100,000 vacation-retirement homes were built; 150,000 are expected annually by 1965 and by 1970 most authorities expect the total to swell to 200,000, reports Allied Chemical's Barrett Division. About 75 per cent of those built in '62 were roofed with asphalt shingles.

Dry Mixes Add Saucey Taste To Galley Dishes

Boating and camping enthusiasts get to be a hungry lot. A fun-packed boating or camping trip requires as much food planning as choosing the proper equipment, sites and navigation routes. For variety and convenience, you may want to rely on canned products for the meats and dehydrated products for such items as potatoes. Instant potatoes or a variety of dry sauce mixes, such as curry sauce mix, a la king sauce mix or cheese sauce mix can turn galley dishes into gourmet treats quickly and easily.

Here are two recipes from the R. T. French test kitchens to try on your next camping or boating trip:

SAUCY MEAT

Combine in a medium-size skillet, 1 can (6 ounce) tomato paste, 1 cup water, 1 envelope meat loaf sauce mix, 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Bring to a boil. Cut 1 can (12 ounces) luncheon meat into thin sticks and add to sauce. Simmer, covered, 10 minutes. Serve over open hamburger buns, rice or noodles. Four servings.

CAMPERS SPECIAL

Remove corned beef hash from 15½-ounce can, cut free top and bottom of can. Use bottom piece as a pusher to push out log of hash. Cut hash into 4 thick slices. Heat 1 tablespoon shortening in skillet and fry hash slices, turning once to brown. While hash browns, empty cheese sauce mix into small saucepan.

Stir in 1 cup milk, heat just to boiling, stirring constantly. Serve a portion of sauce over each slice of fried hash. Sprinkle generously with French fried onions. (Makes four servings.)

Stalled Cars in Cuba Sign Of Communist Shackles

One of the most common sights in Cuba today is "a stalled car with the hood up and three or four Cubans peering perplexedly inside."

This is but one sign of an economy under Communist shackles, writes Mrs. Ruth Sheldon Knowles in the current issue of Petroleum Today. Mrs. Knowles, who has served as a petroleum consultant to three nations, was active in petroleum exploration in Cuba during the 1950's. She returned to the island to see how its economy had fared under Castro's Communism.

"Service stations will not repair a car unless the driver brings in his own spare parts," she reports. "The chronic shortage of lubricating oil, the bases for which must be imported from Russia, further impairs the functioning of motors. It is forbidden to change the oil in a car."

Mrs. Knowles visited two American-built oil refineries, which had been expropriated by Castro in 1960. There had been reports that poor-quality Russian crude oil had damaged refinery equipment and created a shortage of spare parts.

She found the refineries in disrepair and facing shortages of both spare parts and technical personnel. All gasoline being processed is of low octane rating and Cubans complain of its quality.

"The Cuban Government is attempting to convince Cubans that private transportation is an unnecessary frill," Mrs. Knowles writes. "For as the automobiles now in use wear out, they will not be replaced; the Government is importing only trucks and buses from the Communist nations."

"To be deprived of freedom of personal movement, the Cubans are told, is a Communist virtue and a sign of progress."

Cuba's only source of energy is petroleum, she notes. Yet the island can produce only a few hundred barrels of its daily requirement of about 78,000 barrels. Thus it depends on imported crude oil - all of it from the Soviet Union.

Mrs. Knowles was told that exploration for oil has a high priority. Between 250 and 300 Soviet geologists and engineers are in Cuba concentrating on oil and mineral exploration.

The Cubans have drilled about a dozen exploratory wells since 1959, but all of them were failures. Mrs. Knowles believes that bound by present bureaucratic and technological weaknesses, it is unlikely the nation's exploration plans over the next four years will find any appreciable amounts of oil.

Local Company Awarded Carson Contract

The Ft. Carson purchasing and contracting office has announced that Benbow Plumbing and Heating Company, has been awarded the contract for Replacement of Boiler in Bldg. 1117 at Ft. Carson, Colorado.

The winning bid was for an estimated $13,796.00. Eleven bids were solicited and five bidders responded.

Begonias must be planted in partly shaded areas and sheltered from strong winds.

HANDICAPPED OF THE MONTH — Miss Tulie Bennett, 1707 N. Cascade Ave., has been selected "Handicapped of the Month" by the Stalwarts and Pals of the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center. A native of Santa Fe, N.M., Miss Bennett has been associated with the Colorado Springs Sno-White Laundry as bookkeeper since 1951. Her brother, J. Edgar Bennett, with whom she lives, is plant manager. Miss Bennett contacted polio when she was three-years-old and was in a Michigan children's hospital for seven years. One leg is completely paralyzed and partial paralysis remains in the other. She learned to drive a special-equipped hand-control car about four years ago. Miss Bennett is an active member of the First Methodist Church and teaches Sunday School at the Chadbourne Spanish Mission. She writes poetry, plays the piano and teaches singing to nursery children at the mission.

Camping Season Is Here; Good Sense Practice Urged

Going camping this summer? Thousands of Coloradoans are, and with the arrival of June the outdoor season is in full swing. Planning for camping , fishing, hiking, mountain climbing and pack trips luxuriates with the season.

It's a great idea, too. Sensible, tailored-to-age jaunts back to nature can be a tonic for body, soul and mind.

But pack your good sense right along with your duffel. Tyhoid fever, physical exhaustion, an axe gash in the foot, a heart attack — these things not only spoil your camping adventure but probably would put a crimp in all the rest of your summer.

A good camping trip is free of illness and injury, and the wise camper gives advance thought to such matters as water and food supply, unaccustomed exercise, accidents and bugs.

Old Doc Experience, himself a veteran camper, offers these item of advice:

Don't overdo.

Don't take rash chances.

Take along a basic first aid kit. Every camper should know the rudiments of first aid. If you don't, ask the help of your local Red Cross chapter, or consult with your family physician for some tips. A basic first aid kit need not be elaborate, heavy or bulky, but it should include a manual.

Don't trust any surface water in Colorado, no matter how clear, pure-looking, sparkling, fast flowing, isolated or high it is. Forget all those folktale rules you may have hard about how a mountain stream "purifies" itself in 50, 100, 200 yards.

Drink only from approved water supplies, or boil or treat natural water with purifying tablets. You can get the inexpensive tablets at the corner drugstore.

IT's often best to take along your own water on short trips, especially if there are small children in the party. Many persons, particularly children, suffer stomach upsets on a change of water.

Don't pollute streams or lakes for the next camper. Bury all garbage and wastes. Locate your camp latrine away from and downslope from the stream.

An a lamping trip nearly every one is inclined to think he can do more physically than he really should — especially at mountain altitudes. It's part of the zest of it all. But don't over-estimate, over-tav or over-exert.

You have had a recent physical checkup by your doctor, haven't you?

If you become tired or short of breath, stop, sit down and rest. Take your hiking and your horseback riding at a pace you can handle comfortably. You'll enjoy it far more that way.

Don't push yours lf to utter exhaustion just because you have the courage to do it or because you want to prove to someone (yourself, maybe?) that you're he-man all the way. Mature mascul ity involves good sense, too.

Get rest along the trail, and good rest in camp at night. If you rise exhausted from a sleepless night, you won't be ready for the exertions of a new day. Your bed is highly important. It should be dry and comfortable, and it will be worth your time to make it so.

Keep your wits about in such matters as climbing, wading in streams and lakes, boating, eating wild "mushrooms" and handling camp equipment.

Quite probably you're only a part-time camper without daily experience in use of axes or razor-sharp sheath knives. Treat them with care and respect; it's probably many miles to the nearest doctor.

A sensible camper carries along a change of clothing in preparation for feather changes. Any Colorado camp can expect either rain or snow at high altitudes.

Guart against mountain sunburn, which can be one of the worst kinds. The higher your camp, the quicker and more serious the sunburn.

Spoiled food causes food poisoning, which can be fatal. Don't do anything with perishable foods on a camping trip that you wouldn't do at home. Foods which need refrigeration at home still need it in the mountains. You wouldn't eat hamburger left out of the refrigerator for 24 hours at home; don't do it in the wilds.

Critical period in food spoilage can be as short as 4 to 6 hours. This applies particularly to cooked but uncanned foods, whether containing meat or vegetables, and of course to raw meats and milk. Cook all meats thoroughly. If you don't have an ice chest along, use canned and dehydrated or dry foods.

Don't get yourself lost. Be sure you have a good map of the area if you are going into unfamiliar country without a guide. Let someone know where you are going and about when you plan to be back.

Good repellants for mosquitoes and other insects are available. You'll sleep better if you rid your tent of mosquitoes before you turn in.

Be on guard against sticks, both the larger woodtick and the smaller, soft-shelled variety. They've been stirring for several months now at lower altitudes, and as the summer advances they will move on up as far as timberline. Inspect yourself all over each night and morning. Remove carefully — without crushing in your fingers — any tick which has started to burrow in.

Be careful with fire. Never leave a campfire untended, and never abandon a campsite until every spark of fire is out.

About half of the nation's high schools contain fewer than 300 students.

Army Ambulance Handles Like a Dream

"It handles like a dream." That's how Pvt. John Lawson, one of the ambulance drivers at the post hospital, describes Ft. Carson's newest ambulance.

The new ambulance carries two roller stretchers and two field stretchers, giving it a four patient capacity. Its predecessors could carry only one littler case.

The ambulance has cabinets built into the back to carry medical equipment. It has a partition between driver and passenger. An exhaust fan and heater in the back for passengers provide new comforts for ambulance patients.

Power steering and power brakes contribute to its handling ease.

2200 Scouts Register at Camp Alexander

Camp Alexander, Boy Scout Camp located in 11 Mile Canyon, will open its summer season on June 16.

More than 2,200 Boy Scouts and leaders will be in attendance during the 10-week period. The camp will be occupied for part of the summer season by Sante Fe Trails Scout Council.

Harry DeLashmutt, Jr., camp director, stated that this year will show the largest attendance since the camp was opened in 1946. An average attendance of 235 Scouts and leaders will make use of the camp every week during the summer season.

Scout Headquarters staff who will be in charge of the camp are Harry DeLashmutt, Jr., Scott Keton, and James Wiant, all are district executives of the Pikes Peak Council. A staff of 35 expert camping instructors have been selected to direct the vast camp activities.

DeLashmutt stated that the following Troops have registered for the first period which starts next Sunday. Troops 1-26-28-38-42-43.

DeLashmutt reminded all Scouts and leaders that every person attending camp must have a physical examination, and bring the regular physical examination record form signed by a doctor and parents upon arrival at camp.

All fees for boys attending camp should be submitted to scoutmasters, who in turn should pay at Scout Headquarters at least one week before the troop is scheduled to attend camp.

A scheduling meeting will be held at Scout Headquarters on the Wednesday preceeding the week the troop arrives at camp. The first scheduling session will be held on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. One hundred scouters and Scouts were in attendance at the Annual Beaver Weekend, May 25 and 26 for the purpose of making repairs and improvements for this years camping season. Many fine improvements have been made in terms of equipments and improvements to existing buildings and facilities. The annual official inspection of Camp Alexander will be held June 25. Officials of National Scout Headquarters and Regional committemen will rate the camp on 100 items as established by the National Council Camping Committee.

Last year Camp Alexander received a Grade "A" rating. Only 30 per cent of the scout camps in the country received this highest possible rating. Paul Hill, chairman of the council committee, stated that the financial help that comes from the Scout-O-Rama and the volunteer labor of hundreds of Scouters and Beaver Weekend make it possible for the Scouts of the Pikes Peak Area to attend one of the out-standing camps in the country.

Carson Shop Resale Checks Total $26,000

Three thousand checks worth $26,000 have been written to military men and their wives who consigned articles for resale at the Ft. Carson Thrift Shop during the past year. The shop which will close June 26 and reopen Sept. 4 has sold 20,000 items since last September.

The figures were contained in the annual report released by Mrs. Sardis Sullivan, Thrift Shop manager. Net profits amount to $2,800 and the lion's share went to worthy causes.

The shop, which accepts consignments from active and retired military, is open to anyone, military or civilian, for purchases on Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. is set aside for consignments.

Much of the Thrift Shop's profits come from outright donations to the shop. Mrs. Sullivan estimates that donations, expecially rummage items, amount to several thousands of dollars. They have been so generous, she says, that the rummage room has been able to remain open during Thrift Shop operations.

"This has been the lifeblood of the shop this year," she says.

This is the second year of the Officers Wives Club operation of the Thrift Shop as its major project. Mrs. Joseph E. Russ is advisor to the shop.

Twenty women are on duty every working day to handle operations. Since September, major units have rotated in assuming responsibility for supplying the volunteers each month, but a corps of from 12 to 14 "Regulars" maintains continuity in the operations.

A plan is now being worked out, says Mrs. Sullivan, whereby receipts will acknowledge donations to the Thrift Shop. These receipts could be used for income tax deductions.

Another new convenience now in effect is the arrangement whereby departing personnel may leave a self-addressed stamped envelope at the Thrift Shop along with their consignments. When the merchandise is sold, the check in payment will be sent to their new address.

Biggest sale of the year was a $120 mink stole which was purchased just before Christmas. Many items have been sold in the $40 to $60 price range.

Your Outdoors

THAT BEND IN THE TRAIL

Either walking or riding, we are constantly looking forward to see what lies beyond the next bend in the road or trail. We stop and enjoy what is before us but there is that constant desire to keep going to see what lies ahead. It may be far more wonderful than what you are seeing at the time or it may be a continuation of what you already see, but you must see what is around that bend. The early settlers while traveling across the country in their covered wagons must have felt the same way. Sometimes it was a pleasant surprise in the way of water or grazing for their horses and cows or it might have been a very unpleasant surprise in the way of a band of Indians. That bend of the road might have meant a lucky strike for the miner. Often times we think we will turn back as we are just out for a stroll and then decide to go at least to the bend and in so doing have been rewarded by seeing a herd of deer or a vast panorama of scenery.

We were walking for miles and it might be a high peak, towering miles thinking we would come to into the clouds. Whatever it is, we the beautiful lake which we were informed was ahead of us. We Sometimes, the road lies straight went many miles and had about ahead with few turns but at last giving up but came to the bend there comes a great bend and we in the road and there before us take notice, wondering what lies was this great mass of water sur- ahead. To our great surprise, is rounded by wonderful trees with is something far beyond our expretty little cabins tucked among pectation. Individuals come to the them, presenting a beautiful view bend in the road and likewise Travelers coming across the plains meet something that is beyond were making inquires about the their expectation in life or they city of Colorado Springs. "Just about 25 miles from here in fact that is difficult to overcome. When just around the bend in the road climbing a high peak, we turn they were told." All eyes were glued on that bend and when they made it, what a view spread before their eyes! A background of mountain peaks and a beautiful city at their feet. "There it is just like they said, in the shadow of Pikes Peak".

When people made the carriage trip to the summit of the big mountain, no doubt they asked the driver, "When do we get to the summit?" and the driver must have replied, Well, just around the next bend". And that carriage road was no smooth road and perhaps from what we read about it, there must have been many dangerous bends. Sometimes the bend, brought the hold-up to a stage-coach or it could have meant a spill over the bank.

The interesting part about the winding mountain trail is to meet the unexpected at each bend. It may be a deep canon or beautiful valley a large waterfall, a vast stretch of timbered country, or sometimes just before Christmas. Many items have been sold in the $40 to $60 price range.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

Taxpayers who filed estimated June 17, 1963 Form 450 must be tax returns in April are required used for this purpose. Deposits to pay their second installment of may be made in local authorized tax due on 1963 estimated income banks, or Federal Reserve Banks by June 17, 1963.

Taxpayers who first meet such requirements in this quarter are required to file a declaration of estimated income tax for 1963 on Form 1040-ES and pay at least one-third of the tax estimated to be due. If the income expected to be earned during 1963 has changed, taxpayers may be required to file an amended declaration of estimated tax. A blank form for use as an amended return is printed on the back of the bill which taxpayers receive for an installment of Estimated Tax.

Corporations operating on a calendar year basis, are reminded that if they chose to pay the tax in two payments they must pay the balance of their 1962 income tax liabilities by June 17, 1963.

Employers liable for income tax withheld and social security taxes in excess of $100 for the month of May must place such taxes in a depository. I wish to again stress the importance of compliance with the deposit deadline of methods for computing such taxes.

Answers to questions about Federal taxes may be obtained by calling our local office at 636-5171. The local IRS office at room 206 U. S. post Office Building in Colorado Springs will be moving to a new location within the next couple of weeks, please watch for the announcement of the exact date of the move and the new address. Congo Carries Out Its First Execution

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The Congo has carried out its first official execution since it became independent three years ago.

A bandit was hanged at dawn before a crowd of more than 5,000 in front of Leopoldville's cultural center.

Justice Minister Justin Bomboko said on the radio that the hanging would serve as an example to evildoers. The Congolese capital has been plagued by armed robbers since the city's police force mutinied last month.

Pro-Communist Plan Is Rejected in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma said here his neutralist faction has rejected a pro-Communist Pathet Lao proposal for preliminary peace talks at Khang Khay.

Khang Khay is the headquarters of the Pathet Lao on the Plaine des Jarres, scene of fighting between the pro-Communist faction and the neutralists.

The neutralists have held out for prelimmary talks at Vientiane, the capital, with the rightist faction of the coalition government included.

Souvanna told newsmen that his faction had maintained its previous position and that he was drafting a reply to the Pathet Lao demand to the leftist faction leader, Prince Souphanouvong.

The Pathet Lao demand served to stall efforts to start peace talks with neutralist leaders.
